

BARKLEY SEEKS FINAL VOTE TODAY ON OPA AS THREAT IS MADE TO DELAY ACTION

SENATOR WILEY PLANS TO CALL UP TRUMAN BILL ON REORGANIZATION

Senate Turns Down Proposal Requiring Agency to Authorize Graduated Rent Boosts Up to 15 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—A move to require that OPA authorize increases in rents was rejected 58 to 14 today as the Senate drove toward a final decision on legislation to revive price controls.

The vote rejected an amendment by Senator Hawkes (Rep., New Jersey), to permit an immediate 5 per cent rent increase and additional 5 per cent increase on next Nov. 30 and March 31. It would also forbid federal rent controls in states that already have them.

Both Missouri's Senators—Briggs (Dem.) and Donnell (Rep.)—and those of Illinois—Brooks (Rep.) and Lucas (Dem.)—voted against the proposed rent amendment.

Democratic leader Barkley pushed for a showdown on the OPA bill—loaded with bars on price controls for meat, poultry, milk, gasoline, cotton seed, soybeans and their products—in the face of a threat of a new delay on the measure.

When Barkley announced that he wanted to dispose of the measure before the Senate recesses for the day, Senator Tobey (Rep., New Hampshire), shouted "Amen."

Senator Wiley (Rep., Wisconsin), had told the Senate he proposed to call up tomorrow House approved measures disapproving President Truman's government reorganization plan. They have a privileged status by law, so any Senator may force action on them.

Wiley first moved to take them up today but withdrew his motion after a plea by Barkley that OPA be given the right of way. Wiley said that if the much-revised price control bill is not passed today, he wants action on the reorganization matter tomorrow.

Barkley observed that any break of this kind into the price control debate would "play into the hands of anybody seeking to delay action."

O'Daniel Plans Few Words. Senator O'Daniel (Dem., Texas), told reporters he intended to "say quite a few words" before any final vote is taken. He said he also will bring up an amendment to establish a Fair Employment Practices Commission.

While any such move would be

FARMERS' UNION ANNOUNCES BREAK WITH PRESIDENT BY HOUSEWIVES

Head of Organization Says It Lacks Faith in Administration, Also in Congress.

DENVER, July 11 (AP)—The National Farmers Union has broken with the Truman Administration and is "pulling out of Washington" to mobilize for the economic M-day it feels is coming. President James Patton said today.

"The union has lost confidence in the Truman Administration's doing anything about legislation we consider important," Patton, head of the union which reports 400,000 members, said in an interview.

The move does not mean a step toward the support of the Republican party, Patton emphasized, "because we have lost faith in Congress as a whole as well as the Administration."

The union's Washington staff is being reduced from 15 to one, he said, and he has been authorized by the board of directors to sell the union's $75,000 Washington building.

He cited the President's veto of the OPA extension bill and his request for strong emergency labor powers as examples of the Administration's "inconsistency" which caused the union to withdraw its support.

Directors of the union believe the trend of Washington is toward inflation to be followed by deflation, Patton said, "so we're starting to mobilize for the economic M-day we feel is coming."

Cooler Weather Finally Visits City, Expected to Stay Awhile

The cool front which St. Louis has been eagerly awaiting finally arrived about 7 o'clock this morning, and Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren expected the thermometer to stay below 90 degrees today for the first time in a week.

St. Louisans looked forward to turning off their fans and sleeping under blankets last night when the thermometer dropped 12 degrees from a high of 97 at 3:30 o'clock to 85 at 4 yesterday afternoon, and the weather man predicted lower temperatures, but the cooler weather traveled more slowly than expected, and the low this morning was an uncomfortable 77 at 6 o'clock.

Wahlgren had good news for persons sweltering in St. Louis' hottest July since 1936. The cool weather will last at least through tomorrow, he said, and he expects the thermometer to register no more than 85 degrees tomorrow.

For today, he also predicted a high temperature of 85 degrees, with a low tomorrow morning of about 65 degrees. The skies will be fair tomorrow, he said.

Remarking, "We could use a good rain," Wahlgren looked hopefully at his weather map, but saw no immediate prospects of it.

There may be occasional thunder showers today, however.

Temperatures throughout the country were high yesterday, with a top of 108 at Las Vegas, Nev. But vacationists at Yellowstone Park were enjoying sound sleep at 85-degree weather. Highest temperature recorded here in the heat wave was 98 degrees yesterday and Tuesday, and the thermometer at Lambert-St. Louis Field reached 101 Tuesday.

Wahlgren held out some hope for St. Louisans who are gloomily considering that September is still seven weeks away. "In several summers the highest temperatures were recorded in June," he said. "We might as well be optimistic about it."

STEELMAN URGES DEEP CUT IN ARMY, NAVY SPENDING; REVIVAL OF OPA

Reconversion Report Says Lower U.S. Costs and Continued High Taxes Are Needed to Control Inflation.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Reconversion Director John R. Steelman today demanded new slashes in federal spending and pointed at the Army and Navy as the places to cut deepest.

Economy may be achieved there, Steelman told President Truman and Congress, without hampering operations aimed at fulfilling world obligations, furthering American interests and keeping global peace.

Although terming the revival of price control the No. 1 essential in warding off "costly and irremediable" inflation, Steelman said this action should be coupled with lower Government costs, continued high taxes and credit controls, and, if possible, a federal budget surplus.

Steelman warned: "Every day that passes now, without a (price control) law on the books increases the danger that our price ceiling structure will be shattered beyond repair and that the ground we have so laboriously won against inflation will be irretrievably lost."

Less spending by the civilian agencies and postponement of public works would help to halt the flow of Government dollars into private hands, Steelman said in his quarterly report as Director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, but he added:

"If a major cut in the inflationary impact of federal expenditures is to be sought, expenditure plans of the Army and Navy... must be re-examined in the light of the present need for anti-inflationary action."

The armed forces, he said, represent 45 per cent of all proposed outlays in a 1947 budget which was intended to total $35,900,000,000 but which has risen an estimated 10 to 15 per cent—to 40 billion dollars or more.

On the other hand, the civilian agencies—legislative, judicial and executive—will cost "a little more than two billion dollars, or 6 per cent, of total expenditures." If major economies are to come, Steelman said, they "must be sought elsewhere."

Three fifths of the outlays of the Army and Navy are earmarked for purposes other than the direct paying, feeding, clothing, training and transporting of soldiers and sailors, Steelman pointed out.

He did not specify which of the "other purposes" should be cut, but he suggested that many might be postponed if they could not be charged to the military.

The merger of the military and naval departments, which the President has repeatedly urged, can achieve economies by the elimination of duplicating expenditures, he said.

Steelman led off his report with the announcement that "production of over-the-counter consumer goods for the first half of 1946 was the highest in either peace or war."

Until June 30, when OPA expired—"runaway inflation had been prevented," Steelman said.

WOMAN CALLING EVERY PHONE TO CUT BUTTER PRICE

LA CROSSE, Wis., July 11 (INS)—A La Crosse housewife has started on the "B" in the telephone directory in a one-woman crusade against increased butter prices.

Mrs. Lora Rudolph, wife of a veteran, went down the list and called more than 100 other housewives whose names began with A and said she is prepared to stick out her telephone campaign down to the last Z.

She explains in her calls that she does not want OPA revived and asks only that shoppers refuse to pay 78 cents a pound for butter, assuring the listener that she can find it for 65 cents.

Other housewives, hearing of her campaign, have offered to help her make the calls.

COMMODITY PRICE INDEX UP 2 PCT., TOTAL RISE OF 16 PCT. SINCE OPA DIED

The Bureau of Labor Statistics commodity price index rose yesterday to 232, or approximately 2 per cent, a total rise of 16 per cent in the 10 days since OPA controls expired.

Yesterday's index rise was featured by trading price increases for grains, livestock, cocoa, hides and cotton.

BOARD OF EXPERTS SAYS BIKINI TEST PROVIDED DATA TO REDESIGN SHIPS

Evaluation Group Find Navy Now Can Redesign Vessels to Minimize Damage to Superstructures and Personnel.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—A board of experts advised President Truman today that the Bikini atomic bomb test provided adequate data for the redesign of Navy vessels "to minimize damage to superstructures and deck personnel from this type of bomb."

"A vast amount of data which will prove invaluable throughout scientific and engineering fields has been made available by this test," the report added.

The evaluation board, representing the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton, noted physicist.

Other members were Bradley Dewey, Thomas F. Farrell, Gen. Joseph W. W. Stilwell, Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, R. Adm. W. R. Purnell and R. Adm. R. A. Ostie.

"There can be no question," the board said, "that the effort and expense involved in this test has been amply justified both by the information secured and by greatly narrowing the range of speculation and argument."

A special presidential committee, headed by Senator Hatch (Dem.), New Mexico, expressed a similar opinion in a separate report to the value of the test.

Saying the results "amply justify the expenditure" and that further tests are "equally desirable and necessary," this group of observers reported to Truman:

"You made a wise decision when you approved the plans for this test and they have been carried out with extraordinary skill, diligence and ingenuity. The test just completed has again proven that the atomic bomb is a weapon of terrific power when used on land targets."

The board emphasized that bomb damaged more ships, "than have ever before been damaged by a single explosion."

It reported that the bomb exploded "with an intensity which approached the best of the three previous atomic bombs," over a point 1500 to 2000 feet west of the assigned target at approximately the planned altitude.

It continued that the target area in no sense represented an actual naval disposition, but was designed to obtain maximum data from a single explosion.

These were listed as important effects: Five ships were sunk and two wrecked within one-half mile of the explosion point; numerous fires were started on other ships, including one on a ship two miles distant; "apparently," said the report, "some unusual circumstance since the other fires were much closer."

The board said little damage apparently was done to the hulls of the battleships Nevada and Arkansas and the heavy cruiser Pensacola, the only major combatant ships within one-half mile of the explosion point, but "their superstructures were badly wrecked."

"These ships were unquestionably put out of action."

PRICE WAR REDUCES MEAT TO BELOW OLD OPA CEILINGS

Pittsburgh Butcher Starts Slashing, Competitor Undercuts Him; Stores Filled.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A "price war" broke out yesterday as more meat hit butchers' chopping blocks. Morris Benjamin, a market owner, said he started the price war as "one way to bring prices down."

He plastered his windows with signs cutting meat prices 10 and 15 cents below average prices. Many of them were five cents below old OPA ceilings.

Paul Deakler, manager of a super market, put up signs cutting his prices 10 to 20 cents under Benjamin's prices. Customers began to fill both stores.

MAY OPPOSED CUTBACK ON WAR FIRM 'FRIEND'

Senators Also Learn He Took Up the Granting of E. Award to Garsson Companies.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Senate war profits investigators learned today that Representative Andrew J. May (Dem.), Kentucky, had protested against a production cutback ordered for "a friend of mine"—Henry Garsson. Garsson was one of the promoters of the "paper empire" of 19 closely linked corporations now under investigation.

The investigators were told also that May, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, had taken up with War Department officials the matter of granting an Army-Navy E award to one of the Garsson companies.

The production award to the Batavia (Ill.) Metal Products Co. was termed "indefensible" by Chairman Mead (Dem.), New York, of the Senate War Investigation Committee.

Milton H. Pettit, chairman of the ordinance committee on E awards, testified there were short cuts and speedy action "unprecedented" in handing out the pennant. He acknowledged that he had noted on Batavia's files: "What price political expediency."

Pettit testified that Batavia never would have been given the award if it had been left up to district ordnance officers (the normal procedure) who had protested against the company's manpower handling, its production efficiency and its prices.

He said that it was his "understanding" that the speed and unusual proceedings by which it was granted was due to May's intercession.

Mead remarked that the award had a "derogatory effect upon the producers of America" and said that it constituted a "blemish" on the Army-Navy use of the morale and production stimulating device.

The committee received a telephone transcription depicting May as protesting against the production cutback.

The transcript was placed before the committee as it sought details from Brig. Gen. Roswell Hardy, wartime chief of the ordnance ammunition division, on

5 OF CREW KILLED IN CRASH OF TWA TRAINING PLANE

READING, Pa., July 11 (AP)—Five crewmen were killed and a sixth was injured today when a Transcontinental & Western Airlines Constellation training plane caught fire in the air and crashed into an alfalfa field near the airport.

A man identified as Capt. Norman A. Nilsen of Norfolk, Mass., died soon after he was admitted to a hospital. He had told attendants six persons were aboard the plane. One occupant, as yet unidentified, was reported in serious condition at a hospital.

An instructor at the airport said he saw the plane approaching as though trying to make an emergency landing. It was a fire, he said, and it suddenly lost altitude and crashed into the alfalfa field. Nilsen either was thrown clear or managed to crawl out of the plane. A passing farmer stopped his truck and ran to Nilsen's aid. The two succeeded in dragging out another man before the plane blazed so fiercely they could not approach again.

Couple Accused of Trying to Sell 19-Month-Old Child for $1000

CHICAGO, July 11 (UP)—A middle-aged couple was accused yesterday of attempting to "sell" their 19-month-old adopted son for $1000.

The charges were made before Judge Robert J. Dunne in Circuit Court by Robert E. Cherry, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Leory Lorenz, who he said had purchased the baby but now were unable to meet the payments.

Cherry said that Lorenz, 28, a soft drink salesman, had been approached June 15 by Charles Schachtshober, 55, and his wife, Pearl, 46, who offered to sell their adopted son, John Francis, for $1000.

The attorney produced what he described as a receipt which indicated the Lorenzes had made a down payment of $210 to the Schachtshobers under terms of a second contract which reduced the price for the baby to $400.

Cherry charged that the Schachtshobers had demanded the return of the baby when the Lorenzes fell behind on the payments. The Schachtshobers denied the charge.

Both couples were in court for hearing on a writ of habeas corpus sought by the Schachtshobers, who contended they had left the child with the Lorenzes for only one day as a "holiday" and that the Lorenzes had kept him illegally.

The attorney produced what he described as a receipt which indicated the Lorenzes had made a

RUSSIA REPORTED INSISTING ON FULL ATOM CONTROL BY SECURITY COUNCIL

Gromyko Said to Have Rejected Australian Proposal for Autonomous Authority—Veto Review Sought.

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Soviet Russia was reported authoritatively today to have rejected Australia's suggestion for an autonomous authority controlling atomic energy and to have insisted on putting all atomic control under the Security Council.

The Russian position was presented by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko at the fifth and last meeting of a special sub-committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission which has been exploring the whole question of atomic control. It was a closed session.

Gromyko was quoted as saying he could see no necessity for creating an autonomous body since the U.N. charter stated that the Security Council was the organ primarily concerned with peace and security.

He was represented as saying that the whole question of the use of atomic energy was a matter of concern to world peace.

Gromyko also was reported to have declared that under his proposal to keep atomic control under the Security Council, therefore, have to operate under Security Council rules.

Dr. Herbert V. Ewart of Australia, chairman of the sub-committee, confirmed reports that Gromyko had opposed his autonomous proposal. Ewart said he told Gromyko that unless such a veto was approved countries with atomic raw material would not enter the control system.

Veto Review Sought. Meanwhile, U.N. delegates had before them a formal Australian demand for review of the veto rule by the General Assembly.

The demand was made after Russia had tried to use the veto yesterday to bar Canada from Security Council deliberations on atomic energy.

The Russian move was blocked by a ruling of Council chairman Francisco Castillo Najera of Mexico, but Gromyko's insistence that he would again seek to veto Canada's attendance spurred a campaign for restriction of the veto power to major questions bearing on the most serious and urgent matters affecting the peace.

Ewart, who sought to convince Gromyko in heated debate on and off the council floor yesterday that he could not exclude Canada "willy-nilly, in the name of a veto," formally requesting that the veto rule be listed for discussion by the General Assembly in September.

Visibly elated over the success of challenging maneuvers he led to block Gromyko's latest veto attempt, Ewart indulged in a whimsical paraphrase before the council: "Sufficient to the day is the veto thereof."

Retiring Chairman Speaks. The remark prefaced his salutation to Dr. Castillo Najera, who is retiring from the council presidency after a one-month term in the chair—a month in which the council experienced its stormiest session two weeks ago when Gromyko fired a volley of three vetoes on the Spanish issue.

Castillo Najera took his leave of the chairmanship by saying in part: "Owing to recent incidents in the deliberations of this council, a growing sentiment has developed in public opinion, reflected in the world press, towards the study of a way of revising the charter in order to prevent the veto being extended to deal with the problems of the world, rather than a disproportionate measure as the veto constitutes."

Gromyko, replying in his turn to Castillo Najera's farewell, expressed doubt that the merits of the question of the veto were really merited, his statement will not have the effect that he expects.

Permission Granted. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada had asked permission to attend yesterday's council meeting, at which rules of procedure for the Atomic Energy Commission were to be discussed. Canada, because of its pioneering co-operation on production of the atom bomb, enjoys special membership with the 11 Security Council nations on the Atomic Energy Commission.

Nine members voted to invite Canada to sit in, Russia voted in opposition and Poland abstained. Gromyko promptly announced that his vote was a veto, contending that the question was one of substance rather than procedure. "I consider that it is a question of procedure under the charter and so I invite the representative of Canada to take his place at the

Taft Assails Veterans' Group Fighting For OPA—Cites Effigy-Hanging Advice

St. Louisan Is Named as Leader of Campaign by AVC—Circular on Technique Quoted.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio), has singled out the American Veterans' Committee for denunciation as one of the most active organizations in the campaign for revival of the Office of Price Administration. He named Capt. Alex Effthim of St. Louis as leader of the committee's campaign.

Taft, referring to the AVC's advocacy of price controls in Senate debate last Tuesday on the OPA extension bill, read a circular entitled "AVC Techniques in Price Control Fight." It was signed by Effthim, chairman of the AVC's price control fight committee, who lives at 1016 Louisville avenue.

Taft commented that he knew Senators would "appreciate" such pointers as this, quoting the circular:

"Phone Congressmen at home and Washington at home, in office or call cloakroom—get him off the floor. Get hundreds to call incessantly."

The circular contained also a suggestion for hanging "inflationist Congressmen in effigy. Slow burn them. Good for vets."

On this point, Taft told his colleagues: "I may say I have been burned in effigy two or three places in Ohio in accordance with this advice. That has happened both in Cincinnati and in Cleveland."

Effthim, head of the Fight Inflation Committee of St. Louis, is now in Washington, having come here with what he described as a petition bearing 34,225 signatures calling for retention of the OPA.

Taft claimed that organizations are circulating "a tremendous amount of party-line propaganda" for revival of price controls. He said:

"Perhaps one of the most active of these organizations is the American Veterans' Committee. Here is a communication that I think ought to be published in full, and I shall read it. It is from the American Veterans' Committee, 201 Barr Building, Washington, D. C., dated July 4, 1946. They were all ready for the veto, apparently."

"AVC TECHNIQUES IN PRICE CONTROL FIGHT." "1. Set up sidewalk telegram booths to send night wires to Congressmen."

"2. All veterans sign with old serial numbers—Congressmen sensitive to veterans."

"3. Sell 'Taft apples' or name them after local inflationist Congressmen. In St. Louis 'Flopper apples' sold very well for 75 cents. Ties up memories of World War I veterans, the depression, the new vets and home-and-bust-to come. Good publicity get at tables; economical."

"4. Call all high prices 'Taft prices' or after local inflationist Congressmen."

"5. Swallow papers with letters to editor. Show you understand trick amendments."

"6. Picket Congressmen's places of business. (One picketed his home; it was found he did not even live in his own district! Publicity worded.)"

"7. Phone Congressmen at home."

"I know that Senators will appreciate this."

"Phone Congressmen at home and Washington at home, in office or call cloakroom—get him off the floor. National 3120. Get hundreds to call incessantly."

Tells of Being Phoned. "I have been called up on the phone two or three times. I do not mind being phoned, but I have followed in general, but it has been followed to some extent. I have seen every one of these techniques used or heard reports of them. This all comes out of the American Veterans' Committee, 201 Barr Building, Washington, D. C. The letter is signed by Alex Effthim, chairman, AVC's Price Control Fight Committee."

"8. Have people at every meeting of the council," Castillo Najera retorted.

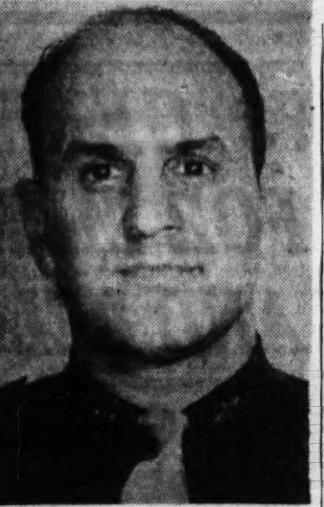

Gen. McNaughton then came forward. The proposed rules of procedure for the Atomic Energy Commission were adopted without debate.

SUBCOMMITTEE CONCLUDES TASK By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 11—With adoption of a table compiled to guide formal discussion in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, charged with eliminating atom weapons and limiting atom power to peaceful purposes, Sub-Committee No. 1 today ended operations. The report will be made public, Chairman Herbert V. Ewart of Australia said, after being submitted to the working committee of the 12-nation council during the session scheduled for 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Dr. Ewart said that the sub-committee report would recommend appointment of other small committees to devote time to formulating specific proposals for concrete action. These groups should include a specially invoked scientific and technical panel to deal with the problems of the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes and for devising a manner by which atomic information might be exchanged by the nations of the world, he said.

Another committee would concentrate on problems pertaining specifically to the subject of machinery for international supervision and inspection of atomic resources. A third would devote thought alone to legal processes by which the proposed Atomic Development Authority could be established within the framework of the United Nations as pre-

"12. Round up disabled vets—parade or display dramatically, showing what happens to their benefit allowances when prices rise."

"13. Show in same way what happens to cheap-housing program—out the window."

"14. Publicly challenge Congressmen—"

"This is good advice. I think Senators will appreciate this: 'Publicly challenge Congressmen to come out to a public questioning with radio hook-up and reporters at a meeting on issue: 'Did you or did you not vote to smash price controls?' Challenge him in every media possible. I challenge him regularly; he does not even answer, but he is awfully hot in the papers. We always put it this way: The people are frightened and worried. You owe it to them to come out and explain.'"

"The next sentence is underscored and in parenthesis: 'Then we will nail him to the wall.'"

"I think the better practice under this technique is not to go to the Senate floor. It is to go to the President's office and refuse rent increases. Stop evictions. Maximize publicity on this. It is a bitter fight and must be focused. Rents are the most important of all."

"15. Pressure all local party leaders in same ways—they react directly on Congressmen."

"16. Picket price-increasing stores swiftly and dramatically. Everything suggested on this page requires maximum publicity and ingenuity."

"17. Ask each person in your organization to write at least one letter per day for the next three weeks until a decent bill—straight price control for one year—is even live in his own district! Publicity worded."

"18. Phone Congressmen at home."

"I know that Senators will appreciate this."

"Phone Congressmen at home and Washington at home, in office or call cloakroom—get him off the floor. National 3120. Get hundreds to call incessantly."

Tells of Being Phoned. "I have been called up on the phone two or three times. I do not mind being phoned, but I have followed in general, but it has been followed to some extent. I have seen every one of these techniques used or heard reports of them. This all comes out of the American Veterans' Committee, 201 Barr Building, Washington, D. C. The letter is signed by Alex Effthim, chairman, AVC's Price Control Fight Committee."

"8. Have people at every meeting of the council," Castillo Najera retorted.

Gen. McNaughton then came forward. The proposed rules of procedure for the Atomic Energy Commission were adopted without debate.

SUBCOMMITTEE CONCLUDES TASK By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 11—With adoption of a table compiled to guide formal discussion in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, charged with eliminating atom weapons and limiting atom power to peaceful purposes, Sub-Committee No. 1 today ended operations. The report will be made public, Chairman Herbert V. Ewart of Australia said, after being submitted to the working committee of the 12-nation council during the session scheduled for 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Dr. Ewart said that the sub-committee report would recommend appointment of other small committees to devote time to formulating specific proposals for concrete action. These groups should include a specially invoked scientific and technical panel to deal with the problems of the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes and for devising a manner by which atomic information might be exchanged by the nations of the world, he said.

Another committee would concentrate on problems pertaining specifically to the subject of machinery for international supervision and inspection of atomic resources. A third would devote thought alone to legal processes by which the proposed Atomic Development Authority could be established within the framework of the United Nations as pre-

"Written in haste."

"Alex Effthim, Chairman, AVC's Price Control Fight Committee."

"I may say while speaking of the AVC that in Pittsburgh the American Veterans' Committee passed out cards to be sent to Senators on which appears the following:

"Dear Senator: I am a consumer and need OPA. Please do not stop fighting until a bill is passed without crippling amendments. I cannot accept less than a sweeping victory for OPA."

"This is a general example, Mr. President, of the type of pressure campaign that has been put on. Of course, the threat is always that the Senator or Representative's political future will be ruined and he will lose votes in the next election if he does not go along."

Barkley-Taft Colloquy. A little later in the debate the following colloquy took place between Senator Taft and Barkley, the Democratic Senate leader:

Barkley: "O, Mr. President, of course, every time Mr. Porter's name is mentioned, the Senator from Ohio hits the ceiling as if an atomic bomb were under him."

"As for the American Veterans' Committee, it is an honorable organization of World War Veterans, so far as I know. It came before the congressional committee and made a statement, and it had as much right to organize as had any other group of veterans. It has as much right to appear before the committees of Congress and to make its views known as has any other group of American citizens. In view of all the propaganda which has been disseminated on both sides of the question by all kinds of organizations, it seems to me that it is unfair to pick out one veterans' organization and denounce it because it has sought to make its impression upon the members of the Congress in regard to a controversial piece of legislation."

Taft: "Mr. President, does the Senator from Kentucky know as Mr. Alex Effthim is, who signs the letter as chairman of the committee?"

Barkley: "I do not know who he is. I assume he is an American citizen."

Taft: "If the Senator from Kentucky desires to defend the type of propaganda that is promulgated by the American Veterans' Committee, that is his privilege."

Barkley: "I have no desire to defend any particular organization, but I do say that the American Veterans' Committee has a right to present its views to the American people."

Taft: "I think it should do so respectfully and with a proper appeal to reason, and not by attempting to hang Senators in effigy."

Barkley: "Mr. President, when the Senator from Ohio speaks on appeals to reason, I am reminded that that was the title, as I recall, of one of the publications of the Communist party. Does the Senator from Ohio adopt that as his slogan?"

Taft: "Yes, Mr. President, I am always ready to adopt the slogan 'appeal to reason.'"

MIHAILOVIC VOICES HATRED FOR NAZIS IN PLEA FOR LIFE

Chetnik Chieftain Denies Collaboration Charges —Says He Was Victim

By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

BELGRADE, July 11 (AP)—The trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovic moved toward its climax today following the former Yugoslav war minister's final plea for his life, in which he voiced "an absolute hatred for the Germans" and denied charges that he had collaborated with them.

In a four-hour address yesterday to the war crimes tribunal before which he and 23 co-defendants are on trial, Mihailovic reviewed his career as leader of the Chetniks and asked the court "to be fair in its evaluation of my work."

"I do not say that I made no mistakes, but everyone was making mistakes," Mihailovic declared as he pictured for the tribunal the "whirlpool of events and difficulties" with which he was confronted.

The Chetnik chieftain, hailed by the Allied world as the leader of Yugoslav resistance forces in 1941, referred frequently to his notes as he sought to refute the testimony of prosecution witnesses that his men had fought side by side with the Germans against Marshal Tito's partisans.

He declared that he had "never made an agreement with any enemy," that he had always maintained a hostile attitude toward the Germans and had fought constantly for the Balkan unity of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Albania, Romania, Greece and Hungary.

"I was in favor of a Balkan union because I felt that through it a greater state could be forged," he said.

Pleading that he had been swept into the confusion of political intrigue when his only interest was to drive out the Germans, Mihailovic asserted that "events turned against me as (against) no other man."

He ended his plea by declaring: "I am a soldier. I organized resistance against the Germans. I am sorry that anyone could think that I was not being loyal to my country."

RENT CURBS HOLD ON HOUSES BUILT UNDER VETERANS ACT

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—An official of the Federal Housing Administration said yesterday the agency had authority to fix maximum rents on dwellings built under the Veterans Emergency Housing Act despite the lapse of OPA rent controls.

Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt said last week there was no question about FHA's power to set maximum prices on new houses, but there was some doubt about legality of fixing maximum rents.

Since then, an official of the agency told a reporter, FHA attorneys have decided the Moore amendment to the Second War Relocation Act does not apply to the Veterans Housing Act. The amendment was aimed at preventing OPA from fixing prices under any law other than the price control act.

Steelman Urges Deep Cut In Army, Navy Spending

"But today, we are threatened with the loss of the controls which we have used to maintain stabilization and to protect production."

"We stand at the crossroads," he said, "we must choose now whether we shall move forward through the final stages of re-conversion with effective price and wage controls, or whether we are prepared to take the risk of abandoning such controls at a time when supply and demand still are radically out of balance."

"After World War I, we came to this same crossroads and took the wrong turning. We have managed things better this time, and our production has increased far more rapidly under price controls than it did after the last war when all controls were removed."

Subsidies 'Indispensable.' Steelman reviewing the arguments against the price control bill voiced by Truman, asserted that subsidies are an "indispensable" part of price regulation, and that in any new act, OPA must have the power to make dealers absorb some of the higher costs paid by manufacturers.

He acknowledged it is "eminently desirable" that Congress fix policies for the lifting of price controls. OPA would "welcome," he said, the aid of a board—such as that proposed in the vetoed act—which would decide when specific ceilings should be removed.

In the April-May-June quarter, Steelman said consumers' purchases rose by two billion dollars over the preceding quarter and this "may have been wholly due to price rises." Department store sales were double those of the same period in 1941, he said, yet shortages persisted because of terrific consumer demand and the failure of some industries—automobiles, refrigerators, among others—to come close to prewar output.

"Shortages will continue for the rest of this year," he predicted. Without any question, the inflationary excess of demand over supply cannot be eliminated in the remaining months of 1946."

FOOD—Consumption of meats, vegetables and milk is well above 1941 and in general shortages will continue through the year.

JOBS—"One of the most encouraging aspects of our reconversion effort," unemployment has stayed low despite heavy discharges of soldiers and sailors, while the military labor force has climbed to 57,000, 000. Labor contracts which have been signed this year should insure capacity operations throughout the remainder of this year, unless a precipitate rise in prices provokes reopening of the contracts. Discussions of industrial relations, Steelman said, "is just as hard and just as impractical to prescribe iron-bound rules of behavior in the dealings between labor and management as it would be to prescribe them for husbands and wives."

INCOME—Total income paid to individuals during the first three months of this year was at an annual rate of 157 billions, less the 2.5 per cent below the booming wartime level.

MATERIALS—"Serious shortages" of iron, steel, copper, lead and tin, caused in large part by strikes. Now production is rising rapidly.

FAMINE RELIEF—Americans still must conserve food, for Europe will need help for "at least another year." This means, for the consumer, continued shortages of cereals and meats; for the farmer, "a continued high demand for food."

TEXTILES AND CLOTHING—Woolens and rayons are coming in all-time record yardage, cotton production is rising but production "is no match for today's heavy demand for fabrics and men's suits."

Manufacture of men's suits has doubled since last summer, he reported, and is now passing the 1941 annual production rate of 23 million a year, previous all-time high.

The Civilian Production Administration, through the United States Commercial Corporation, is arranging to import Japanese silk suitable for men's suit linings.

In April, about 54 million pairs of women's stockings of all types were made. No greater rate of production of stockings than in April may be expected in 1946.

HOUSING—Through May, the country was 34 per cent along the way toward its goal of 1,200,000 new dwellings started in 1946; total construction is at a higher level than at any time since 1943, when war construction was at its height. Construction activity of all kinds is proceeding at a fast pace than was thought possible earlier in the year.

At the same time the demand for housing is enormous. This has been a disturbing factor in the nation's fight against inflation, for as the need for houses has risen, so have the prices of houses already on the market. Evictions in the case of sales are sharply increasing, adding a further burden to the rental market.

PICKETS ENCIRCLE MACY'S NEW YORK STORE; SALES CUT

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—The huge R. H. Macy department store operated today with from 10 to 20 per cent of its sales force and its customer volume slashed in half as striking CIO delivery men encircled the Herald Square building with pickets.

Jack Altman, executive vice president of the CIO United Department Store, Delivery and Interior Employees of Greater New York, said managers of all department store locals in the union would meet this afternoon to determine what support will be given "to the strike of the about 1000 delivery men employed by the United Parcel Service for Macy deliveries."

The Macy store normally employed 11,000 workers, including 3400 in the sales force. The striking delivery men recently were transferred by the store to the United Parcel Service. They were members of the CIO United Department Store Union but this week voted to go into the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 138.

Leonard Geiger, a spokesman for the CIO union, said the strike was against Macy's for not transferring its existing contract with CIO union Local 1 when U.P.S. took over its delivery fleet and against U.P.S. for insisting on Local 804 membership for the transferred men.

ALBANIANS AIDED BY GREEK LEFTISTS IN BORDER ATTACK

ATHENS, July 11 (AP)—Dispatches from the Albanian frontier today reported that Greek troops had repelled a new series of attacks on frontier posts by Albanian forces.

The latest attacks were made at Kakavia and Krostovital by superior and heavily armed Albanian troops. It was reported Greek guards took seven prisoners during the fighting, in which the Albanians were assisted by members of the E.L.A.S. military arm of the E.A.M. coalition of Greek leftist parties, the dispatches added.

HOUSE BARS SENATE SILVER COMPROMISE

CITIZENS' GROUP TO SEEK STEPS TO ASSURE SUPPLY OF SMOKELESS FUEL

Laclede Prefers to Sell Coke Here, Utility Head Says — Promises to Try to Boost Domestic Output.

The Citizens' Fuel Committee has voted unanimously to take any steps necessary to assure a sufficient supply of all forms of smokeless fuel, as a result of the concern aroused by the recent diversion of household coke to a blast furnace by Laclede Gas Light Co.

A pledge by Laclede to do all it could to increase the supply of domestic coke was received by the committee, which had intended to inquire into the question of whether Laclede was curtailing the supply in favor of various industrial users. This promise was regarded by the committee as an outstanding factor in the effort to overcome a threatened deficiency of smokeless fuel for next winter.

A statement was issued today by L. Wade Childress, president of Laclede, specifically declaring the gas company's preference to sell its domestic coke in St. Louis.

"Laclede does not seek outside markets for its domestic coke," he said. "It prefers to sell this fuel in St. Louis for many reasons, both civic and economic. Its fixed policy will be to supply to the St. Louis market as large a supply of coke as production facilities and Government directives permit."

As a citizen of St. Louis, the company supports the drive to eliminate smoke. As a seller of smokeless fuels, it has a particular interest in doing so.

While the fuel committee met with Mayor A. P. Kaufmann yesterday, the Mayor received official notice that the Civilian Production Administration intended to order Laclede to resume diversion of coke to a Koppers Co. furnace at Granite City.

Effect of Diversion Minimized. However, James L. Ford Jr., vice chairman of the fuel committee and chairman of the Citizens' Smoke Elimination Committee, said he had come to the conclusion that this diversion would not have as serious an effect as was feared at first. He said the decision by Laclede to concentrate its coke as much as possible hereafter in the local domestic market was of far greater importance.

Ford told the fuel committee that Childress had notified him yesterday afternoon that Laclede "would do everything within the bounds of reason to build up a supply of domestic coke, to be furnished as has been customary in the past through dealers of our city."

Childress authorized him to say, Ford continued, that fuel dealers could disregard previous word to the contrary. This was a reference to a letter to dealers last week by Laclede's coke sales agent that, due to the Koppers diversion, no more of the common furnace grade of coke would be available for the retail trade this year.

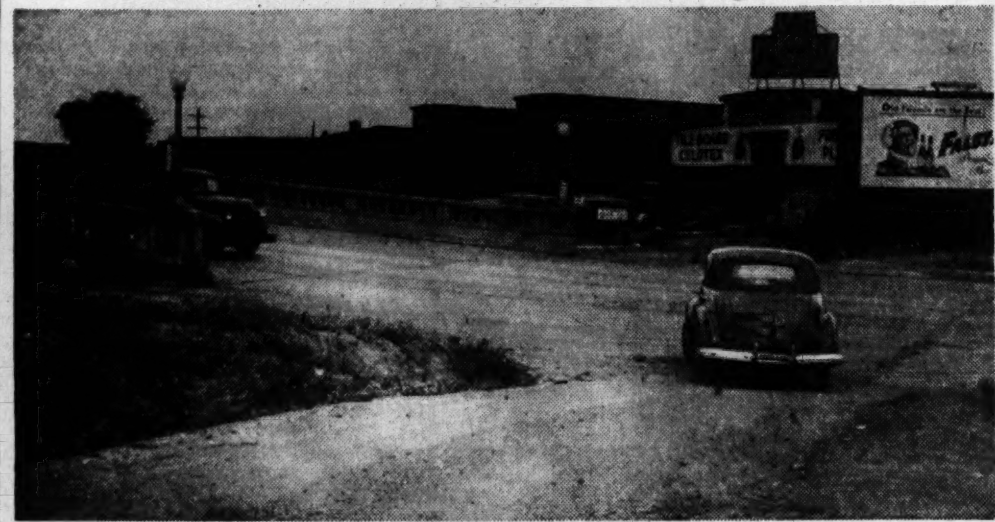

"This information is good news for our city," said Ford. "Mr. Childress stated that we would have the full co-operation of the (gas) company in the abatement of the smoke problem. I think we should feel grateful to the company for this co-operation."

CPA had directed Koppers to start a second blast furnace, because of a pig iron shortage. In response to the Mayor's request that the city be heard concerning its need for smokeless fuel before Laclede was ordered to restore the blast furnace, John A. Claussen, head of the CPA steel division, telegraphed Kaufmann yesterday as follows:

"Necessity for diversion of small quantity of coke is such that it is impossible to hold up issuing directive (that is, an order on Laclede to send coke to Koppers). Coke is needed for pig iron for veterans' housing program, which we understand is urgently needed in St. Louis as well as other places. Amount (of coke) diverted is not in excess of similar diversions during war period."

Limit of Diversion Tonnage. When Ford learned of the diversion to Koppers last week he was not informed of the tonnage involved. It developed later that the volume was limited to not more than 2000 tons a month and that Laclede hoped this demand would be by about Jan. 1. On that basis, Ford explained today, only about 12,000 tons might be diverted, or 1.3 per cent of the estimated annual demand for all smokeless solid fuels here.

Controversy Rises Again on Opening Of Bischoff Avenue to Kingshighway

The intersection of Bischoff avenue with Kingshighway looking east.

West of Kingshighway, Bischoff avenue, if extended, would cross the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks at this point.

Two Large Firms Oppose Plan, Another Seeks Outlet for the 'Hill'—Traffic Hazard Cited.

The 37-year-old question of whether to open Bischoff avenue to traffic between South Kingshighway and Hereford street is coming to a head, amidst a storm of controversy.

Opponents to the proposal say a traffic hazard would be created at the southern end of the Kingshighway viaduct, where Bischoff would intersect. In addition, they maintain, a dangerous railroad crossing would have to be established on Bischoff.

Those who want that section of Bischoff opened are chiefly residents of the "Hill," who say they need a traffic outlet into Kingshighway.

The entire matter, which dates from 1909, is under study by President Milton M. Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, who expects to announce a decision in a few days after a conference with the legal department.

On Jan. 27, 1910, after months of discussion, the Board of Aldermen authorized the opening of Bischoff from Kingshighway to Cooper street (now Marconi). Suit to condemn the property was filed the following November, but a final judgment was not obtained until May 12, 1920.

An ordinance was adopted June 20, 1942, for grading and paving Bischoff from Kingshighway west to Hereford. The WPA had paved the street from Hereford west to Marconi several years previously.

A paving contract was let in late 1942, but later was canceled because of war conditions.

On file is a letter from Samuel W. Greenland of the Public Service Co., who said "the traffic flow into and out of Kingshighway would create a very dangerous and hazardous situation."

The American Stove Co. favors the proposal because a number of its employees who live to the west on the "Hill" want the street improved. The other two companies have made known their opposition.

On file is a letter from Samuel W. Greenland of the Public Service Co., who said "the traffic flow into and out of Kingshighway would create a very dangerous and hazardous situation."

The people on the "Hill" say Wilson did not help them much because it went under the viaduct. They want a street to take them into Kingshighway without driving south to Southwest or north to Shaw avenue.

BUS CATCHES FIRE; ONE KILLED, 3 HURT

Kansas City-St. Louis Coach Driven Against Railing After Brakes Fail.

One man was killed and three others were injured today when a Greyhound bus en route from Kansas City to St. Louis caught fire following an explosion near Mineola, Mo., and the driver drove against a bridge railing after the brakes failed.

Sgt. W. E. Grammer of the State Patrol said the dead man had cards in his wallet bearing the name "Max Edgar Heckert." He is thought to have been from Kansas City, Grammer said.

Two passengers were taken to the Boone County Hospital at Columbia. They were Mrs. Homer Powers of Sioux City, Ia., who suffered severe bruises and sprains, and Raymond Tipton of Columbia, who suffered burns and shock.

The driver, John R. Thompson, 3127 Locust street, suffered minor burns, but did not require medical treatment.

Thompson told Grammer the bus was descending a hill about one half mile west of Mineola on Highway 40, when he heard an explosion. In the rear view mirror he saw flames shooting from around the left rear wheels, he said, and applied the brakes. They failed to hold, apparently because the air line was burned or broken, and he crashed the bus into the bridge railing.

One of the seven passengers, Pfc. John O. McEntire of Wadsworth, Wash., told the Post-Dispatch that when the bus stopped the front door was jammed against the bridge railing and the emergency exit door was blocked by flames inside the vehicle.

Thompson broke out the windshield and other passengers broke windows for emergency exits. Mineola is about 80 miles west of St. Louis.

NOLTE TURNS DOWN $73 PAY INCREASE FROM MERIT BOARD

Doesn't Want It, and, Besides, It Would Be Illegal, He Says.

Comptroller Louis Nolte declined today a pay increase of $73 a month which had been offered him by the Civil Service Commission.

Insisting that he wouldn't accept the increase anyway, Nolte pointed out that it would be illegal, and that the inclusion of his name in the list of the city employees whose salaries would be increased was apparently an error.

The salaries of elected officers cannot be increased during their terms of office. Under a pay increase bill approved by the Civil Service Commission Tuesday, the Comptroller was listed as one of those whose salary would be increased from $687 to $740 a month. The bill was returned to the commission by the Legislation Committee of the board yesterday to consider larger increases for lower-paid employees.

DRIVERS' LICENSE APPLICATION BLANKS TO BE READY SOON

New application blanks for state drivers' licenses will be printed and distributed as rapidly as possible, and when they are ready drivers will be given notice to make application for their licenses, the State Department of Revenue said today.

As a result of adoption of the new Constitution, all of the old drivers' licenses expired last June 30. Licenses which expired on that date were extended until further notice, however, under an order issued June 12 by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

U. S. QUESTIONS ST. LOUISAN'S WAR SURPLUS DEALINGS

Hans Wachsmuth Jr. Tells of Inquiry by Investigators—Says Record Is Clean.

Hans Wachsmuth Jr., former St. Louis county tavern operator and deputy constable, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that his recent activities as agent in purchase of surplus war property was being investigated by government agents.

He said he had conferred with some of the government investigators in Dallas, Tex., and had exhibited to them files of correspondence on his dealings, and that he also had discussed his activities with other federal agents here. He had arranged to have a further conference with the St. Louis investigators today.

Wachsmuth, who is 29 years old, declined to tell the extent of his operations in acquisition of war surplus goods, or the amount of his profits, if any.

"My record is clean," he insisted, however. "My deals were all on the level."

Among things in which he dealt, while operating at Washington, D. C., he said, were cigarettes and peanuts.

He said he had been associated in some dealings with William Protzman of St. Louis, brother-in-law of Postmaster-General Robert E. Hannegan, St. Louisan. He would not discuss these transactions.

One matter which Wachsmuth mentioned was an agreement which he said he made with a St. Louis merchandise dealer, which called for buying 200,000 pairs of shoes from the Government at $1.05 a pair. However, he refused to say whether this deal had been consummated.

During the war, Wachsmuth related, he had worked on war plant construction for the Kaiser Industries and on war housing construction. He is staying at present at the home of his parents in the vicinity of Affton, St. Louis county. He was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Representative from the county in 1940, at which time he resided at 7420 Lansdowne avenue, Shrewsbury. He was in the retail ice cream business then and had managed boys' and girls' softball teams.

JUDGE CITES PREJUDICE ACTS AGAINST ANTI-SMITH GROUP

Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro said today he had received numerous pamphlets yesterday designed to prejudice him against 22 defendants who were arrested at Kiel Auditorium June 28 after they had protested against the Gerald L. K. Smith meeting.

He said he received a bulky envelope containing pamphlets issued by a number of organizations which had opposed the Smith meeting. The pamphlets were marked to indicate the opposition to the Smith meeting was chiefly from Communist sources.

One pamphlet issued by the American Youth for Democracy "Keep America Free from Gerald L. K. Smith, No. 1 Fascist" had this comment, "These are commies hiding behind this name." A handbill issued by the Communist party bore the comment "Here they come out bold."

The defendants are charged with general and individual peace disturbance and resisting arrest.

VETERANS' CENTER AID NOT DROPPED, CHEST HEAD SAYS

Funds Might Be Borrowed or Contributed Partly From Reserve Amounts, Kirk E. Latta Asserts.

If the board of directors of the Community Chest of Greater St. Louis desires to do so it can furnish adequate financial support for the Veterans' Service Center this year, Kirk E. Latta, executive director of the Chest, declared today.

Furthermore, Latta said he already had suggested that the board of the Veterans' Center prepare a request for Chest funds for 1947, to be included in the campaign for funds this fall.

Previously, Latta had written William K. Moors, director of the Veterans' Center, that the Chest has no funds with which to make a further contribution toward support of the Center during the current year. The Center is supported jointly by city and Community Chest, formerly War Chest, funds. The Chest, having reviewed the Center's budget for the first half of 1946, previously contributed $30,161.

City financial support of the Center for the last half of this year is predicated on an additional contribution of $17,388 by the Community Chest. Latta said yesterday that the $30,161 given earlier was considered by the Chest to be the final contribution for this year.

Today, however, Latta declared that "the Community Chest has not closed the door on support of the Veterans' Center. There is no intention on the part of the Community Chest board to drop the Veterans' Center as one of its agencies."

At least two possibilities exist for making up the $17,388 the Veterans' Center is short in its current budget, Latta said. The Community Chest can vote to borrow this amount until after its campaign for funds next fall. Or the Chest can contribute a part of this amount out of a reserve contingent fund — which is not, however, large enough to support the full amount, Latta said — immediately after the fund-raising campaign in October.

A decision on support of the Veterans' Center will be up to the board of the Community Chest and to the Chest's budget committee, Latta said. He said the budget committee has not yet had an opportunity to review the Veterans' Center budget for the last half of this year, but would do so in the near future.

Additional support of the Veterans' Center was not included in the Community Chest allotment of funds previously, Latta said, because no request for further funds had been received from the Center until recently. The Center's budget had been prepared in two six-month periods, and preparation of the budget for the last half of the year was held up pending the recent appointment of a new director, Moors.

Yesterday, Frank C. Rand, president of the Community Chest, declared there had been some discussion of continued support of the Veterans' Center among board members.

"We've got to cut down on some of these war activities," Rand said. "Some of us think the war is over."

When the War Chest, predecessor of the Community Chest, was engaged in a fund-raising campaign last October, Cyrus Crane Willmore, general chairman of the drive, characterized persons able to give, but who withheld their aid because the war was over as "damned poor citizens of St. Louis."

He also said that "I doubt if ever in the history of our country we have had more humbug than 'the war's over.'"

Much of the argument for giving in the Chest drive was based on the need of returning veterans. Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann called the veterans' needs "primary," in urging Chest support. Samuel C. McCluney, chairman of the War Chest finance committee, declared that failure to put the drive over the top would be "letting down the boys returning from the war."

Rand himself signed a statement published last Sept. 25, stating that gifts to the drive should be generous to aid in the readjustment of returning veterans. The same day John L. Donnell, speaking at a War Chest campaign meeting, described the importance of the Veterans' Service Center as a War Chest agency.

"Welcome Home" Gift. John A. Bush, president of the Brown Shoe Co., presented his firm's gift of $25,000 to the drive Oct. 9 with the statement that "this is a 'welcome home' gift to our St. Louis service men... our investment in the future in maintaining the local social agencies offering sympathetic understanding and handling of veterans' problems."

A similar statement was made by John L. Wilson, president of the St. Louis Public Service Co., in presenting that firm's gift of $25,000. "This year we take special pride in our corporate dona-

SEVEN CONVICTED IN BLACK MARKET ON USED AUTOS

Former St. Louisan Among Those Charged With $3,000,000 Illegal Profits.

DETROIT, July 11 (AP)—Seven men accused of conspiring to violate Office of Price Administration price ceilings in the sale of used automobiles were convicted today by an all-woman jury in United States District Court.

The jury deliberated the Government's allegations that the group conspired in a scheme netting $3,000,000 in illegal profits. The jury reached its decision at 12:05 p.m. after deliberating an hour and 30 minutes.

Found guilty were Ben Fishel, 33 years old, of Cairo, Ill., a former St. Louisan; Noble Dick, 37, Murray, Ky.; John D. Lovins, 35, and John C. W. Nelson, 45, Paducah, Ky.; Henton Farley, 37, and Gordon Ivy, Benton, Ky., and Edd West, Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Altogether, the OPA accused 31 men of participating in the conspiracy in used automobile sales in auction lots in Cairo, Ill., and Murray, Ky. OPA described the alleged conspiracy as the "biggest black market" of the war.

Twenty-two defendants pleaded guilty, seven chose to stand trial claiming innocence, and the cases of two others remained to be handled. The men face maximum sentences of two years in prison, $10,000 fine, or both.

tion to the War Chest, for this year's contribution is primarily for use in our own community... financing the vital War Chest agencies serving local needs and aiding St. Louis service men and veterans."

Other War Chest agencies were invited to be members of the Community Chest this spring when the War Chest was liquidated, but no such invitation was extended to the Veterans' Service Center. Latta said this was because the Center was regarded as a fairly temporary agency.

"But we have not cast the Veterans' Center out in the cold," Latta added.

The city's contribution toward the Veterans' Center for the last half of this year, $20,970, has been approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. An ordinance appropriating this amount is pending in the Board of Aldermen.

73 AMERICANS TO GET BRITISH DECORATIONS; ONE ST. LOUISAN

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—For their services in the war, 73 United States fighting men from private to major general will receive British decorations today on behalf of King George VI.

Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, will present the awards at a ceremony in the British embassy.

Among the recipients is Maj. Woodrow C. Herbert of St. Louis, who is to be made an honorary member of the Order of the British Empire.

the extent of May's activities in behalf of certain munitions makers.

Offered as evidence by Committee Counsel George Meader, it covered a telephone conversation between May and Hardy May 7, 1945, on a cutback in an eight-inch shell contract.

A friend of mine.

In it, May was quoted as saying at the outset that he had just seen "a friend of mine"—Henry Garson. He told Gen. Hardy that Garson had informed him of the cutback for the Batavia Metal Products Co. order for shell production and said, "I am not interested in the company; he is a friend of mine."

Gen. Hardy was recorded as breaking in on the conversation to say that Henry J. Kaiser also was cut back on his eight-inch shell contract, that he was "knocked down even more" than Garson.

May then declared, the transcript showed, that the War Department decision was "hard on a fellow," and suggested that Ordinance consider Garson for another type of contract.

Further Remarks by May.

May, who has denied that he profited in any way from his activities on behalf of Garson, then was recorded as having told Hardy:

"Let me assure you of one thing: Mr. Garson wasn't complaining. . . . He is mighty appreciative of what your branch has done for him."

Gen. Hardy testified that Batavia was the second highest cost producer of eight-inch shells. Unit costs, he said, ranged from a low of $26.46 to a high of $51.41, with Batavia's average at $41.28 per shell.

He agreed that "other things being equal" any cutback program the higher cost producer would be cut back first. However, he told the committee, "other things were never equal," citing manpower as one of the major deciding factors.

15,000-Shell Cutback.

In this instance, he said, Batavia was cut back from 25,000 shells a month to 10,000 a month. He said the Babcock Printing Press Co. of New London, Conn., the highest cost producer, was cut from 6,000 to 4,000.

Gen. Hardy, still in uniform, insisted that Army Ordnance gave the Garson interests no better treatment than that accorded others.

He denied, in reply to questions by Meader, that the Batavia Metal Products Co. had been given a $10,000,000 contract for producing shells "on instructions from Washington."

Gen. Hardy testified in similar vein yesterday, saying he could recall no case in which May interceded to give preferential treatment for the Garson companies. He said merely that May had exercised "influence" to obtain "equal opportunity" for the firms.

Convinced of 'Influence.'

He said he became convinced late in the fall of 1944 or early in 1945 that influence was being employed in behalf of the Batavia company.

Gen. Hardy asserted he would furnish the committee memoranda on which this conclusion was based. He offered first a notation relating to a telephone conversation between May and Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, then Chief of Ordnance, but his testimony was cut short by a committee recess for the day.

May Not Expected to Appear.

Meanwhile, Counsel Meader expressed doubt that any action would be taken toward compelling May's appearance as a formal witness. It is probable, Meader told a reporter, that May could not be required to appear, even by Congressional action.

Meader said that when Hardy finishes his testimony, the committee planned to hear Pettit attorney, Jacobson was to be questioned about a reported $1,000,000 overpayment to Batavia by the Army. The Garson firms obtained $78,000,000 in war contracts. This "overpayment" stemmed from a $4,500,000 advance to Batavia in May of last year—part of which was repaid in the form of deliveries until contract termination left more than $1,000,000 outstanding.

Hardy testified yesterday he went to Chicago in March, 1944, on instructions from Gen. Campbell to inquire into a complaint that the Batavia company was being treated unfairly by the Chicago Ordnance District in the awarding of contracts.

Gen. Campbell informed him, Gen. Hardy related, that someone had phoned him to convey the complaint. "My impression was that it was Mr. May," the witness said.

"Would you call that outside influence?" a member asked.

"In a minor way, yes."

Gen. Hardy said he found "a lot of smoke and little fire" in connection with the complaint.

When Gen. Hardy referred again to "influence," Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, asked, "Influence to do what?"

"Most of these memoranda indicate," the general replied, "that the company thought it wasn't getting a fair share of work or it was not getting top priorities on manpower or machine tools, or there were cutbacks."

"Wasn't it influence to give them a break?" he was asked.

"It was usually expressed as giving as good a break or equal treatment with the others," Gen. Hardy replied. "That's all they got."

CIO Move to Halt Red Feud.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The CIO announced yesterday that preliminary steps have been taken to merge its furniture workers and woodworkers unions, a move that may cool off a feud over alleged Communism within the furniture workers group.

BARKLEY SEEKS FINAL VOTE TODAY ON OPA MEASURE

calculated to bring on a filibuster by Southern opponents of FEPC. O'Daniel conceded that the amendment might be killed without extensive debate by a motion to table it.

Barkley told reporters he believed the administration has sufficient strength to beat the last of a series of major amendments designed to relax controls over prices if they are restored.

This is a proposal by Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio), to give manufacturers their July 1 to 15, 1946, price level, plus the average rise in production costs since then. A similar amendment was described by President Truman as the "most damaging" provision of the OPA extension bill he vetoed.

Barkley told reporters he still was hopeful of getting a price control revival measure that the President could sign.

"We got a better bill than either the Senate or House passed last time from a conference," Barkley said. "Maybe we can still improve on that this time."

Another administration lieutenant said, however, President Truman would balk again unless some way is found to overturn Senate action barring future price ceilings on many items important in the cost of living.

Senate amendments adopted yesterday and the votes by which they were approved follow:

Exemption from price control of milk and dairy products, by Senator Wherry (Rep.), Nebraska, 51 to 47. Senator Donnell (Rep., Missouri) voted for the amendment. Senator Briggs (Dem.), Missouri, voted against it; Senator Brooks (Rep.), Illinois, voted for and Senator Lucas (Dem.), Illinois, against.

Exemption for cottonseed, soybeans and their products, by Senator Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, 42 to 34. Donnell and Briggs both voted against the amendment, as did Lucas; Brooks was for it.

Exemption for petroleum and its products as long as a domestic board finds supply exceeds domestic demand, by Senator Moore (Rep.), Oklahoma, 40 to 30. Donnell voted for it and Briggs against it; Brooks was for the amendment and Lucas was not recorded as voting.

The meat and poultry exemption was adopted Tuesday.

Yesterday the Senate rejected, 32 to 40, an amendment by Senator Reed (Rep.), Kansas to exempt grains and their by-products. Donnell voted for this proposal, Briggs against it; Brooks voted for and Lucas against it.

Possibly Rent Control Only.

Across the Capitol, Representative Wolcott of Michigan, senior Republican on the House Banking Committee, told reporters "it appears that only rent control will remain" when Congress and the President finish their battle over OPA. He said a motion in the House to conciliate all Senate actions might prevail.

Both Senators McMahon (Dem.), Connecticut, and Mead (Dem.), New York, warned of a presidential veto at yesterday's session which lasted until after 8 o'clock. McMahon said his colleagues were "rapidly writing a bill that the President can do nothing but veto."

Mead said the President was right in his first OPA veto and would be forced again to select "no bill at all" in preference to a "bill that attempts to control the price controllers rather than the prices."

"There has been so much backscratching it has resulted in a situation which would exhaust all the liniment in Washington," remarked Barkley, noting the support which Senators interested in one particular item gave to those seeking exemption for other items.

Barkley warned there would be nothing left to the price control legislation "except plastic and metals" if the Senate exempts broad classes of commodities.

GROCERIES, 2 BIG DAIRIES PICKETED BY HOUSEWIVES

he voted for Price Control—Haw." Workers at the two dairy companies, who were outside the plants, laughed and joked with the pickets as they paraded in tight circles in front of main entrances. At the Schulz market, they found the store closed, but picketed regardless in front of windows bearing signs: "Meat—All You Want," and "Laundry Soap." One housewife reported Schulz sold beef steak at $1.50 a pound recently and only lately reduced the price to $1.15.

At Moll's the pickets met groups of sympathetic housewives, who stopped the picket line to inquire its purpose. Many expressions of indignation against inflated prices followed. Error in picketing Moll's the women checked on reported price inflation in the store. They said steaming meat was being sold as boneless beef shoulder at 72 cents a pound several days ago and today was 82 cents a pound.

Under the OPA, the price, they said, was about 35 cents.

The St. Louis Consumers' Federation officials said it represented about 20 organizations, and the Fight Inflation Committee of officers said that group contained representatives from about 56 civic and labor organizations.

Restaurant Prices Up.

A superficial survey of some restaurants in St. Louis today disclosed that dinners once ranging from $1.75 to $3 are now listed on menus at $2.25 to $3.50. Sandwiches have been increased 5 cents each. Prices of milk per half pint in some of the smaller restaurants have gone up one cent to compensate for the 1½ cent increase per quart charged by the dairies to take care of the removal of the subsidy to producers, which was discontinued with the death of OPA.

Receipts of livestock at National City Stockyards today were above those of a week ago, the market holding steady with yesterday's receipts.

There were 2200 head of sheep received today as compared with 2500 yesterday and about 2200 a week ago. Prices per hundred-weight, however, reached a new top. Sheep brought $20, which is the highest price since 1920.

Cattle receipts totaled 3200 today, 4000 yesterday and 1600 a week ago. Price of good steers today jumped 50 cents over yesterday's price, equaling the $21.50 of Tuesday. A total of 1900 calves were received. They brought $20.50, the same yesterday. Hogs received totaled 5500 and sold at $18.25, which is 50 cents above yesterday's price.

Price Advice by Grocers.

Louis Tessler, secretary of the East St. Louis Retail Grocers' Association, announced that letters had been sent to all 250 members urging them to advise customers to refrain from buying food items that are priced too high. He said the purpose of the move was to avert a buyers' strike. Many grocers in St. Louis have advised customers not to buy at inflated prices.

Large packers throughout the area, who on Tuesday entered the competitive bidding for livestock, have recalled more than 1246 of their employees, who were laid off prior to the expiration of OPA controls. The layoff, they said, was necessitated by their inability to operate under OPA ceilings.

Those who recalled workers and the numbers recalled are: Armour & Co., 300 of the 600 laid off; Swift & Co., several hundred; Hunter Packing Co., 340 of 390; Krey Packing Co., 400; American Packing Co., 35 of 40; Heli Packing Co., 100, plus 25 new employees; Sileoff Packing Co., all 41 were recalled; and smaller packing concerns also have sent out notices to employees to return to work. Officials of the United States Employment Service said they had received no report of other fields having been affected by the removal of OPA.

Members of the St. Louis Hotel Association, which announced its members would not raise prices immediately, were expected to discuss informally the possibility of increasing prices this afternoon.

John K. Bryan, secretary, said the hotels were being squeezed considerably by the increased costs of food. Hotels in New York announced today that prices would be increased 10 per cent.

The St. Louis Industrial Union Council yesterday passed a resolution calling for a mass meeting in the Opera House of Kiel Auditorium to protest against the removal of OPA and the inflationary trend adopted by some merchants. No date has been set for the meeting.

GUATEMALAN THREAT OF BREAK 'EXTRAORDINARY,' BRITISH SAY

LONDON, July 11 (UP)—A Guatemalan threat to sever diplomatic relations with Britain unless British Honduras is returned to Guatemala was described yesterday by a Foreign Office spokesman as "very extraordinary."

Guatemala City reports Sunday quoted President Juan Jose Arana as saying: "We seek restitution of Belize (British Honduras) through diplomatic channels, but if we fail we will break relations with Great Britain. We cannot go on drinking champagne with an empire that retains territory that is ours."

The Foreign Office spokesman said Britain had offered to submit the case to the International Court of Justice, but Guatemala still had not replied to the offer.

NUERNBERG, July 11 (UP)—Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering planned to neutralize and eventually seize Gibraltar by the heaviest artillery siege ever laid to such a fortress, according to secret German records revealed today.

Guns were prepared and massed on the Spanish border in the winter of 1940-41 for the attack. The force included 600 88-millimeter guns, "some" 80-centimeter special railway guns and "many" 60-centimeter guns. In addition, there were advance elements of an infantry force of 15 divisions, including two paratroop divisions.

(An 80-centimeter gun would fire a shell nearly a yard in diameter.)

Goering was within hours of being ready to move through Spain and besiege Gibraltar as the first step of a plan for a gigantic pincers on Suez and the entire Mediterranean.

But Adolf Hitler chose instead to attack Russia.

TRUMAN OBJECTS TO ARMY VOICE IN ATOM CONTROL

President Said to Prefer Bill Passed by Senate for Domestic Development.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—President Truman intervened in an attempt to prevent the Army from having any say about domestic control of atomic energy.

House Rules Committee was told today.

Chairman Andrew J. May (Dem., Kentucky, and Representative J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., New Jersey, of the House Military Affairs Committee, said their group last year approved an Army-drafted atomic energy control bill which the Army later repudiated in favor of a bill giving full control to a civilian commission.

Thomas told the Rules Committee he thought Truman sent a letter to Secretary of War Patterson telling him he wanted the civilian control bill which later was passed by the Senate.

"The Secretary of War told us last year that the bill before us was the best bill he could possibly think of," Thomas said.

That bill would have made it permissible for the President to appoint military personnel on the control commission.

"Then he (the secretary of war) came back to our committee the second time — just about two weeks ago — and told us he thought this bill (the Senate bill) is the best he could think of," Thomas said.

"Of course, the Secretary of War is under the Commander in Chief," May interrupted.

"Yes," and he's a good soldier," Thomas said.

The committee heard May and Thomas on legislation prepared by the Military Committee to control and develop atomic energy. It is the second bill drafted by the group.

GOERING MASSED NAZI ARTILLERY TO SMASH GIBRALTAR

VICTIM'S WIDOW SAVES 3 KILLERS FROM EXECUTION

Woman Tells Judge She Doesn't Believe in Capital Punishment—Men Get Life.

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—A widow's mercy saved three convicted murderers from the electric chair yesterday.

Preparing to sentence three gunmen for killing Al (Bummy) Davis, Brooklyn boxer, King's County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz looked toward the fighter's widow.

"Mrs. Davis, I have the power to send these men to the chair," the judge said. "What are your wishes?"

She bowed her head for a moment. Then her answer came: "I don't believe in capital punishment. Whatever you decide to do will be all right with me."

She turned away from the three thugs who had murdered the father of her 3-year-old child. The judge gave each of them a sentence of life imprisonment.

"The sentence means that each of you will die in prison unless some chicken-hearted governor lets you out," he informed the killers—John Romano, 23 years old; Vincent Giarrappa, 23, and Russell Donohoe, 24, all of Brooklyn.

Lavis was killed last November when he attempted to block a holdup at a Brooklyn tavern.

NEW INCOME TAX TO ALLOW CITY TO BALANCE BUDGET

It Will Eliminate Estimated $1,650,000 Deficit but Won't Provide for Trash Collection.

The new municipal income tax, expected to produce about $4,000,000 in additional municipal revenue annually, will permit the balancing of the budget for the current fiscal year. It will not, however, permit added municipal services advocated by Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann in his annual message to the Board of Aldermen. Budget Director E. G. Shubkegel said today.

The new revenue will eliminate an estimated $1,650,000 deficit, provide for salary increases totaling $2,100,000 to city employees and allow about $250,000 for municipal services curtailed because of lack of revenue.

It will not meet an estimated annual cost of $600,000 for the operation of a retirement plan for city employees, or an annual cost of $1,200,000 for the operation of a municipal system of trash and rubbish collection. Both were advocated by the Mayor in his message to the Board.

City Employees Meet.
Pay increases provided in the Civil Service Commission's proposal before the Board of Aldermen were called "inadequate and insufficient" by AFL State, County and Municipal Employees Local 27 and Firefighters Local 73 at a meeting at St. Louis House last night. About 2000 city employees attended.

Telegrams to city officials said that the pay increases didn't "cover the increased living costs." They requested that pay proposals for those getting under $390 a month be revised upwardly "to adequate amounts."

The Civil Service Commission yesterday rejected a recommendation by the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen that the proposed salary increases for city employees be further increased. The commission's bill, providing for $2,100,000 in increases, was held up by the committee with the recommendation that all employees getting less than $322 a month under the terms of the bill be increased an additional $5.

The commission pointed out that increases already totaling $4,158,000, or 38 per cent, had been recommended by it since 1943 and that it could not recommend a further increase. The commission's recommendations would bring city employees' salaries on a par with those in private industry, the commission said.

The retirement plan has been held in abeyance by the Mayor pending the enactment of revenue measures by the Board of Aldermen. It is now doubtful whether it will be introduced this year.

Expenditures for rubbish collection also will not be encountered during the current year. The original investment in trucks and disposal facilities will be subject to the approval of the voters on Aug. 6 in a bond issue election for $4,000,000. If approved, it may take a year or more to construct facilities and obtain equipment. Until then, the operation cost will not be a budget item.

The new city income tax provides for a levy of 1/4 of 1 per cent on the gross income of individuals and the net earnings of corporations. It was enacted yesterday by the Board of Aldermen by a vote of 20 to 8. Two Republicans joined the six Democrats in the Board in opposing the measure.

The Mayor, who advocated the bill, said that he would sign it when it reaches his desk.

Employers to Deduct.
The tax applies to all persons who earn salaries in St. Louis, regardless of whether they actually reside in the city or not.

The tax on salaries earned in the city will be deducted by employers and paid by them directly to the city. The deductions will be made weekly, monthly or annually, depending on how the salaries are paid. Salary taxes withheld are to be paid by the employers quarterly.

The first payments will be due Oct. 15, covering tax deductions for August and September.

Individuals who receive income from other sources must file returns with the City Collector covering those earnings. Non-residents of St. Louis will not have to pay the tax on income received in excess of salaries paid in St. Louis, provided the outside income was not earned in the city.

These individual returns, and those filed by business firms and corporations on their net earnings, must be filed annually, on March 15, with the city collector. The question of whether an income tax should be levied should be referred to the people, the St. Louis Industrial Council, CIO, said in a resolution adopted last night. The resolution directed the officers of the council to take appropriate steps to bring about a referendum on the subject.

Mayor John D. Coffman of Overland, president of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities, denounced the measure today, asserting it would have been defeated if it had been submitted to the voters for approval. He declared St. Louis city officials should have attempted to effect economies rather than add another tax, and he said he expected to see some movement by the people to void the tax through the initiative.

Two British Strikes Ended.
LONDON, July 11 (AP)—Two strikes which had threatened the distribution of Britain's food supplies ended today. At Southampton, 2000 longshoremen resumed unloading perishable food cargoes. In London, 900 meat workers said they would "return to work immediately."

JURY RETURNS NO TRUE BILL IN INQUIRY INTO AUTO DEATH

A St. Louis county grand jury yesterday returned a no true bill in its inquiry into the death of Mrs. Maude Summerton, 555 Tesmore place, Ferguson, last May 29 following a collision between her automobile and one driven by Storekeeper S-C Harry D. Lutz. Lutz, who was stationed at the Naval Training Station at Lambert Field, suffered the loss of sight in both eyes in the accident, and his bride of one day, Mrs. Mary Lutz, 124 Emerling avenue, Ferguson, suffered a fractured leg. The sailor had been held for the grand jury when a coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide. The accident occurred in the 8000 block of Florissant road.

ATOMIC ENERGY. BILL CLEARANCE AWAITED IN HOUSE

Rules Committee Expected to Permit Substitution of Original Measure by McMahon.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The row over civilian versus military control of atomic energy shifted today from one sharply split House committee to another. With the leadership eager for a final vote next week, the Military Affairs Committee sought clearance from the Rules Committee for House debate expected to rival the fireworks touched off by the price control and draft extension issues.

There appeared little doubt that the Rules Committee, despite its division, would send the measure to the floor under procedure permitting any member to substitute the original Senate-passed McMahon bill which the House Military Affairs Committee tore apart in a Republican Minority Report.

Foreshadowing the coming fight, nine Republican members of the Military Affairs Committee assailed the Senate bill in a minority report yesterday as a measure that would launch the United States on a "form of state socialism."

They confined their criticism to a section prohibiting the issuance of private patents.

This section of the Senate bill, which the House committee approved, would "tend to eliminate the patent system," the nine Republicans asserted.

It endeavors, they said, "to substitute federal control and development of inventions for all purposes in this new field for private control."

"It is the view of the minority members of this committee that this country is not prepared either by tradition or experience to launch upon this form of state socialism."

Short Signs Report. The nine who signed the report are Representatives Short of Missouri, Amden of Illinois, Clason of Massachusetts, Shafer of Michigan, Thomas of New Jersey, Martin of Iowa, Elston of Ohio, Harness of Indiana and Fenton of Pennsylvania.

They did not criticize any other provisions of the bill as rewritten by the Military Affairs Committee, including changes giving the military representation on the proposed domestic atomic energy control commission.

These changes, expected to be the crux of the forthcoming fight, require that at least one of the five members be a military member and that the head of the division of military application be a representative of the armed services. The Senate provided for complete civilian control.

RADIOACTIVITY RISE OVER ATLANTA AFTER BIKINI TEST

ATLANTA, July 11 (AP)—A Geiger counter to measure radioactivity registered a "definite increase" in the atmosphere "some 10 days after the Bikini explosion," an Emory University physicist reported today.

Dr. Robert T. Lagemann said, however, that he is not convinced that the increase is attributable to the detonation of the world's fourth atomic bomb, Atlanta is 6000 miles from Bikini.

In a report, Dr. Lagemann said his experiment had not been carried on long enough to obviate the possibility that some other influence could have caused the jump. He is continuing his experiments.

LAST OF 370,000 PRISONERS TO BE RETURNED TO GERMANY

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—More than 14 months after V-E day, arrangements were completed today to send back to Germany the last of more than 370,000 prisoners of war brought to this country.

The final group, aside from fewer than 300 sick or classed as incurable, is scheduled to sail July 22 from New York, War Department officials said.

All are Germans. The last of the Japanese and Italian prisoners were returned to their homelands early this year.

Under an arrangement with Great Britain, 175,000 of the final group held in the United States were to be turned over to British custody for work in the Ruhr coal mines and on other jobs in the British-occupied zone of Germany.

Boycott of Franco Spain.

MEXICO CITY, July 11 (UP)—Members of the Latin American Federation of Labor (CTAL) will begin a general boycott of all goods going to or coming from Franco Spain on July 18—tenth anniversary of the beginning of the Spanish civil war, CTAL President Vicente Lombardo Toledano said yesterday.

SPECIAL PRIMARY REGISTRATION DAY ADDS 8447 NAMES

Brings Total Number of Enrolled Voters in the City to 386,825, 47,497 Below Record.

A total of 7749 persons appeared at special registration offices in each of the city's 28 wards yesterday to register to vote in the Aug. 6 primary election, and 698 prospective voters registered at the Election Board office, 208 South Twelfth boulevard, Arthur M. Sullivan, chief clerk of the board, announced today.

Yesterday's registration, which Sullivan termed "a fair turnout," brings the total number of persons registered so far to 386,825, which is 47,497 less than the city's record high registration of 434,322 prior to the November election in 1940.

The number of registrants who appeared at the election office yesterday was more than double the number registered Tuesday, Sullivan said. The Board of Election Commissioners expects comparatively heavy registrations at its office today, tomorrow and Saturday, the last day for registering prior to the primary election.

Registration Hours Listed. The election office will remain open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. today and tomorrow and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., Saturday, which also will be the last day for transferring. Voters already registered, who have moved since Feb. 17, 1945, may be transferred by notifying the board of their change of address either by mail, or in person. Registrations of persons who have not voted for four years are canceled and such voters must re-register.

Frank L. Ramaccolti, chairman of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, and John Q. Brown, chairman of the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners, today announced that only ballots marked with "X's" will be counted in the primary election.

Failings to this effect were obtained by both men from legal authorities in the county and city. Previously, it was explained, the intent of the voter had guided election judges in counting ballots. Some voters used check marks; others crossed out the names of candidates excepting the ones for whom they wished to vote.

Voting Method Regulation. A new state law, however, provides that only one method of voting shall be used. The law also states that at the head of the ballot shall be printed: "Instruction to voter: Place an X in the square opposite the name of the person for whom you wish to vote."

On county ballots the following sentence, quoted from the law, also will be printed: "The voter shall cast his vote in accordance with this instruction and shall vote in no other manner." In the city the precise form of the ballot has not yet been determined. Brown also announced that another difference in this year's primary will be that instead of the voter selecting two County Circuit Judges, the voter must select and vote for one judge for each of two divisions of the County Circuit Court. Also, instead of voting for two justices of peace, Brown said, county voters must vote for one magistrate from each district. The new law provides for a blank space on the ballot in addition to the printed names of the candidates for committeemen and committeewomen, so that voters can write in the names of other candidates.

U.S. TROOPS IN ARMORED CARS AID POLICE IN TRIESTE RIOTS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.) TRIESTE, July 11 (UP)—American troops in full war kit and riding in armored cars moved in to aid police in quelling riots by 20,000 pro-Slovenes who were menaced by Italian crowds threatening counter-action today.

Rioters smashed Italian public markets in a wild morning's fighting during which police wounded at least 10 persons. Police arrested 50 persons. The Slovene crowd's attacks paralyzed Trieste, forcing all transportation to halt. Hundreds of Slovenes were reported drifting into Trieste from the surrounding countryside. Italian police said that Slovene elements blew up the Udine-Trieste railroad, an Allied supply route, today.

TENANT WHO MADE THREAT IS FREED, LANDLORD FINED

Leon Ogent, rooming house agent, was fined $25 and costs yesterday by Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro on an individual peace disturbance charge but his tenant, Elmer MacKenzie was freed of a cross charge preferred by Ogent.

MacKenzie was arrested June 15 after he had threatened to strike Ogent. MacKenzie testified and admitted threatening the agent after Ogent had attempted to remove the electric fuses from his rooms. MacKenzie said the attempted blackout of his rooms was made in an effort to get him to move.

MacKenzie further testified that while he was in the Navy Ogent tried to evict his wife although she was a patient in a hospital. Ogent, he said, refused to provide screens for the rooms until he was ordered to do so by the Office of Price Administration. Judge Catanzaro stayed the fine on Ogent's promise to stop annoying the MacKenzies.

'PEOPLE WITH MEAT STEAMED UP' WHEN ELECTRICITY FAILS

Some Residents in Lucas-Hunt Village Hooked up Extension Cords to Refrigerators.

Residents of about 15 or 20 apartments in the 606-unit Lucas-Hunt Village hooked up extension cords to electric refrigerators today to "save what little bit of meat we've been able to get," following an electric power failure last night.

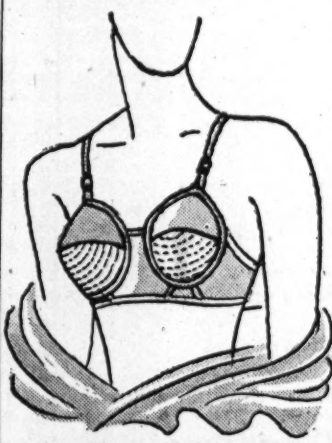

An officer of the operating management said a short circuit in an underground conduit cut off current.

TOM-BOY THE SQUAREST DEAL IN TOWN

At this point in the discussion of price control we wish to assist our customers and the nation as a whole by restating our price policy. It has always been Tom-Boy's policy to keep prices as low as possible. During the war, we offered every available food item at prices even below the allowable OPA ceiling limit. Today there is no change. We continue and will continue to the best of our ability, whether there is or is not an OPA, to keep prices as low as possible, increasing retail prices only when our costs are increased from our sources of supply. As in the past, we invite you to make price comparison on your over-all purchases with any other source of supply. You'll find Tom-Boy's low, sell-for-less prices will save you money. We pledge our support in curbing any inflationary prices.

RADIO IMPULSES TO SET OFF NEXT BOMB AT BIKINI

Exact Time for Test Set — Missile to Be Suspended From Barge Amidst Target Ships.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
OFF BIKINI ATOLL, July 11 (UP)—Operation Crossroads officers expect to set off the underwater explosion of the atomic bomb at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, July 25, (4:30 p.m. St. Louis time). V. Adm. W. H. P. Blandy announced today.

Blandy told a press conference that his staff "could see no reason why we can't pull it off" as planned.

The atom test commander said the Baker day bomb would be suspended from a special barge anchored amidst the target ships. It will be detonated by radio impulses from the U.S.S. Cumberland Sound.

He would not say when the bomb would be put into place, but presumably it will be anchored only a few hours before the burst.

Blandy was asked whether there was any danger of crossed radio frequencies detonating the bomb prematurely before the U.S.S. Mount McKinley, Operation Crossroads flagship, and other late leavers got out of the lagoon.

Drones Misdirected.
The question was prompted by the fact that radio and radar silence was decreed on Able day on all channels not directly connected with the test. On Able day, Blandy said, some drone boats picked up the wrong impulse and pulled out of the lagoon. For the second test, he said, he does not expect the bomb itself to get the wrong impulse at the wrong time.

"Too many precautions have been taken to prevent it," he said. He said that Bikini lagoon and the surviving ships of the target array would be immensely more radioactive than after the first test.

He explained this by saying the atomic cloud carried the most dangerous fission products away after the air burst. In the second test, however, they will be absorbed in the water and carried aboard ships by waves and spray.

One task force scientist estimated that ships would be a thousand times more radioactive than after Able day.

Blandy said since the steam cloud was expected to rise no more than 20,000 feet on Baker day, task force ships safely outside the lagoon at the time of the burst would not be dispersed as widely as on Able day.

The dispersal during the first test was to give them ample maneuvering space in case it became necessary to flee the atomic cloud because of an unexpected wind shift.

Winds down to 20,000 feet practically always blow to the west in these parts and Blandy expects no radiological problem as a result of any shift.

suit of any shift. He said he would be surprised if anything but remote-controlled drone boats of the radiological safety patrol entered the lagoon.

EX-BANKER ADMITS USE OF FUNDS TO AID NEEDY FRIENDS

Says He Will Make Good Shortages, Thought to Exceed $100,000.

WILLISTON, N. D., July 11 (UP)—Rubin G. Rasmussen, former vice president of the First National Bank, promised today to "make good" all shortages at the bank, expected to total more than $100,000.

Rasmussen, free on bail, admitted using bank money to help out friends in need of cash. He said he didn't think the amount was as high as $100,000, but he was prepared to cover all losses.

Rasmussen said he began using bank funds when his friends were slow in paying him back. Bank Examiner H. L. Wray, who said preliminary investigations indicated shortages of more than $100,000, asserted that Rasmussen had obtained money over a 10-year period by crediting a customer's account in his bank book for each deposit but neglecting to enter the amount in the bank ledgers. Accounts were tapped for amounts varying from $50 to $500 each, Wray said.

Depositors who appeared at the bank to have their accounts checked were amazed by charges against Rasmussen. They said he was a "model citizen," a leader in the Chamber of Commerce, Elks, Moose and other organizations.

COL. ELLIOTT NEW METROPOLITAN PLAN PRESIDENT

Former Army Engineer
Succeeds Symington—
Urges Regional Authority for Area.

Appointment of Col. Malcolm Elliott, former Upper Mississippi Valley division engineer for the War Department, as president of the Metropolitan Plan Association, was announced by association officials today. He succeeds W. Stuart Symington, who resigned from the post last October and is now assistant United States Secretary of War for Air.

In accepting the new post Col. Elliott, now a senior partner of Elliott and Porter, St. Louis consulting engineers, issued a statement reviewing the objectives of the association and the problems of the St. Louis area. Specifically, he declared he will advocate serious consideration of the possibility of establishing an official over-all governmental agency having the power of determining questions relating to regional development.

As an example he cited the New York Port Authority, which, he said, "has been eminently successful and receives the hearty support of all contributing communities, none of which, after 25 years' experience, would do without it; the adaptation of this idea to the St. Louis metropolitan area is a problem that would require research and serious thinking on the part of business men, industrialists, transportation experts, engineers and lawyers."

In a critical survey of regional problems, Col. Elliott gave particular attention to the problem of adequate airport facilities. St. Louis's present air facilities, he said, are "not good in the light of probable developments in aviation; Lambert-St. Louis Field may or may not be capable of development to meet all requirements, and there appears to be need for a first-order airport; whether or not Columbia Bottoms is the best site is a question that should be considered at a broad regional level."

In public discussions of the airport problem, Col. Elliott said, there seems to be "a tacit, if not acknowledged understanding" that the St. Louis airport should be in Missouri rather than in Illinois, without regard to convenience. He added that "the location of satellite airports is certainly a matter for consideration and determination at the regional level."

His statement also included a discussion of rail facilities and pointed out that "buses and freight trucks enter and leave the city without control, routing or other arrangement of facilities to meet their needs and to protect the interests of passenger-car drivers." He said that interchange of freight between railroads, trucks and river craft is not, on the whole, well organized.

The question of tunnels, presumably beneath the Mississippi river, "should be explored," he said, and if additional bridges are to be constructed "they and their approaches should be located in accordance with an efficient regional plan."

He urged consideration of purification of sewage before dumping in the river, and to over-all regional zoning regulations.

The Plan Association executive committee also announced the creation of functional committees to study major metropolitan problems and the establishment of area planning groups for each of the four counties in the area and for the city of St. Louis.

Functional committees will include aviation, highways and parking, housing and neighborhood development, recreation areas, mass transit, rivers development, water supply, railroad and bus and truck facilities, smoke abatement, sewage and refuse disposal, governmental administration, economic survey, population study, land use and zoning, public relations and finance.

Jordan asserted he had been served with an ultimatum to join the American Federation of Musicians. He said Tuesday was set as the deadline for joining and that when he failed to sign up, he lost his partner in the two-piano team that is a specialty of the club's entertainment. The partner, Irving Lairson, told Jordan he had received instructions not to play in the club.

Jordan said he may lose all his employees and entertainers, members of unions that usually co-operate with the Musicians' Union, but that if he did, he would operate as an open shop or close up.

"I insist," he said, "on the right to play my own piano in my own place of business."

Sharp Earthquake Recorded. NEW YORK, July 11 (UP)—A fairly sharp earthquake, believed centered in the Gulf of Mexico, was recorded at Fordham University early today. (A Mexico City dispatch reported an earthquake 270 miles southeast of Mexico City, probably in Oaxaca state, was registered on the Tacubaya Observatory seismograph.)

opposing incorporation, argued that all adults, with a few exceptions, are taxable inhabitants by virtue of the fact they own real or personal property. This was disputed by Attorney Clarence A. Peterson, who contended a census listing only 1540 taxable inhabitants in the total population of 3765 was correct.

The projected city of Pine Lawn would be bounded by the St. Louis city limits on the east, Greer avenue on the south, Birch avenue on the north, and the limits of four incorporated areas on the west, those being Arbor Terrace, Northwoods, Velda Village Hills and the village of Upland Park.

The Weldon Spring Ordnance Works, which has 1038 wooden, brick and steel buildings, is one of 26 military installations to be dismantled to provide lumber and other scarce building materials for emergency housing, the War Assets Administration announced in Washington today.

Informed of this, President Milton M. Kinney of the Board of Public Service said the city will exercise its priority to acquire lumber, wallboard and any other materials which can be utilized in the Jefferson Barracks veterans' housing project. He added he would send a telegram to the Federal Public Housing Administration requesting this agency's assistance in obtaining scarce materials.

St. Louis county also is interested in the possibility of acquiring materials for its housing program at the barracks, and will press its claim for lumber. Associate County Judge Alvin Bartelsmeier said.

Buildings on the 17,622-acre tract in St. Charles county contain large amounts of lumber, pipe, electrical fixtures and wiring. Structures include 40 dwellings, all of which are occupied, some by persons employed at the installation and the remainder by Government personnel stationed in the St. Louis area.

Some of the buildings once used in manufacture of TNT are undergoing decontamination. No dismantling work has been started yet, but a staff of approximately 180 Army engineers and ordnance personnel headed by Capt. Edward R. Billings is in process of transferring the installation to WAA.

Priority claimants, including state and local governments and non-profit institutions, have 10 days in which to file any of all of the property listed for disposal by the agency. After that, non-industrial parts of the camps will be dismantled. Salvaged lumber and other materials will be made available first to the FEHA for its temporary housing program, and then to holders of veterans' home-building priorities.

The state also has evinced interest in the site 18 miles west of St. Louis as a possible hospital location. The Board of Aldermen and civic organizations have gone on record as favoring addition of the huge tract to the state park system.

MOLOTOV URGES SELF-SUFFICIENT AND UNIFIED REICH

Reich if plebiscites should show that this was the desire of the Germans involved.

He urged the immediate creation of a central German administration "as a transitional step toward the establishment of a future German government" with which the Allies eventually could sign a peace treaty.

States Russian Purpose.

"Our purpose is not to destroy Germany but to transform Germany into a democratic and peace-loving state which, next to its agriculture, will have its own industry and foreign trade, but which will be deprived of economic and military potentialities to rise again as an aggressive force," Molotov said.

He called for the establishment of a system of four-power control over German industries and over the Ruhr in particular. At present the Ruhr is administered exclusively by the British.

Molotov also demanded that a plan be drafted to assure the delivery of German reparations to the Allies as a means of furthering the "complete military and economic disarmament" of the Reich.

The Russian Foreign Minister urged that the Council meet later this year to discuss German questions exclusively. He opposed a proposal by United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that special deputies be appointed to study the German situation and report back to the Council.

Byrnes' suggestion was supported by the other two members of the Big Four—Georges Bidault, French President and Foreign Minister, and Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary.

Will Study U. S. Proposal.

Bidault also supported Byrnes' proposal for a 25-year treaty to insure disarmament of Germany. Molotov, who previously had described the proposal as "wholly inadequate," said today he would study it further.

Byrnes indicated that the term of the treaty could be extended to 40 years, if this would allay Russian objections.

Bevin complained that Russia had prevented fulfillment of Potsdam pledges to allow import and export exchanges among the various Allied zones of occupation in Germany. He submitted a paper asking for immediate consideration of Germany as an economic unit.

Molotov also submitted a paper asking for a four-power commission to inquire into German demobilization in the four zones.

All four ministers made policy statements yesterday.

Both the United States and Britain urged the establishment of a federal Germany under a central government at Berlin. The French stood firmly against any form of central government and against the inclusion of the Ruhr, Rhineland and Saar into the future German state.

Bidault won a victory at home, when the French Cabinet unanimously voted today to uphold his stand on Germany to date. The Information Ministry said Communist ministers voted for the Bidault motion.

POLES SENTENCE 9 TO BE HANGED FOR KIELCE RIOTS

Housewife Gets 10-Year Term for Her Part in Pogrom in Which 45 Were Killed.

KIELCE, Poland, July 11 (UP)—Nine Poles, including two militiamen, were sentenced today by a military court to be hanged for participation in the anti-Semitic riot that took 45 lives last week.

Antonia Biskupska, 26 years old, housewife and mother of a 5-year-old child, was sentenced to prison for 10 years for her part in the pogrom.

The defendants, examined by a military prosecutor, generally admitted participation in the attacks on the Jews, but resisted attempts by the prosecution to show specific killings.

One defendant, Stanislaw Ruror, 20 years old, testified that stones and boards were used to beat Jews to death. He identified several of his co-defendants as having participated in the riot. The woman defendant admitted inciting a mob and throwing stones at Jews.

Police today announced that at least one Jew was killed in an anti-Semitic attack on a train yesterday between Breslau and Lodz.

Mass Exodus of Polish Jews Reported Goal Is Palestine. WARSAW, July 11 (AP)—A mass exodus of thousands of Jews was reported under way today in Poland. Twenty-five thousand Jews recently repatriated from Russia are concentrated at Walbrzych, coal mining city 12 miles from the Czechoslovakia border, awaiting a chance to leave the country.

Other are coming through the mountain passes daily in caravans and trucks, with Palestine as their ultimate destination. A Jewish leader said hundreds of Jews were leaving Walbrzych daily, either crossing the frontier on foot at unguarded points or paying someone to help them cross by other methods. Jews from Russia are banding together to protect themselves.

(A dispatch from Nachod, Czechoslovakia, said hundreds of Jews from Poland were arriving at that frontier city daily.) United States Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane told Premier Edward Oubekomorawski yesterday that military authorities in the United States occupation zone of Germany were "perturbed" by the possibility of an increased influx of Jews because of the recent pogrom in Kielce.

NO TRUE BILL ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED ASSAULT

The St. Louis county grand jury returned a no true bill yesterday after hearing testimony concerning the attempted assault charge against Walter Hannegan, a tire salesman.

A warrant charging him with attempted assault had been issued by Justice of the Peace John Wesley Ward Jr. on complaint of a 20-year-old woman, and Hannegan had been bound over to the grand jury following a preliminary hearing.

$1000 FOR NEW TRAIN'S NAME

The new streamlined train to be operated by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad between Louisville and Atlanta, Ga., beginning next September, will be named the "Georgian," railroad officials said today in announcing the winner of a recent contest to name the new train.

A prize of $1000 has been given Francis X. Quinn of Evansville, Ind., for submitting the name "Georgian" and an equal prize has been given Mrs. Versil S. Crenshaw of Nashville for submitting the name "Hummingbird" for a streamliner to be operated between Cincinnati and New Orleans.

7 IN PLANE BAIL OUT NEAR SITE OF CRASH THAT TOOK 25 LIVES

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 11 (AP)—While investigators still were examining wreckage of a converted Flying Fortress that struck a mountain, taking 25 lives, seven other men escaped a similar fate by parachuting to safety when a Navy plane crashed in nearby Palmer yesterday.

The seven men aboard the two-engine Navy B-24 bailed out when the plane lost a wing while on a test flight. All are civilian employees of United Aircrafts Pratt and Whitney division at East Hartford, Conn.

The second crash occurred within 18 hours of the time that the Army B-17, bearing Army, Navy and coast guard personnel and several civilians, smashed into 1200-ft. Mount Tom, killing all the occupants. Some were returning from overseas either for discharge or furloughs.

The last of the 25 bodies were recovered yesterday. Identification has not been made public. Army investigators had in their possession what appeared to be the B-17 pilot's log containing this reference: "Fire on the port side of Noelle. Arriving at Westover on three engines at 10:20. Will have engines changed and an inspection made for return to Newfoundland." The wrecked plane had been en route from Newfoundland to Westover Field and the time listed coincided with the time on a broken watch found at the scene and was about the hour the plane hit the mountain.

VAUGHAN MADE CO-ORDINATOR ON VETERAN POLICY MATTERS

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—President Truman today appointed Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan of St. Louis as White House coordinator of matters involving veterans. The assignment is in addition to Vaughan's duties as military aide to the President.

"The need for co-ordination at White House level has long been evident since there are some 14 federal agencies directly involved in veterans' affairs," the President said in a statement. In the new post, the White House said, Vaughan will handle certain preliminary matters on veterans' policy matters which come to Truman for decision.

Experts Report on Bikini Test

spected target ships the day before the test, witnessed the explosion from an airplane 20 miles distant, and then approached to within nine miles of the atoll for a brief view. On the following day, as soon as safety clearance had been received, the members of Bikini and began their examination of ship damage. Many photographs have been studied, and military and scientific specialists interviewed in an attempt to obtain an over-all understanding of test results prior to the compilation of all the data.

From its previous study of the plans for the test, and from its observations in the Bikini area, the board considers that the test was well conceived and executed by the services in close co-operation with a large civilian staff. It is satisfied that the conditions of the test were well-chosen and that the highest skill and ingenuity have been used to obtain a maximum amount of data in an unbiased, scientific manner. It believes that the commander, staff, and personnel of Task Force One deserve high commendation for their excellent performance and their notable co-operative spirit.

Effective precautions appear to have been taken to safeguard personnel against radioactivity and associated dangers. The board's present information is that the bomb exploded, with an intensity which approached the best of the three previous atomic bombs, over a point 1500 to 2000 feet westerly of the assigned target, and at approximately the planned altitude.

The target array in no sense represented an actual naval disposition but was designed to obtain the maximum data from a single explosion. The most important effects produced by the bomb were the following:

A. A destroyer and two transports sank promptly and another destroyer capsized. It later sank, and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa sank the following day. The superstructure of the submarine Skate was so badly damaged as to make it unsafe to submerge the vessel. The light carrier Independence was badly wrecked by the explosion, gutted by fire, and further damaged by internal explosions of low order, including those of torpedoes. All the above vessels were within one-half mile of the explosion point.

B. Numerous fires were started on other ships, including one on a ship two miles distant, which was apparently due to some unusual circumstance since the other fires were much closer. Here it should be remembered that the target ship decks carried a great variety of test material not ordinarily exposed on the decks of naval vessels.

C. The only major combatant ships within one-half mile of the explosion point were the battleships Nevada and Arkansas and the heavy cruiser Pensacola. The blast struck these from the after quarter. Apparently little damage was done to their hulls or their main turrets but their superstructures were badly wrecked. These ships were unquestionably put out of action and would, along with many others within three-fourths of a mile, have required extensive repairs at a principal naval base.

Other Ships Damaged. D. Other ships in the target array suffered damage in varying degree, depending on position and type of ship, but there was relatively little damage at distances greater than three-fourths of a mile. E. The primary material effects noted were due to blast, buckling of decks and bulkheads, and destruction or deformation of lightly constructed exposed objects, including stacks, masts, and antennae. Secondary effects were due to fire, and it is noteworthy that Army Quartermaster stores and miscellaneous equipment placed on the decks for the test proved more vulnerable than normal naval deck gear. It should be pointed out that since the targets carried no personnel the fires were uncontrolled and undoubtedly there was more damage than there would have been under battle conditions. Singularly, although considerable amounts of explosive ordnance were exposed on decks and in gun turrets, there is no indication on ships which remained afloat that any of this material was exploded by direct action of the atomic bomb. Fire-fighting ships entered the target area as soon as they could and radiological security permission and subdued a number of fires. The speed and efficiency with which these ships acted preserved for later examination a great deal of evidence of bomb action which might otherwise have been lost.

High Casualties Indicated. F. Examination of the flash-burn effects produced by the initial radiation from the explosion indicates that casualties would have been high among exposed personnel. However, it is the opinion of the board that persons sheltered within the hull of a ship or even on deck in the shadow of radiation from the bomb would not have been immediately incapacitated by burns alone, whatever might have been the subsequent radiological effects.

G. Within the area of extensive blast damage to ship superstructures there is evidence that persons within the ships would have been exposed to a lethal dosage of radiological effects. Personnel casualties due to blast would no doubt have been high for those exposed positions on vessels within one-half mile of the target center. Beyond this, any discussion of the blast effect upon personnel will have to await the detailed reports of the medical specialists.

No Unexpected Phenomena. In general no significant unexpected phenomena occurred, although the test was designed to cope with considerable variation from predictions. There was no large water wave formed. The radiological residue dissipated in the manner expected. No damage occurred on Bikini island, about three miles from the explosion center.

From what it has seen and from what it has ascertained from data effects. Damage to ships' hulls will be studied specifically in the second test when a bomb will be exploded under water. C. A vast amount of data

ACCESS TO TRUTH ESSENTIAL FOR FREE PRESS, POPE SAYS

VATICAN CITY, July 11 (UP)—Pope Pius today told a group of American editors that the first postulate of freedom of the press "is to have access to the truth."

that in the long run good is never served by distortion of the facts," he said. "The world will not be lifted out of the quagmire of inhuman suffering and injustice in which it is agonizing so long as suspicion, distrust and shameful ambitions conceal the truth from those who are entitled to know it for the common good of all."

The Pope emphasized the responsibility of the press and said that "freedom of the press like any other freedom whether of action or of speech or thought is limited. It does not allow a man to print what is wrong, what is known to be false or what is calculated to undermine and destroy the moral and religious fiber of individuals and the peace and harmony of nations."

which will prove invaluable throughout scientific and engineering fields has been made available by this test. Once more the importance of large-scale research has been dramatically demonstrated. There can be no question that the effort and expense involved in this test has been amply justified both by the information secured and by greatly narrowing the range of speculation and argument. Moreover, it is clear to the board that only by further large-scale research and development can the United States retain its present position of scientific leadership. This must be done in the interests of national safety.

The board desires to say that it has had the fullest co-operation of the task force commander, and that every opportunity has been afforded it in carrying out its mission. The members of the board have had access to all data thus far accumulated and has had every facility for personally inspecting the results of the test.

ANTI-TRUST SUIT FILED AGAINST 10 SPRINKLER FIRMS

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Attorney General Tom C. Clark said today a civil suit, alleging anti-trust law violations, has been filed in United States District Court at Chicago against 10 corporations manufacturing automatic sprinkler systems.

The complaint charges, the Justice Department said, that the defendants had combined and conspired to restrain and monopolize trade. The 10 firms as named by Clark are:

Automatic Sprinkler Co. of America, Youngstown, O.; Automatic Sprinkler Corp. of America, Youngstown; Globe Automatic Sprinkler Co. of Pennsylvania, Inc., Philadelphia; Globe Automatic Sprinkler Co. (New Jersey), Inc., Philadelphia; Empire Sprinkler Co., Rochester, N.Y.; Grinnell Corp., Providence, R.I.; Grinnell Co., Inc., Providence, R.I.; Grinnell Co. of the Pacific (Inc.), San Francisco; Rockwood Sprinkler Co. of Massachusetts, Worcester, Mass., and H. G. Vogel Co., New York.

STATE SENATOR HAZED; SLOW IN ANNOUNCING WEDDING

State Senator Hartwell G. Crain of St. Louis county was seized by courthouse employees at Clayton today, escorted to the courthouse lawn and handcuffed to a tree, the victim of a traditional hazing for failing to announce promptly his marriage last month.

Crain and Miss Minnie Zimmerman, 5004A Winona avenue, were married last June 15, but courthouse employees learned of it for the first time today when one of them received a formal announcement of the wedding. When Senator Crain dropped into Probate Court on business, a group of employees grabbed him and led him outside and tied him to the tree to receive the good-natured jeers and taunts of county workers.

Crain, an attorney, tried to plead immunity from the hazing. His argument that he was not a county employee was shouted down because he represents the county in the Legislature.

GIRL WHO PURSUED WEALTHY
SAILOR SENTENCED FOR THEFT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11 (UP)—Theresa Briston, 16 years old, who followed oil-helr Johnny Ochsner from Honolulu as a stow-away was sentenced yesterday to three years in a Federal institution for theft on the high seas. She pleaded guilty of stealing $2060 from a passenger's handbag aboard the liner Matsonia, June 2. She had boarded the ship because her heart interest, young Johnny, an Oakland (Cal.) socialite, left the Navy to return to the mainland.

Ochsner, denying he was engaged to Miss Briston, dodged her when she arrived in San Francisco. She had $800 of the money in her possession when arrested.

BOY MURDER STORY READER KILLS FARM WOMAN FOR THRILL

Orphan, 14, Stabs Housewife at Home Where He Had Been Sent by Court.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A 14-year-old orphan boy, who described himself as an avid reader of "murder stories," killed a 63-year-old farmwife yesterday for the thrill of killing, Sheriff Emil Fox said today.

Stabbed through the back with a carving knife while she was mixing bread dough, Mrs. Frank Fletcher was found dead in her Graysville farm home by her husband, Fletcher, who had sent the boy, Donald Mullenaux, to the farmhouse for a jug of water, followed when the lad failed to return to the cornfield where they had been working.

Fox gave this story of the stabbing:

The boy, after borrowing the knife from Mrs. Fletcher, started toward her twice but lost his nerve. The third time he plunged the knife deep into her back. Then, "scared of what Mr. Fletcher might do," he ran to Graysville, telephoned state police to report the killing, and asked them to arrest him.

The boy, former inmate of a juvenile correction home, was given the farm job two weeks ago by a juvenile court officer.

French Sentence Jean Berthelot.

PARIS, July 11 (UP)—Jean Berthelot, former Vichy Secretary of State, today was sentenced to two years imprisonment, fined 10,000 francs ($83), and condemned to 10 years of national indignity for collaborationist activities.

HILLMAN'S DEATH POSES PROBLEM OF NEW PAC CHIEF

as 'Only One Man Qualified'—Others Being Considered.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Sidney Hillman's place as chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee was wide open today in the middle of the primary elections.

CIO leaders said Hillman's death left a gap in the Congress of Industrial Organizations that would be hard to fill. Few had any definite ideas as to a logical successor.

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO auto workers, told reporters here: "There is only one man qualified to take Sidney Hillman's place, and that man is (CIO president) Phil Murray. But he certainly has burdens enough already."

An official of CIO-PAC said in New York: "Mr. Hillman's death caught us in much the same manner that President Roosevelt's death caught the country—it took away the guiding spirit. Nobody here has thought about a successor."

Murray himself, the man who will appoint Hillman's successor, said: "I have given no thought to it."

Reporters who visited Murray's office found him saddened by the loss of his old associate, and apparently unwilling even to think of the future. Murray and Hillman were on the original committee of eight who founded the CIO 10 years ago. Hillman, 59 years old, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his summer home on Long Island.

Though few at the CIO had any prediction as to the next CIO-PAC chairman, several names were being discussed as possibilities. One guess was that Murray himself would take over the job—for a time at least—in addition to his other duties as CIO head and president of the CIO steelworkers union.

Some thought that R. J. Thomas, defeated by Reuther for the UAW presidency last March, had a chance for the job. He is secretary-treasurer of PAC.

Others considered it more likely that one of Hillman's three assistant PAC chairmen might be elevated. These are the fulltime men who carry out the policies of the eight-man PAC itself. They are Thomas Burns, Tilford Dudley and Jack Kroll.

Van Bittner, vice chairman of the committee, was believed to be out of the picture because he is busy directing the CIO southern organizing drive.

LOLLIPOPS ENTER OPA DEBATE

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—Small fry with lollipop troubles have a champion in the Senate.

Senator Francis P. Myers (Dem.), Pennsylvania, brought their plight to the attention of the Senate yesterday. He said he had read that the price of penny lollipops had tripled since the death of OPA and now were three for a dime. Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep.), Nebraska, a leader in the fight against reviving OPA, wasn't impressed, however. He termed it a "lollipop story."

Joseph Schober Indicted.

Joseph Schober, proprietor of Schober's Restaurant, Lindeberg boulevard near Union road, was charged with selling wine without a State liquor license in an indictment returned yesterday by the St. Louis county grand jury. Schober, who also operates a winery, was arrested after deputy sheriffs purchased wine in his restaurant Tuesday.

SUIT CHARGES PLOT TO BAR GEORGIA NEGROES AT POLLS

Asks That Registrars Be Restrained From Further Disqualifications.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., July 11 (AP)—A petition charging a state-wide conspiracy to bar Negroes from voting in Georgia's July 17 Democratic primary election was filed in United States District Court today.

The suit was filed by Attorney Rufus Moore of Douglas, Ga., representing voters in four south Georgia counties. He asked that registrars in the four counties be restrained from further disqualification of Negroes.

The petition was the latest development in a heated Georgia campaign for the gubernatorial nomination with former Gov. Eugene Talmadge waving the banner of "white supremacy" in a four-man race and asserting he will restore the white primary.

Judge Frank M. Scarlett temporarily enjoined registrars in three of the counties from further disqualification of Negroes pending a hearing on the suit Saturday. Judge Hoyt Davis at Macon will hear at the same time the suit for a permanent injunction on the same grounds in the fourth county.

Moore's petition said hundreds of Negro voters had been sent notices to appear before registration boards and show cause why they should not be disqualified.

At Atlanta, C. A. Scott, Negro editor of the Atlanta World, and C. L. Harper, president of the Atlanta branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, made public a letter to Attorney General Tom C. Clark requesting a federal investigation of "the disgraceful purges of Negro voters." "We estimated over 20,000 voters have been challenged, of which an unknown number has been disfranchised," they said.

MAIL CARRIER LEAVES $6900

A total of $1900 in cash and $5000 in war bonds were found at the home of Edward Braun, retired letter carrier, at 3840A Wyoming street yesterday by Thomas M. Brady, deputy of Public Administrator John P. Cullinane.

Braun, Cullinane said, died at Deaconess Hospital Tuesday night after a long illness. He was a bachelor and since the death of his sister several years ago, he had been living alone at the Wyoming street address. Cullinane said he had been unable to locate any of Braun's relatives. If none are found, Braun's property will escheat to the state of Missouri.

WEST END SEWER PROJECT SURVEYS ARE AUTHORIZED

Bond Issue Group Acts for Engineering
Studies in Blackstone-Clarendon District.

Engineering studies preliminary to the construction of relief sewers in the Blackstone-Clarendon sewer district were authorized yesterday by the Supervisory Committee of the Citizens' Bond Issue Committee. An item providing $1,200,000 for the construction of these sewers was contained in the 1944 postwar bond issue proposal.

The district is bounded by Lindell boulevard, Wabada avenue, Kingshighway and Hamilton avenue. Present inadequate sewers in the area cause much flooding during rainstorms.

President Milton M. Kinsey of the Board of Public Service was authorized to negotiate terms of a contract with the engineering firm of Horner & Shifrin, which will make the studies, offer recommendations and draw detailed plans and specifications for the new sewers. A Federal loan of $60,000 for making of the plans has been allocated to the city. Of this, $30,000 has been received.

The committee also approved preliminary plans for a new elephant house and arena on the Zoological Grounds. The site will be in the western part of the grounds. Estimated cost of the project is $250,000. The plans were submitted by John Wallace, architect on the staff of the Zoological Board of Control.

Contracts for plans and specifications for the construction of two new fire engine houses under the bond issue program were also approved. Walter J. Hubbard, architect, Neil J. Campbell, structural engineer, and Harry F. Wilson, mechanical engineer, will prepare the plans and specifications for Engine House 30 on DeBailly avenue near Westminster avenue. P. J. Hoener, architect, William C. E. Becker, mechanical engineer, and Ralf Toensfeldt, structural engineer, will prepare those for Engine House 19 on Bancroft avenue near Watson road. Each house is expected to cost $41,000. Total fees in each case are $2500.

$400,000 Fire at Navy Base.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11 (AP)—Fire destroyed the big pipe and copper shop at the Hunter's Point Navy repair base here last night, causing damage estimated at $400,000 and minor injuries to three persons.

THREE DIVISIONS OF CHRYSLER PLANT SHUT DOWN BY STRIKE

DETROIT, July 11 (UP)—Three departments of the Chrysler Corp. Jefferson avenue plant were shut down today by a walkout of 1188 CIO United Auto Workers in a dispute over production standards. Chrysler spokesmen said union officers circulated among the employees in the three departments and ordered them to leave their work. However, a spokesman for UAW Local No. 7 denied that the strike was authorized and said the workers would return to their jobs tomorrow. The plant employs more than 4000.

The company accused the union of trying to make trouble in the dispute over working conditions and in seeking "more money for less work." The stoppage occurred after the UAW had threatened to strike in all Chrysler plants charging an attempted speed-up of production rates beyond pre-war standards.

Cautionary Element

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Stock market leaders generally ran into a little more urgent liquidation today, although a smattering of special issues managed to do fairly well.

The direction generally was lower at the start, with steels giving ground. The buoyant distillers stumbled over early profit-taking and most ended in the casualty section. While plus marks were in evidence here and there at the close, declines of fractions to a point or more predominated. Dealings picked up on the irregularly backward shift and volume was the largest since July 1.

Sales were 990,000 shares compared with 910,000 shares yesterday.

Of 920 issues traded 482 declined, 254 advanced and 179 were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down 3 of a point at 78.9.

Prominent in Decline.

Prominent on the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Distillers Corp., National Distillers, Schenley, Armour, Wilson & Co., General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Great Northern, American Water Works, J. I. Case, Texas Co. and American Smelting.

Equitable Office Building, fastest mover of the session, jumped more than a point in the wake of a new reorganization proposal. On a boosted dividend and extra but eventually lost part of the advance. Resistant were U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Sunshine Mining, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Cudahy Packing.

The question of price controls remained as the important buying deterrent, brokers said, and many customers trimmed accounts on the thought of a consumers' strike growing as living costs mount.

Trend on the Curb.

In the curb support was accorded American Republics, Brazilian Traction, United Light, International Utilities (on a raised quarterly) and Union Gas of Canada.

Rubber company issues had the benefit of a brighter earnings prospect in this field with U. S. Rubber exemplifying confidence by boosting its dividend to $1 on the common from 75 cents, distributed in June and 50 cents in March. Payments so far this year aggregate $2.25 a share against 4.89 per cent on investment contrasted with 7.53 per cent in 1940 and 6.18 per cent in 1937.

Followers of the steels studied the summary of the American Iron and Steel Institute, which estimated that, due mainly to strikes, production of ingots and metal for castings during the first six months of 1946 amounted to 27,364,716 net tons was approximately 16 per cent less than in the first half of 1945. The institute figured that the industry in 1945 earned 4.89 per cent on investment contrasted with 7.53 per cent in 1940 and 6.18 per cent in 1937.

FUTURES FOLLOW CASH GRAIN UP; CORN GAINS 5 CTS.

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP)—Strength in cash markets caused a sharp reversal in grain futures trends today, corn soaring the full 5-cent limit after early weakness and oats jumping around 3 cents at one time.

Traders were lured by the ability of the market to absorb early selling based on bumper crop prospects and active action in Russia to keep callings on grains in the revived OPA bill.

Cash dealers reported industries were good buyers of corn at prices ranging to $2.20 a bushel. This was about 5 cents a bushel higher than yesterday's quotations. Wheat and oats also were several cents higher.

Strength in cotton and in the cat market at Minneapolis were additional factors encouraging the advance.

Final prices were at or just under the day's best levels. Corn finished 3 cents higher, January $1.66 1/4, and oats were up 2 1/4 cents, July $0.94 1/4. There was a little trading in November barley at $1.41 1/4, unchanged.

Predictions of bumper crops by the Agriculture Department were in line with trade expectations and led many grain experts to believe that the country would have sufficient feed grains to take care of requirements later in the year. Warm weather over the Midwest was again favorable for corn growth.

Only at one point was the Government forecast under trade estimates. That was in oats. An estimate of 1,713,000,000 bushels, between 500,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 bushels below market expectations. Feed grain stocks on July 1 were a record-breaking 277,973,000 bushels, but this had been expected.

Some surprise was also expressed over the corn acreage. While a record crop of the yellow grain was forecast, less was placed at about 750,000 acres less than a year ago. It was felt that this year's price ceilings were raised at planting time.

St. Louis Cash Grain. July 11—Butterfat was 26 3/4c lower; 27c cash sold. One car of oats sold.

WHEAT—No. 1 red winter, $2.21; No. 2 red winter, $2.18 1/2; No. 3 red winter, $2.20; No. 1 red spring, $2.19; No. 2 red spring, $2.17 1/2; No. 3 red spring, $2.15 1/2; No. 1 mixed, $2.20; No. 2 mixed, $2.18; No. 3 mixed, $2.16.

OATS—No. 1 mixed, 96c.

LOCAL GRAIN RECEIPTS. Local grain receipts today and a year ago were: Wheat 103 cars and 110; corn 24 cars and 30; oats 28 cars and 1; soybeans 1 car and 5; barley 1 car and 4.

NO STATE PERMIT FOR WACO DAM, DONNELLY SAYS

Governor Notifies War Department of Refusal to Authorize Project in Jasper County.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 11.—Gov. Donnelly yesterday notified the War Department that the State of Missouri would not give its consent to construction of Waco flood control dam and reservoir on Spring river, in Jasper county. Based on recommendations of the State Department of Resources and Development, and other information, the Governor said, "I find that it is not in the interest of the State of Missouri to consent to or concur in the carrying out of that project at this time."
Both Houses of the Missouri Legislature last November concurred in a joint resolution objecting to construction of the Waco project and recommended to the Governor that consent of the state to its construction be withheld.
The Governor's formal announcement of denial of state consent, under provisions of a federal law, was sent to the Office of the Chief of Engineers of the War Department.
Cost of the Waco project was estimated by Army engineers at $6,173,880. Opponents in the Legislature asserted the real purpose of the project was to equalize the flow of water at Ponca power dam on Grand river in Oklahoma.

ONLY 6000 TO BE EVACUATED FROM AUSTRIA, REDS ASSERT

VIENNA, July 11 (UP)—Soviet quarters today challenged American reports concerning the evacuation of Germans from Austria, asserting they were exaggerated and that only 6000 persons were involved.
The official Tass news agency reported that the figure of 54,000 persons reportedly affected by the order was "a lie" and said that the action was agreed on by the Allies in November 1945.
Government quarters said the Russians apparently had halted or postponed their move, possibly due to widespread publicity given to the plan. French occupation authorities took exception to the order for the ousting of non-Austrians. A French statement said "displaced persons" considered by Allied and Austrian authorities to be a burden on Austria should be dealt with by the Allied Control Council.

Molotov Text: 'Purpose Is Not To Destroy Germany but Change It Into a Peace-Loving State'

Tells Foreign Ministers Treaty Should Not Be Signed Until Democratic Government Takes Over and It Fulfills Obligations Such as Reparations Payments.

PARIS, July 11 (AP).

FOLLOWING is the text of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's statement on Germany to the four-power Foreign Ministers' Council:

THE time has come when we should discuss the fate of Germany and a peace treaty with that country.

The Soviet Government has always held that the spirit of revenge is a poor counselor in such affairs. It will be just as incorrect to identify Hitler Germany with the German people, though the German people cannot divest themselves of the responsibility for Germany's aggression and for its gravest consequences.

The Soviet people went through unparalleled sufferings of occupation as a result of the invasion of the Soviet Union by the German armies. Our losses are great and inestimable. Other peoples of Europe, and not of Europe alone, will long feel the heavy losses and hardship caused by the war which was imposed by Germany.

It is, therefore, natural that the problem of Germany's fate agitates at present the minds of not only the German people, but naturally also those of other peoples who are trying to safeguard themselves for the future and to prevent a new aggression by Germany. And one should bear in mind the fact that, thanks to the industrial might she has achieved, Germany is an important link of the whole system of the world economy.

Neither can one forget the fact that more than once this industrial might has formed the base of the armament of aggressive Germany.

Such are the premises from which conclusions are to be drawn.

I proceed from the fact that in the light of the interests of world economy and tranquility in Europe it would be incorrect to adopt a course of Germany's annihilation as a state or that of its agrarianization including the annihilation of its main industrial centers.

Such a course would result in undermining the economy of Europe, in the dislocation of world economy and in a chronic political crisis in Germany which would spell a threat to peace and tranquility.

I think that even if we adopted such a course, the course of history would subsequently impel us to renounce this course as an abortive and groundless one.

Purpose to Transform Reich.

I think, therefore, that our purpose is not to destroy Germany but to transform Germany into a democratic and peace-loving state which, next to its agriculture, will have its own industry and foreign trade but which will be deprived of economic and military potentialities to rise again as an aggressive force.

While still engaged in the war the Allies declared that they had no intention of destroying the German people. Even at the time when the German people were openly proclaimed that he wanted to destroy Russia, J. V. Stalin, the head of the Soviet Government, holding these boastful stupidities up to ridicule, said:

"It is no more possible to destroy Germany than to destroy Russia. But the Hitler state can and must be destroyed."

Germany has long held an important position in the world economy. While continuing as a single state Germany will remain an important factor of world trade which also corresponds to the interests of other peoples.

On the other hand, the policy of Germany's annihilation as a state or that of her agrarianization and annihilation of its principal industrial centers will result in making Germany a center where dangerous sentiments of revenge will be nourished and will play into the hands of German reactionaries and will deprive Europe of tranquility and a stable peace.

One should look not backward but ahead and should be concerned about what is to be done in order that Germany may become a democratic and peace-loving state which will have a developed agriculture, industry and foreign trade but which will be deprived of an opportunity to recast itself as an aggressive force. Victory over Germany delivers into our hands powerful means to achieve this purpose. It is our duty to utilize these means to the full.

It has of late become fashionable to talk about dismemberment of Germany, into several "autonomous" states, about federalization of Germany and about the separation of the Ruhr from Germany. All such proposals originate in the same policy of destruction and agrarianization of Germany, for it is easy to understand that without the Ruhr Germany cannot exist as an independent and stable state. But I have already said that if the interests of peace and tranquility are dear to us the destruction of Germany should not be our objective.

Naturally, if as a result of a plebiscite throughout Germany the German people express their wish to transform Germany into a federal state, or if as a result of a plebiscite in various former German states a desire will be manifested to break away from Germany, it goes without saying that there cannot be any objection on our part.

There have been not a few instances in which Allied authorities in the western zones of occupation of Germany have encouraged the idea of a federal structure for Germany. But the attitude of Allied authorities is one thing, whereas, a real desire of the German people, or at least a desire of the population of some part of German territory, is another thing. We, the Soviet people, hold that it is incorrect to impose upon the German people a solution of this question. Such an imposition would not in any case produce any good if only for the reason that it will be precarious.

Inter-Allied Ruhr Control.

If on the one hand we should not stand in the way of the rightful aspirations of the German people after the revival of their state on democratic lines, then on the other hand it is our duty to prevent the rise of Germany as an aggressive force. It would be a crime to forget about this sacred duty of ours to the peoples of the world.

If the world is to be safeguarded against an eventual aggression on the part of Germany, the latter should be completely disarmed both militarily and economically and the Ruhr should be placed under inter-Allied control of four countries with the object of preventing a revival of war industries in Germany.

The program for the complete military and economic disarmament of Germany is not something new. The decisions of the Berlin conference deal with this in detail. And it is natural that the Ruhr, as the main phase of Germany's war industries, should be kept under the vigilant control of the principal Allied powers. The purpose of complete military and economic disarmament of Germany must also be furthered by a plan for reparations.

Hazards of Delay.

The fact that until now no plan for reparations has been drawn up in spite of the repeated demands of the (Soviet) Government that the corresponding decision of the Berlin conference be carried out, the fact that the Ruhr has not been placed under an inter-Allied control on which the Soviet Government insisted a year ago, is a dangerous thing as far as the maintenance of the peace and security of the nations is concerned.

We are of the view that it is impossible to put off the accomplishment of these tasks without running the risk of frustrating the decision to carry out the complete military and economic disarmament of Germany.

Such is view of the Soviet Government regarding the war industry and war potential of Germany. These considerations cannot hamper the development of peaceful industries in Germany.

In order that the development of German peaceful industries may be of benefit to other peoples who need German coal, metal and manufactured products, Germany should be granted the right of exports and imports, and if this right of foreign trade is to be effectuated we should not put obstacles to the increase in output of steel, coal and manufactured products of a peaceful nature in Germany; naturally within certain bounds and provided that an inter-Allied control shall inevitably be established over Germans and over the Ruhr industries in particular.

As we know, the (Allied) Control Council in Germany recently fixed the level which would be reached by German industries in the near future. Germany has not yet far reached this level. Nevertheless, it should already now be admitted that the peaceful industries of Germany must be given an opportunity to develop on a wider scale, provided only that this industrial development should really be used to satisfy the peaceful needs of the German people and the requirements of trade with other countries.

All this calls for the establishment of proper inter-Allied control over German industries and over the Ruhr industries in particular. Responsibility for the latter cannot rest only upon one of the Allied countries. Adoption of a corresponding program for the development of German peaceful industries which will provide for the development of the foreign trade of Germany as well as for the establishment of inter-Allied control over the whole of German industry satisfies the need for implementation of the decisions of the Berlin conference which provide for the treatment of Germany as an economic whole.

Peace Treaty Terms.

It remains for me to dwell on the question of the peace treaty with Germany.

Of course we stand in principle for the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany, but before concluding this treaty there should be set up a single German government sufficiently

May Committee Hears Eisenhower

REPRESENTATIVE ANDREW J. MAY (Dem., Kentucky), chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee (right), shaking hands with GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER after the chief of staff told the committee yesterday that he foresaw a peacetime army of 800,000 men. May's name has figured prominently recently in the Senate War Investigating Committee inquiry into profiteering in war plants.

National Guard To Be Double Prewar Size

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).

THE War Department disclosed orders today for a postwar National Guard of 682,114 officers and enlisted men—twice the size of the prewar guard force.

Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the department's National Guard bureau, announced an upward revision in strength to 25 infantry divisions and two armored ones. He told reporters the guard would be "a highly trained, mobile M-Day force" and added that "under a directive from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, we are setting up units individually as soon as they are ready."

Gen. Miltonberger predicted that all the divisions and several smaller combat units would be in process of activation by the end of the year. At their present pace, he said the 84 National Guard air squadrons that are planned would be ready by Nov. 1. Squadrons at St. Louis and Denver are to be the first.

New Infantry Units.

He told of plans to create two new infantry divisions but they were not identified. Gen. Miltonberger announced, however, that the Forty-fourth Infantry Division, previously allocated to New Jersey, had been shifted to Illinois. New Jersey will get the Fifty-fifth Armored Division and Texas the Forty-ninth Armored Division.

Eisenhower, Army chief of staff, declared today that "substantial numbers of men" are required for the occupation of Germany and Japan and said:

"So long as our government continues occupation nothing could produce a more dangerous situation than an American weakness that would encourage recalcitrance or open rebellion."

"Such a result," he said in a speech to the Amherst alumni council, "would have pyramiding consequences of grave import for everyone of us. The purposes, risks and the requirements of occupation must be so clearly placed before the American people that there can be no lack of comprehension of the issues involved."

Gen. Eisenhower told the House Military Committee in Washington yesterday that he believed the United States must maintain an Army of 800,000 men for the next 15 to 20 years, compared with 186,000 in 1939.

He pleaded to the committee for legislation to permit a doubling of the officer personnel of the regular Army—from 25,000 to 50,000. The committee approved the bill, already passed by the Senate.

Many of the new officers, Gen. Eisenhower said, would be needed for the occupation of Germany and Japan.

Aid Says Stalin's War Strategy Turned Tide in Each Battle Crisis

LONDON, July 11 (AP).

GENERALISSIMO STALIN'S personal telegrapher said today that Stalin's directives, in strategy and troop dispositions, turned the tide for the Red Army in practically every major crisis of the war against Germany.

Specifically mentioning Stalin's intervention in the battles for Moscow, Leningrad and Stalingrad, Capt. N. Ponomarev in a signed article released today by the press department of the Soviet Embassy here said:

"Stalin's knowledge of the details of warfare impressed me profoundly. . . . He would dictate to me directly, after studying situation reports and the map, and his instructions would refer to the regrouping of troops, of bringing reserves into battle and would warn of the enemy's intentions."

"He knew the complicated names of inhabited places, towns, settlements, rivers and lakes by heart, naming them without looking at the map or his papers," Ponomarev added.

The telegrapher was the one man who remained at the Russian leader's side throughout the Soviet Union's four years of war.

In the "painful and difficult days" when the Battle for Stalingrad was being waged, Stalin established direct contact over a two-way signaling apparatus with Marshal Nikolai Voronov, chief of the Soviet artillery, he continued.

"On the spot," said his telegrapher, "he gave detailed indications of what units should be moved to the threatened areas, naming, as always, units and commanders from memory. He urged that the enemy should be attacked in the south, so that he would not be able to withdraw and so strengthen his northern group. The directive saved the situation north of Stalingrad, where the Germans were threatening to cross the Volga."

Stalin intervened also when the bread situation in besieged Leningrad became critical, Ponomarev said. The people had received their last ration of six ounces.

Stalin immediately ordered the Red Air Force to send every available transport plane, loaded with bread, to the relief of the city, insisting that the mercy mission be carried out at all costs, he said, and Leningrad received its bread.

He said Stalin seemed tireless, working usually until dawn, often well into the morning.

New U. S. Judge for Jap Trials.

TOKYO, July 11 (UP)—Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, former judge advocate general in Washington, D. C., today was appointed to succeed Justice John P. Higgins, who resigned, as American member of the war crimes tribunal.

The trial is in recess until Monday pending installation of air conditioning equipment.

British Loan Critics in Move For Collateral

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).

CRITICS of the $3,750,000,000 British loan lined up today behind a proposed amendment requiring Britain to post collateral for any advance of United States credit.

Representative Dirksen (Rep., Illinois) announced he would offer the amendment and support the loan bill if collateral is required. A final vote on the issue is set for Saturday.

Representative Landis (Rep., Indiana), a leader of the opposition, announced that a poll of the 192 Republican House members showed 141 against extending the credit, 30 for and 21 undecided.

Representative Wolcott, Michigan Republican, predicted 50 to 60 of his party would support the ratification bill.

Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that with the loan Britain can help the United States lead the world "in the direction of peace and well-being." Hull wrote in a letter to Speaker Rayburn that "the world is today confronted with an inescapable choice as to whether it will be a world of peace or a world of war."

"Reduced to its most fundamental terms," he said, "that choice is between a growing cooperation among nations in the economic, political and other fields or a growing hermit-like aloofness on the part of nations toward each other which must inevitably lead to increasing international discord and possibly to the final supreme catastrophe of another world war."

Support for the loan came also from the National Farmers' Union which, in a wire to Chairman Spence (Dem., Kentucky), of the Banking Committee, termed the loan agreement as "indispensable to starting the wheels of world trade moving again and as of special benefit to American farmers."

Representative Springer (Rep., Indiana), opposing the loan, said, "I am convinced this proposal exceeds our constitutional authority." Furthermore, Springer said, the loan would put a $30 debt on every man, woman and child in America.

Administration leaders said a poll of the 239 Democrats indicated a 5 to 1 ratio for the legislation, already approved by the Senate 46 to 34.

Hans Frank's Counsel Tries Again To Whitewash Nazis, Sets the Line For Rise of Some Future Hitler

Following Familiar Pattern, He Seeks to Shift Guilt to the Allies, Thus Laying the Groundwork for a Third World War—Blames Hitler, Himmler.

By RICHARD L. STOKES

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NUERNBERG, July 11 (By Radio)

WITH cynical effrontery, Dr. Alfred Seidl of Munich, a former member of the Nazi party, today outlined for the international military tribunal the sophistries through which some future Adolf Hitler will undoubtedly seek to persuade his people of German innocence and Allied guilt in the recent war.

Thus he laid the groundwork on which vengeance may be sought for the defeat of 1945, presumably by means of a third world conflict. He spoke on behalf of Hans Frank, foremost legal expert of the National Socialist government and for five bloody years governor general of that area of Poland which was neither incorporated in the Reich nor occupied by Soviet troops.

Seidl's thesis by which he sought to discredit the Allied cause and the tribunal itself was that Frank and other defendants are being prosecuted in the name of war crimes for practices employed by the victors themselves during the war and the occupation of Germany.

Familiar Pattern.

The lawyer's championship of Frank observed the pattern that has grown so familiar. If there was no decisive proof to the contrary, blame was placed on men no longer able to speak—Hitler and Heinrich Himmler—for mass exterminations in Poland and the atrocities of its concentration camps, Auschwitz in particular.

But whenever the defendant stood convicted by captured documents his voluminous diary, state papers and addresses—it was pleaded that he was forced to certain compliances with the Gestapo and S.S. Elite Guards; that as a legalist he was an inevitable foe of the Hitler police state; and that on 14 occasions he sought in vain to resign besides applying to Field Marshal Keitel for transfer to the Wehrmacht with the grade of lieutenant.

Seidl agreed there was wholesale "resettlement" of populations in Poland and that such operations bring necessary suffering. But the German offense piled into inactivity, he argued, in contrast to Allied measures under the Potsdam covenant for repatriating millions of Germans from the east.

The Allies violated the Geneva convention, he declared, through "area" bombing of 32 principal German cities and the dropping of atomic bombs in Japan.

He failed to recall that "area" bombing was introduced by the Luftwaffe itself at Warsaw and Rotterdam and that the purpose was frankly terroristic instead of strategic.

The Soviet prosecution offered frequent objections to his statements which were usually upheld by the court president, Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, on the ground that such matters were irrelevant to the case at issue.

Previous Speech Halted.

Seidl is the attorney who sought a few days ago at Hermann Goering's instigation to turn the summation for Rudolf Hess into a Nazi stump speech. After a few pages the court refused to hear the brief as written and ordered it recast.

In defense of Wilhelm Frick, Dr.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the welfare of the people; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Reach War Orphans

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
There recently appeared in your column a letter from an individual who was seeking an agency to handle his offer of aid to a European war orphan. The Campus Y. M. Y. W. C. A. and the Washington University Chapter of the American Veterans Committee have recently joined together to form the Campus War Orphans Committee. This committee has instituted an adopt-a-war orphan plan wherein the pledgees guarantee to send one food parcel monthly to the child adopted for a period of at least six months.

We have obtained over 200 such pledges thus far and have not attempted to expand our field beyond the campus, the reason being that we would rather consolidate our work up till this time and do an efficient job before trying to make a city-wide drive for this particular program.

However, if anyone is desirous of pledging his aid toward feeding the hungry of other countries and cannot find a local agency to accommodate him, we will be glad to furnish him with whatever information and facilities we have at hand. We are in contact with various "national" agencies and are trying to integrate our efforts insofar as possible with theirs.

Further particulars may be obtained by writing to Campus War Orphans Committee, care of Y. M. C. A., Box 76, Washington University, St. Louis 5; or by writing or phoning Herbert Soule, 8533 Pershing Avenue, St. Louis 12; or by writing or phoning Herbert Soule, 8533 Pershing Avenue, St. Louis 12; or by writing or phoning Herbert Soule, 8533 Pershing Avenue, St. Louis 12.

I would like to make it plain this is not, at this time, a plea for further pledges but merely an offer to assist those people who desire to help but who cannot find a local agency to provide them with the necessary information.

HERBERT SOULE,
Chairman, Campus War Orphans Committee, Washington University.

Mr. Mayfield's "Imports"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I quite agree with Mr. Nuderscher that Mr. Mayfield of Vandervoort's had no reason to go so far afield looking for artists who are to paint the natural beauties of Missouri.

Mr. Nuderscher was too modest to mention that he himself, a native son of Missouri, is, as we all know, one of the foremost painters of the Missouri Ozarks and of a good many other fine Missouri landscapes.

In mentioning Mr. Nuderscher, I do not imply that he is our only great Missouri artist. There are many, indeed, and Mr. Mayfield could have found them if the canvases to be done were intended more for posterity than for publicity.

J. H. DRUCKER.

The Squeezed Landlord

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Many people, including our Governor, are chiefly concerned with holding down one price line—rents. Many rents are held at the lowest depression levels, while plumbers and other maintenance men can gouge the landlord at will. I think that a little consideration is long overdue the landlord.

I don't believe in landlords gouging tenants, but I do think Alderman Novack's proposed plan of raising present rent ceilings 15 per cent is worth consideration. This would at least partly offset the greatly increased cost of necessary repairs.

If some such increase is not granted, a field day for moving men is coming up, as single and two-family rented homes will be put up for sale. Landlords won't continue to take the present kind of beating indefinitely.

How can anyone ever expect the housing crisis to be solved with rents frozen so low and out of line with everything else, while building costs are soaring higher and higher? That is an unbalanced economy and class legislation.

Bi-Racial Playgrounds

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
When I first came to St. Louis, I was amazed at the policy of having separate playgrounds for white and Negro children. The Buder Playground situation epitomizes the folly and loose thinking of such a backward policy.

I agree in part with the delegation that visited the Mayor's office. The Buder Playground should not be designated for the exclusive use by Negro children, or for white children, but should be a playground just for children. Just why cannot all the children of all the people use the playground?

They could under proper supervision by white and Negro workers—that is, if the adults would discontinue forcing their wild thinking and outmoded, ill-conceived and ignorant prejudices down their children's throats. They should teach their children that every child is to have the right to enjoy every privilege that he enjoys.

Children are not born with any foolish notions of the superiority of one race over another. Let us stop teaching them such unfounded, unsubstantiated truths. Open the Buder Playground and all playgrounds in the city for all children under proper supervision.

GEORGE L. MANER.

A Flaw in Smoke Control

The Missouri Supreme Court's ruling out of the public welfare clause of the St. Louis smoke control ordinance serves to call attention to a minor hole in the law which could become serious if consumers continued to be subjected to such practices as have been perpetrated on them by the Triangle Fuel Co., whose conduct occasioned the Supreme Court suit.

Enforcement of the smoke control ordinance will not be particularly affected by the court's decision, since there are several other provisions of unquestioned validity in the ordinance which empower the city to enforce it. But the authority of the city to protect the public welfare against unscrupulous practices by fuel dealers is seriously affected.

The clause which the court has stricken out as unconstitutional was part in the ordinance to enable the city to deny coal dealers' permits to companies if it were "not consistent with the public welfare." As things now stand, the city cannot decline to issue a dealer's permit to an untrustworthy applicant on the ground that it would be against the public welfare.

The city is thus sometimes forced to give its stamp of approval—as at least tacitly expressed by the issuance of its permit—to concerns that prey upon the public. Consumers, believing the city's permit means approval, are led to deal with such concerns.

The first specific result of the court decision is that the city is apparently powerless to do anything about Louis L. Horen's Triangle Fuel Co., which has demonstrated itself unfit to engage in a business so intimately related to the public welfare as the retailing of coal.

In the winter of 1944, Triangle sold to some 300 customers more than 1500 tons of coal that would not burn in home furnaces. The average loss per customer was around $30. The company has never returned the money.

The people who bought the useless coal felt that the city was to blame for issuing a permit to Triangle, which had a long and unenviable record. Triangle had been found guilty in Federal Court of conspiring to misrepresent the quality of its coal. When the city attacked the company for misrepresenting the quality of its coal, however, it lost in the State courts. And now the city has lost again in an effort to revoke the company's permit under the welfare clause of the smoke ordinance.

The city is therefore in the compromising position of having to give the color of its approval to a shady business practice. That position is intolerable, and City Counselor Stemmler should find the legal means to enable the city to withhold its permit from concerns that do not deserve it, starting with Mr. Horen and his Triangle Fuel Co.

Roll Out the Senator

Several veterans got into barrels in St. Louis yesterday to protest against what they said would be the fall fashions if Senator Taft had his will with the OPA bill. The idea has its merits, and we would offer only one suggestion to the veterans. The barrel would look better, sartorially and in other respects, if they had Senator Taft over it.

A Leader of Labor

Somewhere between the direct action of Eugene Debs and the no-action of Samuel Gompers, labor was lost in politics until Sidney Hillman appeared. Now it has found itself, and is not likely to lose its way again, even with the departure of its guide.

If epithets had hurt him, the injury would have been deep, but Hillman was proud of his rabbinical training, of his victory over Communism within his own CIO clothing workers' union, of his years of successful citizenship built after the age of 20. Far from being radical, he was a middle-road unionist. He won his battles for decent wages, but his union also sponsored two banks, two housing projects and an insurance fund. It lent money to faltering garment businesses.

Finally, the PAC was an edifice of his constructive vision. While the PAC is the negation of the third-party idea, which would dissipate labor's strength, it also replaces labor's former political inertia, which was as unhealthy for democracy as it was for unions. The sound of ballots dropping in the polling booths will be Hillman's constant epitaph.

One hundred and twenty thousand citizens eligible to vote have not yet registered for the primary and general elections. Like the non-voting stockholders of a business, they will have no right to feel hurt or protest if the politicians mismanage their affairs.

Brush-Off for Veterans

Men's memories are short, notoriously, but the 140,000 veterans of the St. Louis area have a right to expect more than the quick brush-off by Frank C. Rand, president of the Community Chest of Greater St. Louis.

"We've got to cut down on some of these war activities. Some of us think the war is over."

This was Mr. Rand's explanation of the refusal by the Community Chest to continue to match the city's support of the Veterans' Service Center. To jog the memory of the Community Chest, let us point out that last fall the citizens of the St. Louis area contributed nearly $5,000,000 to the War Chest, now the Community Chest, on a plea that these funds were needed to help the returning veteran.

Although Community Chest officials say that some funds have gone to the support of other agencies benefiting veterans, it now appears that the Community Chest never intended to give more than $30,161 to the Veterans' Center, leaving the Center's budget $17,388 short between now and December.

The strange inconsistency of this situation will be more evident if we recall that Mayor Kaufmann, in appealing for donations to the War Chest, last fall stated quite correctly that "the problems of our returning veterans are primary among the obligations of War Chest-supported agencies." And when some talk was heard, during that campaign, that the war was over and giving to the War Chest no longer necessary, the general chairman, Cyrus Crane Willmore, used some strong language; those talking thus, he said, are "damn poor citizens of St. Louis."

Unless the Community Chest wants the people to think it raised money under false pretenses, the only proper thing for it to do is to find $17,388—somewhere in the bookkeeping that has accounted for the more than $20,800,000 contributed by the citizens of the St. Louis area during the last four years—and credit this amount to the Veterans' Service Center.

Orgy of Back-Scratching

It is clear beyond any mistaking that the Senate's mood is to prevent any effective price control. Why? The shabby pretenses for the flood of specific exemptions were shown by the real leaders in this matter—two Republicans—in the debate before the meat and poultry amendment, the first of the exemptions.

S Senator Taft said that meat control had broken down completely. He did not explain that it first began breaking under a concerted effort to make Congress abolish it, and that its breakdown was certain after the Senate voted exemptions in the first OPA extension bill. It broke down because livestock shippers correctly suspected that they could hold back animals from the legitimate market, lick and lobby the Senate into subservience and clean up record profits after June 30.

Senator Wherry said that there should be a test in which some commodity would be free to find its competitive price level. He did not explain that his amendment would deny basic foods to low-income families or that sharp price increases (such as have already taken place) would jeopardize the whole delicate structure of wage control. It has already provoked the Reuther-directed UAW to announce a renewed campaign for wage increases without price increases—the same impossible demand which shut down General Motors for months and then led to higher prices. Nor did Mr. Wherry explain that his amendment offered in the guise of a noble experiment was for the direct aggrandizement of livestock-poultry interests which talk big in Nebraska politics.

Yet a number of Democrats joined time after time with a nearly solid Republican phalanx to follow this reckless and shyster counsel. Finally, Majority Leader Barkley wryly exposed the true basis for all the pious pretense under which the job of murder was done. "There has been," said he, "so much back-scratching it has resulted in a soreness that would exhaust all the liniment in Washington." That is, a majority of Senators were playing the same game as the playmate politician who occupies the great George W. Norris's seat.

It will be remembered when any of these Senators next offer themselves at the polls. It will be remembered still more acutely if cost-of-living strikes cripple industry again. Because a renewal of that experience is too painful to think of, the people look with acute urgency to the House to undo the Senate's mischief again.

An Iniquitous Tax

In spite of calmer counsels, the Board of Aldermen has precipitately installed an earnings tax full of iniquities, chief among which is its casual and callous disregard for the ability-to-pay principle. The only saving feature is that the rate is low, at least at the outset. Anyone who knows the revenue needs of St. Louis, however, and anyone who knows the classic propensity of taxing bodies to milk the handiest cow, can foresee higher rates in the not-so-distant future.

Before that need arises, the city should do what it has not done before adopting this form of tax. It should cause a thorough study to be made, leading to a scientific tax system based on recognized principles of order and equity—two qualities conspicuously absent alike in this new tax and in the piecemeal array of previous expedients on which the new tax is heaped.

Rents a la Realtor

Probably the Real Estate Exchange is right that most landlords will not gouge tenants. The gougers, however, are more numerous than the exchange tries to imply, and they will respond to neither the exchange's own pleas nor the adverse publicity they might get from its proposed Mayor's advisory committee.

In any event, the realtors are questionable counsel in this matter. All the exchange's powers and all the forces of adverse opinion have not kept realty agents from holding apartments vacant to induce home-owners to sell out—with the effect of pushing sales prices higher and decreasing the supply of rental housing. With no voice of dissent from the St. Louis realtors, their national organization steadily fed inflation by prevailing on Congress to exempt old houses from OPA throughout its life. The realtors then turned around and argued that rents should be lifted into line with the inflated sales prices caused by the exemption—which would lead to rent increases of not the reasonable 15 per cent which the exchange now suggests, but nearer 100 per cent.

This is no place for self-government, especially by an industry with so strong an inflationary history. It is a place for people's government. Unless Congress restores rent control very soon, St. Louis should follow the example of other cities and a number of states and set up its own control, allowing only moderate increases above OPA rent levels.

A Promise and a Threat

The immediate danger of a coke shortage is over, because the Laclede Gas Light Co. has recognized its civic obligation to St. Louis. The utility has agreed to revert to its former policy of manufacturing coke for domestic use. But there still may be a threat to our smoke elimination program, in the Civilian Production Administration's plan to divert household coke to the manufacture of pig-iron for housing.

Literally, the announcement by Wade Childress, Laclede's president, means that St. Louis dealers should be able to get all the coke they need. That in turn means continued support for the anti-smoke ordinance. But CPA's proposed order still stands as a possible difficulty which might invite further reduction in our coke supply. St. Louis will oppose any such order. Even in wartime, two Federal agencies saw to it that St. Louis got smokeless fuel, and certainly now the CPA should find sources of coke that will not deny us a clean, healthy city.

The Lethal House Rules Committee

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Rules committeemen have excessive power and sometimes use it to kill progressive legislation, writer says; they decide what bills House shall consider and length of debate; recently they killed minimum-wage bill, despite passage by Senate and approval of President.

Richard L. Strout in the Christian Science Monitor

My friend from London keeps getting surprised about American government. He is conscientious, and is following the British lead.

He has watched its slow passage in the Senate, where he suddenly discovered the chamber has no rules of relevancy and any member can talk on any subject, at any time, at any length. This took him aback. The Langer filibuster startled him. But after five weeks the loan passed, and my friend's attention shifted to the House.

Here, he learned, the House Banking Committee took all the dreary loan testimony, previously heard in the Senate, right over again—generally from the same witnesses. It seemed a bit wasteful.

Now my friend is learning about the House Rules Committee. This power-behind-the-throne operates so quietly even many Americans do not understand it. My friend is literal-minded and thumbed through the United States Constitution, hoping to find something about the powerful Rules Committee. It was no good: the Rules Committee belongs to America's unwritten constitution.

To watch this mysterious agency perform we went to its loan hearing. This was held in a retired cubby-hole of an office in the Capitol. It has all the benefits but none of the trappings of power; it is dingy, small and omnipotent.

A Third Legislative Body

Inside the committee-room door (just off the elevator), the place was full of smoke, human bodies and heat. Two committeemen and a witness were all talking at once.

In the ornate committee rooms, witnesses from all over the country and from every walk of life are heard under supervision of committee chairmen. But in the dingy little Rules Committee, the chairmen themselves are heard.

The committeemen have passed certain bills. But to get these bills before the huge House membership of 435, authority of the Rules Committee is needed.

This committee disposes of the House time, draws up its calendar, says what bills may or may not come before the House, how much time shall be allowed to debate them, whether the House membership shall be permitted to add amendments, and such matters.

The House is so big that it needs a group at the top to guide its sessions, but many critics believe the Rules Committee exercises too much power and oversteps democratic limits.

"Why, this means that the Rules Committee is really a third legislative body," said my friend.

The committee was deciding whether to let the House consider the 65-cent minimum wage bill, which the Senate has passed, and which President Truman wants so badly as part of his social-reform program. You could see right away that most Rules Committee members didn't like it.

Suspicious About the Loan

Of the 12-man membership, eight are Democrats, four Republicans; of the eight Democrats, six are from the South. Why should farmers, in the South or anywhere else, they demanded irritably, have to pay more for their help? Although the Labor Committee pleaded for a chance to bring the bill to the floor for debate, they didn't seem sympathetic, nor did the four Republicans.

No decision was made right away on that bill, and the British loan bill was called up. The chairman of the House Banking Committee and the leader of the Republican minority on the committee were here as witnesses and a rather violent woman from Illinois, who turned out to be a Congresswoman, who opposed the loan and talked a great deal, often when other people were also talking. Nobody seemed to mind.

The Rules Committee seemed pretty suspicious about the loan. They made no secret that in granting "rules" they were weighing the merits of the bills, like any legislative body. They finally granted the loan 16 hours—about four days—of debate.

Later we learned the fate of the 65-cent minimum-wage bill. The Rules Committee had killed it. By deciding to withhold action till the date after which Congress is expected to adjourn, they had blocked debate. Passage by the Senate, approval by the House Labor Committee and the President's recommendation went for naught.

"Extraordinary system you chaps have here," said my friend reflectively. "Very."

A War Contract Scandal

From the Milwaukee Journal

The munition contract scandal being unfolded before the Mead Senate Investigating Committee smells worse and worse.

Of course, the American public realized that there was considerable rank profiteering and fraud on the part of some unscrupulous war contractors. The wartime conditions—the desperate need, the haste and the vast sums to be spent—were an open invitation to profiteering and fraud by fly-by-night promoters devoid of honesty or patriotism.

But the testimony in the case of the Illinois munitions combine has put Representative May, Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, in a very bad light indeed. His was a position of vast influence and responsibility to the American people, and especially to the soldiers who were risking their very lives. He had his hand on the Army purse strings. And the testimony so far has seemed to indicate that he used this vast pressure at his command in at least one instance to compel the Army to approve dubious contracts for friends with scant production resources.

Representative May, or any of his colleagues who were in any way involved in such scandalous proceedings, must be called to account. They must not be allowed to escape with easy excuses or denials. The Mead committee must grant no respite until every connection of every Congressman with any war contract scandal is laid completely bare before the people.

And the least penalty for the guilty should be that they be retired in the dishonor they deserve.

The Swift Race of Ideas

"America and Russia in the World Community," by Harold H. Fisher, (Clarendon College, Clarendon, Cal.)

Add to the increasing body of scholars who have risen from the sublime decadence of Ivy to assert themselves in the world of affairs, Harold Fisher, chairman of the Hoover Institute at Stanford University, whose book is packed with valuable middle-of-the-road comment on the U.S.S.R., within whose borders he has traveled widely.

While some of the text displays surprising naivete for a man who obviously has wider access to the facts than most contemporary scholars, "America and Russia in the World Community" is sincere, readable, and goes forward on what is by now an obvious reality—that "if America and Russia cannot overcome the fears, suspicions and pettiness that entangle their relations; if they do not have the vision and courage to meet the responsibilities history has laid upon them, they will have the grim and final responsibility of leading mankind to self-destruction."

In view of the dud at Bikini (and that display of atomic military destruction was supposed to impress Russia), it is gratifying to note Fisher's reliance on scientific like Urey, who says the use of peacetime atomic energy is "of no importance whatsoever unless the danger of atomic bombs is banished from the earth." If Russia actually were a potential enemy, the Bikini force helped not at all.

Reflecting on Fisher's analysis of the relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A., this reviewer senses more and more that the world today is crystallizing into two islands—one democratic, one socialist—and the question of where the rest of the nations go is competitive, not military. Competitive in the sense that the desolated nations are comparing what our democracy does for its people in this crucial period and what the Soviet Union does for its people.

With inflation a reality, with America dividing into two violently opposed schools; with the UN a dimming hope—we had better take cognizance of the possibility that our democracy must make a fast race to impress the world. According to Owen Lattimore, with whom Fisher concurs, "Marxism is no longer subversive, but competitive."

As to the question of getting along peacefully with Russia, it's an antiquated question, long gone past. We have no choice, nor has Russia.

RALPH PETERSON.

How the Language Grew

"The English Dictionary From Cawdrey to Johnson," 1604-1755, by Dr. W. T. de Witt and Dr. E. K. Rieu, (The University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill.)

Two eminently qualified authors have pooled a decade of individual and co-operative investigation to produce what ought to win wide commendation as an untold tracing of the beginnings and mutations of English lexicography. It should capture and hold the interest of all readers whose mother tongue is an instrument of manifold beauty rather than simply a key to the higher hyperboles of radio huckstering.

Here are the facts about the first 150 years of genesis and growth of the English dictionary. Fascinating by-paths run through the compact history. Antiquarian and etymological curiosities vie with linguistic and bibliographical information. There are copious quotations, along with 16 facsimiles of title and other pages. Notes need not delay the reader; they are arranged separately at the rear, by chapter and page. Documentation, including ample index and a preliminary view of the medieval and Renaissance heritage, is excellent.

HAROLD J. LASKI

Progress Toward Peace

It is a deep satisfaction in so difficult a world to record a genuine advance in the complex task of making the peace. The decisions at Paris are compromise decisions. They are incomplete and they are unlikely to satisfy any of the states affected by their outcome. Nevertheless, the advance is a genuine one.

Let us at least be thankful for small mercies. Let us at least take note that there is an atmosphere far less explosive than was the case in what looked like the hopeless deadlock of last May. Agreement on the future of the Italian colonies postpones a decision upon them for a year. There is then no agreement, the decision will pass ultimately to a vote of the United Nations Assembly, by whose findings the four great powers agree to abide.

Meanwhile, their present administration is to continue. I think this is clearly a sensible decision. It allows full time for ordinary diplomatic negotiations. It gives desirable prestige to the Assembly by the tacit admission that in the absence of agreement the matter will be left to the Assembly.

Checking the Guardian.

I say at once that on this issue I hope with all my heart that the American solution will emerge as the acceptable one: the transfer, that is, of the colonies to the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations and a decision by that Council to make Italy the administering power, in its name. But I hope also that the Trusteeship Council will insist on having in each of the colonies its own resident minister, who will be able to report on the situation, advising, encouraging and warning the power which acts in its name.

It is quite clear from the present position in Palestine that no trusteeship system is likely to succeed unless the Council has its own eyes and ears in all the territories administered under the principle of which it is the guardian. The decision to internationalize the status of Palestine and to accept it is virtually the French demarcation of the Julian Marches was quite inescapable once Russia refused to withdraw its support from Yugoslavia, and Britain and the United States, their support from Italy.

As a compromise, it has three important advantages. It does not sacrifice Italian prestige to Yugoslavia. It does not sacrifice Yugoslavia's prestige to Italy. It means the hope that Trieste will develop to the full its natural position as the main Mediterranean outlet of Central and South-eastern Europe and I hope that the relation which Trieste will occupy in the future to the Security Council will safeguard it from degenerating into a new Danzig.

Let the Fascists Pay.

Obviously the decision is a sacrifice both of Italian and of Yugoslav hopes, perhaps even more than that. But it has great merits of bringing international administration into the forefront, of making the world picture of making the idea of international administration not as it were, an inter-state discussion but a concrete performance of visible functions. I confess that Trieste is not the gateway to seagoing world traffic that I should like to see treated in a similar way.

The solution of Russian claims to reparations from Italy is an ungenerous one. I am bound to say that I regret that it was pressed, since the amount involved does not seem to me proportionate to the emphasis laid upon it.

But there is no evidence to suggest that, especially with the two-year delay in operation, the solution involved will press heavily upon the economy of Italy. And a wise Italian Government ought to be able to organize the incidents of the amount that its burden falls predominantly upon those wealthy Italian landowners and big businessmen who were the main support of Benito Mussolini during his regime. There is the real responsibility for reparations and their right to be the direct obligation to shoulder them. That, I am confident, will be the view of the Socialist leader, Pietro Nenni, and of the Communist leader, Palmiro Togliatti. I hope that Alcide De Gasperi, who as Prime Minister, realize that this is a vital test of the claims of the Christian Democratic party, which he leads, to be either Christian or Democratic.

China Dilemma.

Two final difficulties raised by Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, on Friday night are far more important than those seemed when broadly stated. To make China one of the inviting powers at the moment is to make a state which may at any moment be involved once again in the tragedy of civil war an important factor in settling mainly European problems.

To Russia, moreover, the American-supported regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is a state which seeks it need be, the destruction of Russian-supported Communist China for the sake of some of the ugliest interests—military and industrial and financial—which operate there. It means sacrificing the peasants to the bandits and profiteers who have too often sat smugly raking in their profit without any effort even to fight the Japanese invaders.

Only yesterday a Chinese of vast high distinction and unsurpassed knowledge said to me that nothing would be more harmful to the future of China than to encourage the prestige of the Kuomintang in its present form. That, of course, is what Mr. Molotov's first action is intended to prevent. And I have no difficulties in sympathizing with his insistence.

Strategic Post.

Until we know the contents of the rules he desires to see accepted, it is impossible to say whether his proposal is legitimate or not. My own preference would have been for a policy that sent out invitations at once and left the ministers' deputies to work out, for submission to the conference itself, rules of procedure, leaving the conference to adopt or amend them itself.

Mr. Molotov's second difficulty, that of agreeing on the rules to govern procedure in the July conference, has been compromised. I should think, however, that before the Council of Foreign Ministers disappears, it is essential to have a Secretary-General of the conference appointed, so that he can lay the preparatory foundations which are so urgent to the task of the conference. A statesman will devote themselves. A first-class Secretary-General is a precondition for peace-making and in no realm is improvisation likely to be successful.

I should like to see Dean Acheson chosen for this vital work. I know no one with either character or temperament better fitted for the work. He has integrity. He has balance of mind. Not least, he has been in the heart of international affairs long enough to know the dynamic of this special machine.

'THE LOST WALTZ' NEXT PARK OPERA

Opens Next Monday Evening
—Newcomer in Comedy Role.

Marion Bell, Wilma Spence and Joseph Sullivan, featured vocalists in this week's Municipal Opera production of "The Merry Widow," will have leading roles in "The Lost Waltz," to be presented for seven nights beginning next Monday at 8:30 o'clock.

The Robert Stolz operetta was given its American premiere here in 1938, and was repeated the following year. The story concerns a young composer who seeks inspiration for a waltz for a new opera, and finds his ideal in a vanishing heroine.

Male comedy roles will be handled by Jack Blair, who appeared in "Mary and Gypsy Love," and by Pittman Corry, a newcomer to Municipal Opera, who was featured in Broadway and Chicago musical productions.

Lisa Maslova and Chris Volkoff, ballet team, will make their Forest Park debut in a specialty number. Miss Maslova, who was ballerina for several seasons at the Hollywood Bowl, comes here from the Broadway show, "Lute Song." Volkoff was a soloist in the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and later appeared in Broadway shows.

Other members of the cast will be William Lynn, Edmund Dorsey, Elizabeth Parsons, Josephine Collins, Ralph Lear and Edwin Steffe.

UNRRA OFFICIAL PROTESTS TO GREECE ON DISCRIMINATION

ATHENS, July 11 (UP)—Buell Mullen, chief of the UNRRA mission to Greece, protested to the Greek government today against alleged official discrimination in the distribution of UNRRA supplies.

In a letter to Stefanos Stefanopoulos, Greek minister of education, Mullen said: "certain local government officials do not appreciate the non-discrimination provision in the UNRRA-Greek government agreement, and in certain areas have published circulars establishing a policy of withholding UNRRA rations from persons suspected of being outlaws."

Mullen said UNRRA headquarters in Greece had been requested to cut off supplies to certain villages pending establishment of more satisfactory conditions.

$300,000 ESTATE TO FRIENDS, RELATIVES AND CHARITIES

LONDON, July 11 (UP)—Prime Minister Constantine Sidiaris of Greece today denied UNRRA charges that his government was distributing UNRRA supplies only to its supporters.

Specific bequests of $108,500 to relatives and friends and $58,000 to 15 Catholic charities and institutions are provided for in the will of Miss Nellie A. Murphy, 6084 Yale avenue, who died last Saturday. The value of her estate was estimated at more than $300,000 by John B. Denvir Jr., executor.

After payment of specific bequests, the remainder of the estate is to be divided equally by two cousins, Miss Kitty Thompson and Mrs. Agnes Nolan, 5058 Northland avenue. The will provides for payment of $12,500 to Denvir in lieu of all fees as executor. The other bequests range from $10,000 to $1,000.

Miss Murphy, who was 78 years old, was a sister of the late Frank P. Murphy, a retired investment broker, with whom she lived at the Yale avenue residence.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS HEAR ADDRESS ON JESUIT FUND

The Rev. James F. Maguire, S.J., of Chicago addressed a business session of the Catholic Daughters of America convention today at Hotel Jefferson. He spoke on "The National Jesuit Fund."

The convention, in its fourth and last day, is being attended by 150 delegates from 45 states, Puerto Rico and Alaska. Scheduled for consideration today are resolutions concerning legislation, education and foreign affairs.

Dave's Dream Back in U.S. ROSWELL, N. M., July 11 (UP)—Dave's Dream, the B-29 Superfortress which dropped the atomic bomb on the Bikini atoll target fleet 10 days ago, was at the Roswell Army air field today awaiting further orders. Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt piloted the plane and its atom-bombing crew to the Roswell field late yesterday.

Bidu Sayao to Seek Divorce. RENO, July 11 (UP)—Bidu Sayao, Brazilian lyric soprano, will file suit for divorce against Walter Mochi, to whom she has been married for 19 years, her attorney announced today. It was the first public disclosure that the singer was married.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MRS. ELOISE WELLS POLK and Oscar Johnson, president of the St. Louis Symphony Society, will be married at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Kelley, 285 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley are the parents of Mrs. David Wells (Jean Kelley), whose husband is Mrs. Polk's brother.

Although there had been no previous announcement of the engagement, members of the families and close friends knew of the approaching marriage.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Myles Hansen, pastor of the Unitarian Church in Westport, Mass., in the presence of the families and a few friends who are summering on Cape Cod and other nearby Massachusetts resorts. A reception, also at the Kelley home, will follow.

Mrs. Polk, who is a daughter of Mrs. George E. Wells, 4750 Westminister place, with whom she has made her home, will be attended by her sister, Miss Eugenia Wells, and will be given in marriage by David Wells. James Lee Johnson is to be his brother's best man.

Mr. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, will be unable to attend the marriage, but Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson left St. Louis this morning with the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Malcolm W. Moss. David Wells left last night by plane.

Mrs. Wells, with the bride's two children, Samuel Wister Polk and Eloise Wells Polk, and Miss Eugenia Wells went to Boston from Brattleboro, Mass., where Eloise Polk has been studying music. The group from Cape Cod includes Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Seward, who are summering at the Winthrop Club, and Mrs. Charles S. Lamy, who is at Osterville, Mass., a short distance away.

Mr. Johnson and his bride will tour the north Atlantic coast resorts on their wedding trip, and for a week will occupy the summer home of friends at Chestnut Hill, Mass. After a brief trip to Brattleboro they will return here to live at St. Alban's, Mo., where Mrs. Johnson Sr. has a summer place.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Pine Manor Junior College, Wellesley, Mass., and Frost School of Landscape Architecture, Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Johnson was released from the Naval Reserve, in which he was a lieutenant commander, a few months ago. He was overseas for two years. Previously he served with the Army.

Wedding in Guatemala.

A LETTER yesterday from Frederic Dyer, who is in Guatemala City, to his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Dyer Jr. of Hotel Kings-Way, contained news of his approaching marriage to Miss Lucrecia Elisa Herrera. The engagement was announced several months ago.

The wedding will take place Sunday, July 21, at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Guatemala City. The reception will be held afterward at the Palace Hotel. The letter did not mention the names of the bride's attendants, but said that John O'Neill of Akron, O., Mr. Dyer's former roommate at Holy Cross College, would be best man. Three St. Louis friends, the giant, James Rush, James Jr. and William Reeves, the last a former Philadelphiaan, arrived in Guatemala July 5 to be guests at the festivities. The bride is the daughter of

ARMY TO CONTINUE WAR BRIDE SAILINGS

Program Extended — 12,000 in Europe Await Passage.

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—The Army's program of bringing European war wives and children to America, originally scheduled to end in June, has been extended through December and probably will be extended further if G.I.s continue to trip to the altar in far off lands.

The New York Port of Embarkation said this week that more than 12,000 wives in the European and Mediterranean theaters had been certified and were awaiting passage. Approximately 40,000 brides already have been brought to this country. The list will be increased with new marriages and with certification of girls already married to soldiers who delayed bringing them here because of the housing shortage.

The original schedule was slowed down by the Army, partly because of illness among children which resulted in more than 17 deaths. Any child showing the slightest trace of a communicable disease now is held in Europe until complete recovery. The Army also is carrying fewer passengers on the ships because of complaints of overcrowded conditions. The War Department says it will bring wives here as long as soldiers continue to marry overseas.

MEETING OF REGIONAL MEN OF WAR ASSETS BOARD

A two-day conference of representatives of the 33 regional offices of the War Assets Administration opened today at Coronado Hotel. Brig. Gen. John J. O'Brien of Washington, director of the real property division, and D. C. McPherson, assistant deputy administrator of the agency, arrived last night to participate.

Purpose of the meeting is to streamline operating procedures to accelerate the sale and disposal of industrial real estate, inactive military facilities and other properties held by the government, Gen. O'Brien said. The conference will consider technical problems involved in the liquidation of Government holdings of surplus real estate and will serve as a training course for local administrators, he said.

Arriving with Gen. O'Brien and McPherson were 19 other Washington staff members and directors of eastern regional offices. Representatives of other district offices were scheduled to arrive in time for today's sessions. Lt. Col. C. C. Fletcher is director of the St. Louis office.

Funeral of August Rust. Funeral services for August Rust, who died Monday at St. Mary's Hospital after a long illness, were held today. Mr. Rust was 67 years old. He is survived by his wife, Mary; a son, Milton, and a daughter, Mrs. A. F. Kojetinsky. He lived at 5878 Plymouth avenue.

After her visit at La Crosse, Mrs. Grayson will be joined at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, by a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Nulsen Reinhold, 51 Fair Oaks, and their young son, William Jr.

Dies at Reunion

Mrs. Rowe V. Griffith Collapses Two Hours After Reunion With Army Officer.

Death has cut short the long-awaited reunion of a St. Louis Army officer and his wife. Two hours after Lt. Rowe V. Griffith came home following service overseas, his wife, Mrs. Eunice Griffith, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage which proved fatal.

The reunion occurred last Tuesday after a two-year separation. Lt. Griffith, who had taken part in the infantry campaigns in France and Germany, arrived in New York last week and, after obtaining his discharge at Camp McCoy, Wis., hurried to St. Louis. He was unpacking at the Coronado Hotel and talking of a trip to Wisconsin when his wife collapsed. She died four hours later at Barnes Hospital.

Mrs. Griffith had suffered two similar attacks several years ago, relatives reported, but since then apparently had been in good health. She was 24 years old, the same age as her husband. Both were graduated from Washington University in 1943. They were married May 14, 1944, and were together only three weeks when her husband, then a private, returned to service at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Dr. Philip A. Shaffer, professor of biochemistry in the Washington University School of Medicine, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Haddaway, 247 Spencer road, Webster Groves. Lt. Griffith's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffith of Branson, Mo., formerly of St. Louis.

The funeral was to be this afternoon at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

MUSICIANS' UNION WAIVES RULES TO ADMIT BOY PIANIST

Lad, 14, Plays Strange Score From Memory—Entered Yale at 12.

CLEVELAND, July 11 (AP)—Kenneth Wolf, expert pianist, holds a card in the American Federation of Musicians' Union although he is only 14 years old. The rules require a minimum age of 18, but James C. Petrillo, national president, made an exception in Wolf's case. The boy was formally admitted to the union yesterday.

When young Wolf was to take a union examination for membership, August Caputo, symphonic band conductor, handed him a strange piano score and asked him to play it. After looking it over carefully, the boy tossed it aside and played the score flawlessly. After Wolf had demonstrated that he knew theory also, the session ended with Caputo listening in admiration while the young pianist played excerpts from Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

At 10 Wolf was a special chemistry student at Western Reserve University. He has a bachelor of arts degree from Yale University, where he matriculated at 12. He plans a concert tour at 18—after I have mastered the piano.

$11,260,000 TO E. MISSOURI VETERANS BY G.I. LOAN PLAN

Veterans in the eastern half of Missouri borrowed $11,260,000 under the G.I. loan plan between the time the system was placed in operation in the latter part of 1944 and last June 30, it was announced today by the Veterans' Administration. The administration guaranteed $5,273,000 of the total.

The loans were made to 2428 veterans, 873 of them last month. The average loan made was $4637, and the average amount guaranteed was $2171. Under the plan, the Veterans' Administration guarantees half of the loans, up to a maximum of $4000 for purchasing homes and up to $2000 for buying or starting businesses. The administration said 17,112 non-disabled veterans were attending school or taking on-the-job training at government expense on June 30, and 2218 disabled veterans in the area were receiving job instruction.

DONNELLY SIGNS BILL SETTING UP STATE LIBRARY DIVISION

JEFFERSON CITY, July 11—A bill establishing the Missouri State Library, as a division of the State Department of Education, and authorizing the Legislature to appropriate funds for aid to tax-supported public libraries was signed last yesterday by Gov. Donnelly.

The measure repeals the act creating the former Missouri Library Commission and transfers all functions of that agency to the Missouri State Library.

Gov. Donnelly vetoed a bill revising the laws governing registration of voters in cities of 10,000 to 30,000 population. He said some of the provisions would increase registration difficulties.

ARMY TO SEND 2000 WACS OVERSEAS IN NEXT 4 MONTHS

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—More than 2000 Wacs will be shipped overseas in the next four months.

The War Department said today they will serve in the European and Pacific theaters and with the Caribbean defense commands. The initial shipment of 300 will go to Germany the first week in August.

The majority will be selected from volunteers now on active duty, but a small portion will be recruited from women who have been discharged. In order to receive an overseas assignment Wacs are asked to agree to serve for the duration plus six months.

DISABLED VETERANS' SESSION

More than 300 former service men from the St. Louis area will be sworn in as members of the Disabled American Veterans at ceremony at Polish Falcons Home, 2013 St. Louis avenue, Saturday evening. The men, all veterans of World War II, are suffering from war-connected disabilities. Principal speaker will be John J. Griffin, chairman of the board of directors of the Veterans' Service Center.

'MEMOIRS OF HECATE COUNTY' SEIZED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, July 11 (UP)—Police confiscated 200 copies of "Memoirs of Hecate County" from book and department stores yesterday on the ground the book was obscene.

Capt. Craig Ellis of the police vice squad said the book was the "most obscene, lascivious book I have even seen on the market."

Assistant District Attorney John A. Boyle warned bookstores that further sale would be prosecuted. The book, written by Edmund Wilson, literary critic of the New Yorker, was barred in New York earlier.

FRANK'S COUNSEL TRIES AGAIN TO WHITENASH NAZIS

Otto Pannenbecker of Duesseldorf pleaded at the afternoon's session that the Fuehrer habitually referred to him with disdain as a "publicity hound" and as "that bureaucratic Frick."

John Gunther's "Inside Europe" described Frick as "the only honest Nazi" and as "a bureaucrat through and through."

However, Frick was chairman of the National Socialist bloc in the Reichstag and one of the three Nazis—the others being Goering and Hitler himself—who were accepted by President von Hindenburg as members of the first Hitler cabinet.

He served for 10 years under Hitler as Minister of the Interior with supreme authority over civil administration not only in the Reich proper but occupied territories incorporated in the Reich such as Austria, then Posen-Danzig area, Memel, the Eupen-Malmédy district and the Sudetenland.

Himmler was for several years a subordinate of Frick and the Gestapo was an agency of his department until Himmler was raised to cabinet rank and power on the highest level with his appointment as Reichsfuehrer S.S.

With Hitler, Frick was co-signer among other decrees of the armed forces law which re-established the Wehrmacht and universal military service and also of the Nuremberg racial statute. He was a member of the Reich cabinet and chairman of the National Socialist lawyers' association. He was active also in the association for maintaining Germanism abroad but his interest, according to Pannenbecker, was solely cultural and not the furtherance of fifth columns.

Having never been a National Socialist, the attorney denounced Hitler openly as a criminal who deluded the world and the people over whom he ruled, including high associates such as Frick. The latter's tragedy, said Pannenbecker, lay in his entanglement with a system the early measures of which he supported with enthusiasm but the development of which he imagined would be far different.

Like other defense attorneys, Pannenbecker attacked the tribunal's competency, declaring it has no jurisdiction over individuals but only relations between state and state.

He assailed also the charter's definition of conspiracy under which all partners of a common criminal plan are guilty of such offenses as may be committed by any of their associates. This concept, he objected, is peculiar to Anglo-American law and is unknown to Continental jurisprudence.

CRITICS OF BRITISH LOAN BACK MOVE FOR COLLATERAL

day showed that 141 of the 433 members were not present. Many are waging primary campaigns back home.

Rayburn said a plane was ready to return 10 members from the Philippines where they attended the July 4 independence ceremonies. The atomic bomb test delegation is expected back by Saturday.

Dickens declined to disclose in advance the details of his amendment proposal, but indicated the collateral plan may follow suggestions of Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce, who has described the loan agreement in its present form as "subsidizing the British Empire."

Representative Jed Johnson (Dem.), Oklahoma, came up with an amendment proposing that Britain transfer to the United States title to such British possessions in the Pacific as the President may deem necessary for defense of this country. The bases would be returned to Britain after the loan was repaid.

Johnson also proposed that all of the credit be spent in this country; that interest begin as soon as the loan is made, instead of after five years; and that the interest rate be 4 instead of 2 percent, as the pending legislation provides.

$1 QUESTION ABOUT BUTTER TO COVER O'DANIEL'S BISCUITS

DETROIT, July 11 (UP)—The Service Men's Dairy Co-operative Association suggested yesterday that Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, ask his colleague, Senator (Paw) the Biscuits Pappy O'Daniel (Dem.), Texas, "How he likes to spread $1-per-pound butter on his biscuits."

The suggestion was contained in a telegram to Taft in which the veterans' group challenged Taft's statement on the Senate floor "implying that Communists or their fellow travelers are the principal opponents for the abolishment of OPA."

TRUMAN ASSERTS U.N. POLICE FORCE WOULD LEAD TO PEACE

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—President Truman asserted today the world can have peace if it provides the United Nations with a police force "sufficient to make its mandates stand up."

He told a group of 150 educators who visited the White House that they could aid the cause of peace by helping overcome prejudices which produce wars.

"International dealings are no different from those carried on among individuals," the President said in his extemporaneous remarks. "Nations represent a community of individuals, and there isn't any more reason why we can't understand each other as nations and why we can't understand each other as individuals."

The President's listeners were a group of educators attending a conference on emergency problems in higher education, under auspices of the American Council on Education.

Docusen, Combination Boxer-Hitter, 'Spikes' the Local Punch Bowl

Cuts Haire's Hair in Sixth With a Right

By W. J. McGoogan

Living up to his advance notices, Bernard Docusen, New Orleans Filipino, knocked out Leon Haire, former Golden Gloves champion here, now fighting out of Philadelphia, in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Kiel Auditorium last night.

Docusen proved himself to be something of a combination of a puncher and a Davey Abad as he jumped around, pounding lefts and rights into Haire, who made a game but futile fight.

Appearing before a home town crowd for the first time in several years, Haire was puzzled by the style and punching ability of Docusen. In the fifth round Leon turned his back on his foe, so bewildered was he from the punishment he was taking.

Counted Out by a Hair.

Then in the sixth, Docusen caught Haire flush with a right to the chin and the courageous Negro tried to get up but was a second late in doing so and Referee Johnny Kaiser stopped the fight. Haire took the count on one knee and was up before the count of 11 but the rules stipulate that a boxer has to be up before the toll of ten and Kaiser was right and fair in declaring it a knockout. Too many referees permit a boxer to get off the floor after the count of ten and continue the fight.

The boys, in fine condition, Docusen weighing 137 and Haire 134, were cautious in the first two rounds but Docusen began taking command in the third. He won that one and the next two before applying the kayo wallop.

Dicker Outpoints Jarvis.

It was a fine bout to top off an interesting card with Jackie Dicker, national Golden Gloves winner, scoring another victory in a tough bout with Bobby Jarvis of Kansas City. Jarvis, a clever Negro boy, extended Dicker all the way and Jackie responded with the best effort he has shown since turning professional.

Dicker had Jarvis down for a count of nine in the fourth round.

Eddie Dames fought another draw with Howard Jackson, Kansas City Negro in a difficult bout to score. Al Graff, one judge called it 30-30, Gene Farrell, the other judge, saw it 32 to 28 for Dames, then Referee Harry Kessler, forgetting that he was officiating in a professional bout and not an amateur, ruled it 27-27, even.

Question of How You Saw It.

The draw decision called down the wrath of the crowd on the heads of the officials and while it was the poorest showing Dames has made recently, a draw didn't seem out of order although to most ringers it appeared Jackson had the edge.

Johnny Tabbs, St. Louis Negro scored the other knockout on the card besides the final event when he flattened Johnny Roche, Scott Field, after 1 minute, 21 seconds of the first round. Roche didn't appear to have any business in a professional ring.

Roy Cox, classy St. Charles boy, punched out a hard decision over Otha Brandon in the opening four-rounder.

Promoter Hans Bernstein announced he would provide another show on Aug. 5.

It was reported that the dates for the Golden Gloves tournament have been set. They are Feb. 2-4-5 and 7 in 1947.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Ringside Seats Back to Normalcy.

TICKET prices for championship fights in New York dropped back to normalcy, yesterday, after soaring to that $100 top for the Conn-Louis purse.

Uncle Mike lowered the ceiling to $50, for the Tami Mauriello - Joe Louis match, announced yesterday, with a $3 minimum which is practically what you can buy a stick of butter for, today.

The price change doesn't necessarily imply that the Mauriello-Louis combat will be only one-third or less as interesting as the Conn show.

In fact, unless you're oversold on a marathon running, the Mauriello mix-up will probably keep all spectators awake as long as it lasts.

Tami is rough and tough. As he is a fighter who takes the battle right up to the enemy's guns, it should be lively while it lasts.

But since the Tami style is made to order for counter-puncher Joe, it seems highly improbable the battle will last the 15 stanzas scheduled for it to go.

Tami has had 77 professional battles and has never yet gone out by the cuckoo route.

For him the birdies have never sung. And very seldom have his pants crashed the resin for even a momentary contact. That he can throw a bomb or two himself 61 knock-outs would seem to show.

But there's that hoodoo angle bobbing up again—as if Joe needed to jinx the other guy, in order to beat him. However, it does look as though the 23 number is up for Tami.

He will be the twenty-third opponent to attempt to wrest the championship from Mr. Barrow.

Roll Out The Barrel

Hugh Fullerton Jr. observes in his Sports Roundup today, that since Mauriello runs a tavern in the Bronx, while Louis is about to open a cafe in Harlem, they ought to meet in neutral territory—say the back room in Tony Galento's New Jersey beer filling-station.

Pennant Drives Are Nearing The Stretch

WELL, it's back to the old grind today, in baseball. The All-Star holiday is over.

Now all the big leaguers have to do is to imagine they're all battling for a pennant—and that requires a lot of imagination, in two leagues where the leaders seem to be fairly well established at this time.

More than half the season's schedule still remains, for most major league teams. And, if we accept the leaders of today as the likely winners next October, it looks like the National League is in for more grief.

After that All-Star game, which finished with a two-touchdown victory for the Americans, the ninth in thirteen engagements between the two groups, you couldn't turn up a National League rooster with a clam digger.

All passed out.

The margin of A. L. superiority was too great to be merely laughed off.

There is little doubt on the continent today that the American League of 1946 has something on the National.

But there's still that loser's share of around $4000 each to keep the National League clubs fighting for a world series chance.

And here in St. Louis we're all looking for Eddie Dyer's Cardinals to put on that stretch run we have been awaiting.

Let's hope that stretch drive doesn't turn out to be one of those Lord Boswell finishes—always expected but never coming through.

Hoot Mon! Big Day for 50,000 Scots at Fight

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 11 (AP)—Aggressive Jackie Paterson still held the flyweight boxing championship of the world today, but ring writers pointed to his failure to knock out runaway Joe Curran in their 15-round title bout here last night as proof that he was weakened in making the 112-pound weight.

Champion since 1943, the 26-year-old Scot outpointed the Liverpool veteran in a dull contest that disappointed a crowd of 50,000 in Hampden Park Soccer Stadium.

Britisher Booned. The fans booed Curran's tactics of strategic retreat to wear the champion down in the early rounds.

Paterson, who has been fighting overweight recently, had to battle the calories to get his weight down to the 112-pound limit, which he did without an ounce to spare. Curran was three pounds lighter at 109.

The London Daily Herald's James Butler wrote that Paterson was "obviously weak at the weight with the result that few of his punches came with any real weight."

Geoffrey Simpson of the London Daily Mail wrote that "Paterson did not punch with his old power."

Bicycle Built for Two. Paterson had trouble catching up with his opponent and when he did, he could not score a knockout, though he floored Curran three times.

In the eighth round, Curran was so groggy he had to be guided to his corner. Ringside observers fighting for a world series chance.

Seattle Is Directed To Re-employ Three Released Players

SEATTLE, July 11 (AP). SEATTLE baseball club official said yesterday that Selective Service had instructed the management that three former players were entitled to re-employment as ex-servicemen.

Vice President Roscoe (Torchy) Torrance said he has instructed the three—Pitchers Larry Guay and John Yelovich and First Baseman Leonard Gabrielson—to rejoin the Rainiers.

He said they would be placed with the Vancouver team of the Class B Western International League if they are unable to make the grade with Seattle. They were released early this season by Seattle.

The development follows a recent Federal Court decision that Al Niemiec was entitled to compensation for a season's play after Seattle released him.

The signing of 10 West Coast officials was announced earlier.

Six Officials Signed For All-America Games

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Six football officials have been signed to handle all-America conference games in New York, Brooklyn, Cleveland, Buffalo and Chicago.

Commissioner Jim Crowley of the pro league announced today. They are Tommy Timlin and William E. Pritchard of Buffalo, William H. Ohrenberger of Boston, I. Franklin (Ike) Craig of Chicago, Richard (Corby) Davis of South Bend, Ind., and Francis (Ray) Vincent of New Haven, Conn.

The signing of 10 West Coast officials was announced earlier.

Best Time by U-Time

In $25,000 Lassic Stakes. INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 11 (AP)—First by four lengths, U-Time won yesterday's $25,000 Lassic Stakes at Hollywood Park, rounding the six furlongs in 1:10.15, paying $4.90 straight.

Hemet Squaw, second, paid $2.50 and $2.50. Hubble Hubble showed for $2.40.

U-Time, owned by R. E. Ellsworth and ridden by Lester Bakski, broke on top and kept the lead for an easy win.

6-Under-Par 66 For Jimmy Hines At Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 11 (UP)—Jimmy Hines, perennial money player but seldom top man in the nation's Big Time golf play, toured the Hillcrest course here in a six-under-par 66 today to take an early lead in the $20,000 Kansas City Invitational tournament.

Hines blazed out in 33 and duplicated the figure on the more difficult incoming nine.

Par took a sad drubbing as the early players checked in their 18-hole cards. Jackson Bradley, of Long Beach, Calif., comparatively unknown, carded a 35-33 for a 68, match by the veteran Johnny Bulla of Chicago. Lloyd Mangrum, National Open champion, carded a 70 and Jimmy Demaret had a par 72.

As the play in this, the third largest money tournament in the world this year, got under way, the galleries were favoring Ben Hogan, Sammy Snead or Byron Nelson.

Snead was using a new set of clubs after having given his old ones to his caddy following his victory in the British Open.

Mother-Daughter Final Possible in Pennsylv Golf Meet

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 11 (AP)—

A MOTHER and daughter—Mrs. Florence Fehl and Miss Betty Fehl, both of the Reading Country Club—appeared today as possible antagonists for the Twenty-first Central Pennsylvania Women's Golf Championship.

If both win semifinal matches today, it will be the first time a mother and daughter will battle for title honors since the tournament was inaugurated.

Puesler, Houston, Tex., first vice president; Mrs. R. E. Winger, Fort Worth, Tex., second vice president; Mrs. J. P. Tufts, Denver, third vice president, and Mrs. Holbrook T. Ashton, St. Louis, executive secretary.

FURTHER AIR FREIGHT RATE CUT PREDICTED

11 Cents a Ton Mile Visualized by Aviation Cargo Firm Head.

Air freight rates, which have been reduced from 60 to 20 cents a ton mile, will be lowered to 11 cents when volume of shipments is sufficient and improved equipment becomes available, H. Roy Penzell, president of Air Cargo Transport Corp., predicted here today.

He addressed the Aviation Council of Metropolitan St. Louis meeting at Hotel DeSoto. Air freight tariffs, which ranged from 60 to 80 cents a ton-mile before and during the war, under the impetus of post-war competition were reduced to about 30 cents, he pointed out. Most operators had a multiple classification of rates which proved confusing to the average shipper, so Penzell's firm consolidated the classifications into one and reduced the rate to 20 cents, he related.

"The garment and shoe industry of St. Louis can well utilize air freight," he continued. "In turn, St. Louis can receive New York manufactured dresses, sea food from Maine, fresh out-of-season produce from Florida or Cuba, giant shrimp and other sea food from New Orleans. Produce of the fertile Brown River Valley section of Texas could be available to St. Louis housewives at nominal cost. "The years ahead are air years. St. Louis, if it is to take its rightful place in the sun, must capitalize on what aviation has to offer. After all, St. Louis stands out in aviation history as a pioneer in Middle West aeronautics, due in large part to the efforts of Albert Bond Lambert. It is only fitting and proper that St. Louis should reap the benefits of the air age ahead."

MOLOTOV TEXT: 'PURPOSE IS NOT TO DESTROY REICH'

Continued From Page One. democratic in order to be able to extirpate all remnants of fascism in Germany and sufficiently responsible in order to be able to fulfill all its obligations towards the Allies, including and more particularly those in respect of reparation deliveries to the Allies. It goes without saying that we raise no objection to the setting up of a German central administration as a transitional step toward the establishment of a future German government.

From what I have said it follows that before talking about the peace treaty with Germany it is necessary to solve the question of setting up an all-German government. However, to this day no German central administration of any kind whatsoever has been created though the Soviet Government raised this question at the Berlin conference a year ago. But while at that time this question was put off, it is becoming now particularly urgent as the first step towards the establishment of a future German government.

But even when a German government has been set up it will take a number of years to check up on what this new German government represents and whether it is trustworthy. A future German government must be such a democratic government as will be able to extirpate the remnants of fascism in Germany and which will at the same time be able to fulfill Germany's obligations towards the Allies, and amongst other things and above all it will be bound to carry out reparation deliveries to Allies. Only when we become satisfied that the new German government is able to cope with these tasks and is really honestly fulfilling them in practice, only then will it be possible to speak seriously of concluding a peace treaty with Germany. Unless this condition is fulfilled Germany cannot claim a peace treaty and the Allied powers will not be able to say that they have fulfilled their duties towards the nations who are demanding that a

CONFERENCE FLOOD CONTROL BILL PASSES BOTH HOUSES

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Flood control legislation authorizing expenditure of nearly a billion dollars was approved finally by Congress today. It now goes to the White House along with a billion dollar rivers and harbors bill.

The House and then the Senate adopted a report of conferees on several minor amendments to the flood control measure. The rivers and harbors bill was passed yesterday. The two bills cover flood control, navigation, hydroelectric power and related projects throughout the country. Neither provides money for construction, but enables Army engineers to plan their water programs to be financed by subsequent legislation.

2 WOMEN FUGITIVES CAUGHT

Two women convicts, who escaped from a prison farm of the Missouri Penitentiary at Jefferson City, yesterday were arrested here early today at Broadway and Delmar boulevard. They were Mary L. Atkins, 22 years old, and Martha Strickling, 23. The women climbed a nine-foot chicken wire fence at the prison farm and hitchhiked here. Both are serving sentences for larceny. Neither gave a home address.

Eisenhower said, would be products of the ROTC and officer candidate schools. He asserted his belief that every opportunity should be given to men to rise from the ranks and become officers. Only in that way, he declared, can the Army be truly democratic.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, chief of the Army's air defense command, said in a speech at New York yesterday that "figuratively speaking" the Army Air Forces "right now couldn't punch its way out of a wet paper bag." He ascribed what he called the "appalling" state of the nation's air defense both to the demobilization of the Army Air Forces from a V-J day strength of 2-253,000 men to 485,000 on May 1 and to cut-backs in aircraft production.

He asked if there was "one American in 50,000 who knows that in this, the first year of peace, the Navy is getting millions of dollars more than the Air Force to buy hundreds more planes than are being allowed the Air Force?" For the fiscal year 1947, he said, the Bureau of Budget approved 1859 airplanes for the Navy, compared to 1020 for the Army, giving the Navy $385,000,000 to procure this equipment, while assigning $389,000,000 to the Army.

Outdoor Life

Lure of the Land Is Hard to Explain

By Leonard Hall

OFTEN I've wondered what it is that makes one person love the country and leaves the next one altogether indifferent to the sight of a field of waving corn, a bit of woodland with wild flowers growing, a colt trotting at its mother's side or an old rail fence wandering off through a briar patch. "You have to be raised in the country to really like it," says one. Well—I've known bank presidents who were raised in the country, have been away from it for 30 years and haven't the slightest interest in field or forest or stream; and I've known others who went back after 30 years and bought the farm where they were raised, even though they get a chance to see it about once a year. Another one says, "It all depends on whether your country years were happy ones or not." And there again, I've known men raised on fine, fertile farms where the work was plentiful, as it must always be on the farm, but where the farm itself offered just about everything that makes life worth living. Yet these fellows left the country the day they were able to hold down a job in town—and a yoke of oxen couldn't drag them back.

THERE ARE SOME like that—but not all. You take my friend Jay McCall, who owns just about the best farm in the Bellevue Valley, which is just about as fine a state as there is in the union—and that puts it mildly! Jay was raised in the country and he wasn't raised easy. He was born on a small hill farm and has had to work for it ever since his father died when Jay was no more than 7 years old. An Ozark 40 is mighty slim pickings when it comes to providing the luxuries of life; it's hard going for a man and plain tough for a boy.

BUT WHEN JAY left that farm, it was to go to a better one; and for nearly 20 years that better farm has grown steadily in size and in the fertility of its soil. I doubt that you could sell him on that old rail fence wandering off through the briar patch; but long before he was old enough to vote, Jay had an eye for a likely young beef steer that just didn't miss. From all I can see, the eye has grown keener and year by year those steers have helped build up the farm until it is capable of providing just about anything a man's heart could desire. Sure it's work—but somehow Jay finds time to head up the AAA down in his county and to help run a couple of banks. What he likes best, though, is to saddle his little mare and ride out across the fields to look at his cattle. And it would just about take a yoke of oxen to drag him away from Bellevue—unless you mentioned a bunch of white-face calves down in Reynolds county that might be on the market. Jay's eyes have a way of twinkling in his ruddy face—but when you mentioned those calves they'd twinkle a bit more as he reckoned he could find time to run down and look them over. More than likely, if the calves were good, they'd end up in Jay's pasture—and bought just about right.

WE STOPPED AT Caledonia, up at the head of the valley, on a Sunday not long ago to visit Dr. Eversole. He's mighty young for his 88 years and reminds me a lot of my grandfather, Doc Lem, whom he knew well in times gone by. It isn't that they look alike, for Dr. Eversole is a big man, despite those years, and clean shaven, while Grandpa Hall was of medium stature and always wore a fine white beard. But Dr. Eversole and my grandfather had a kinship in their love for the land. The former owns several fine grass farms and still rides out on horseback to look over his cattle. And my last memories of Grandpa Hall, in the years before I went away to the Navy in that other war, are of riding out beside him to the farm. Jersey cattle were his particular hobby and two bulls which he imported from the Isle of Jersey must certainly have been the first which ever came into the Ozark country. The last one, I remember, bore the proud name of Lord Elito—and there wasn't a fence in the countryside that could hold him! His pen in the old barn was built of oak timbers, but when spring came and the urge to walk abroad in the land struck him, Lord Elito just up and left. Often as not, the frame of a stout oak gate wreathed his massive shoulders. We'd hear rumors of him, then, for weeks. News traveled more slowly than now. First it would be over toward Irondale, then some farmer at Belgrade would pen him up for a few days until he was ready to move on again. The next news might come from down around Palmer on Hazel creek, brought in by some farmer hauling railroad ties.

FINALLY HE'D TIRE out and more than once I've ridden miles to drive the old boy home. Jogging along the way, Grandpa Hall would discourse to me on crop rotations and the virtues of manure on pasture lands and the results to be achieved through line versus cross breeding. I don't think he ever mentioned it, but Lord Elito's annual rambles were undoubtedly responsible for stepping up the quality of dairy cattle throughout our county for many years—and in a day when better blood was badly needed.

SO YOU CAN'T TELL what makes a farmer—or why one person likes the country and another doesn't. I don't believe it even has much to do with being raised in the country; there are probably as many folks who've gone out from the city without previous experience and succeeded on the farm as there are those who have failed. There are farmers plowing land today who'd make better bank clerks—or maybe presidents. There are men who are doing big jobs in cities—and maybe some others who are failing—who'd find their place on the land and be well content in that vocation. Contentment looms pretty big in my philosophy of life.

DRAMATIC DROP TO DEATH

HUGHES'S HUGE FLYING BOAT TAKES SHAPE

This is how Howard Hughes's flying boat, said to be the largest in the world, looks from overhead. The hull rests in a dock at Long Beach, Calif., with the 320-foot wing spread already joined and work proceeding on the tail. Note workmen on wing's center section. Hughes, builder of the craft, is in a hospital critically injured as a result of a crash in another experimental plane.

WHEN HE MENTIONS his physiology professor, that is my cue to ask Jerry for a demonstration, and he gladly obliges. He can actually make the goose pimplies come and go at will. The hairs of his arm will stand erect and then flatten themselves as he desires. It is really a very interesting scientific demonstration. So he uses it wherever he goes. It is his main parlor attraction; his chief social accomplishment. But Jerry is growing too interested in the past. He must take care lest he become so pleased with the experience and accomplishments of yesterday that he forgets about the future. We become old when we are content to live in the days of yesterday. People should be planning and talking of tomorrow: not of yesterday.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a girl of 16 and have a girl friend I've known for many years. I went with a certain boy four months ago and we broke up. Lately he has come back to me, says he loves me, won't let me go again. I work evenings and it's too late to go any place when I finish, so the three of us go for a walk to get something to drink, all in a friendly way. When we want to the show Sunday my boy friend put his arm around my girl friend, just as he did around me. So now she thinks he's in love with her instead of me. Monday they went to the park while I was working and I told her to show him a good time, as his leave was to be up that night. So I didn't see him any more. The next day I saw my girl friend and she claims this boy loves her and not me, but everyone else tells me differently. I know this girl tells fibs lots of times, but this might not be a fib. I still love my boy friend very much and couldn't bear to lose him. What shall I do? I still love my girl friend too.

I think next time you should be wiser, and not let yourself in for possible complications. The girl lacks imagination and is much too generous who hands over her boy friend, even to her very closest girl friend. Time will tell whether or not she has taken your place in his affections. Whatever the result, try not to take it too hard. At 16 there are plenty more boys and plenty more good times to be had. When you write him don't reproach him or ask a lot of "Whys" and "Do you's". Instead wait and see what gives. Teen-agers being teen-agers, the chances are you and he and the girl friend will all feel differently in another month or two.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM GOING STEADY with a young man of 21. I am 19. My parents do not like him, because he does not like to study, still gets money from his parents, likes to sleep late and laze around. He is kinda the backward type, I guess. He wants me to marry him. Will I be doing wrong to marry him against my parents' wishes when we love each other so much? I have a very good job and am not dependent on them. What do you think I should do?

WONDERING.

Unless you want to keep that very good job or one similar to it, the rest of your life and support a very lazy husband, better stop having anything to do with this fellow here and now. A young man of 21 should be giving more thought to his future, not lazing around and expecting to be supported indefinitely. If he has marriage in his mind he should also have the idea of a good job in his mind as well. No man worthy of the name expects his wife to support him while he sleeps the day away. As to marrying against your parents' wishes, that is never a good move on a girl's part. When parents object to a daughter's choice they usually have good reason, certainly they have in this instance, and if you think the matter over sensibly you will realize it.

The Record Makers

By Charles Menees

KING COLE TRIO'S first Capitol album was such a smashing success that a second volume by this talented combo was inevitable. Collectively, its appeal falls below that of book one, probably because the novelty of the trio's style has worn off since 1944. Cole sings five sides (three in album one) best of which are "I Don't Know Why," "I'm Thru With Love" and "I'm in the Mood for Love." Latter is almost as great as his "Paper Moon." Other vocals are "What Can I Say After I Say I'm Sorry?" and "Look What You've Done to Me." Cole's fine piano work comes out on the instrumentals "This Way Out" (an original), "I Know That You Know" with excellent quick-tempo work by guitarist Oscar Moore and bassist Johnny Miller, and MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," an improper vehicle for Moore's guitar, which predominates. Johnny Mercer's "Ugly Chile" (Capitol) has nothing new in music or lyrics. It's Clarence Williams' old tune, "You're Some Pretty Doll," which George Brunis did with new lyrics several years ago for Commodore as "Ugly Chile." Mercer borrows liberally from Brunis' words. The Brunis Jazz Band (Davison, Russell, et al) side is a classic, with more kicks than Joe Yuki, Eddie Miller and others supply on the Mercer side. Mercer's other one is the cleverly worded "My Sugar Is So Refined," well done.

ARTIE SHAW'S band of Hollywood hirelings produces two better-than-average instrumentals (Musicraft) in "The Glider," a Basie-Harding thing with a few Gillespie licks, and "Love of My Life." Arrangements are excellent. Also recommended are Shaw's "Along With Me" and "I've Got the Sun in the Morning," sung by Mel Torme and the Meltones. L. Elgart's neophyte band debuts for Musicraft with good Bill Finegan arrangements of "Mabel! Mabel!" and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen." From Victor: Tex Beneke and the Miller band present "Give Me Five Minutes More," sung through the nose by Beneke, and "Texas Tex," a Finegan instrumental dedicated to Beneke. Several good solos, Vaughan Monroe sings, naturally, on "Just the Other Day" and "When the Angelus Is Ringing." Helen Carroll and the Satisfiers are first to wax ("Lil Abner) Don't Marry That Girl!" Flip is "The Boogie Woogie Barnyard." Spike Jones has three new discs.

FROM DECCA: Fred Waring presents an album "Cole Porter Songs" in typical manner. Instrumentals are "Night and Day" and "What Is This Thing Called Love?" in nice bounce tempo. Vocals are "A Little Rumba Numba," "Every Time We Say Goodbye," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Everything I Love," "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To" and "I Love You." The Andrews Sisters have excellent Vic Schoen backing as they nasal their way through "I Don't Know Why" and "Azuza." Eddie Heywood's band abandons its clipped style for more legato on "I Don't Know Why," paired with a novelty arrangement of "Loch Lomond." Both are mostly Heywood's keyboarding. Lombardophiles will go for Guy's "On the Alamo" and "I'd Be Lost Without You."

CAPITOL: Skitch Henderson's piano is nice on "Dreamland Rendezvous," paired with "Why Does It Get So Late So Early?" An average singing group detracts from Andy Russell's singing on "Pretending" and "Who Do You Love, I Hope." Andy's first rhythm side for Capitol. There's nice Jerry Gray backing on Margaret Whiting's "Along With Me" and "When You Make Love to Me." Columbia's pressing Claude Thornhill's "Night and Day" and "Smiles."

Breathless? It Needn't Be Danger Sign

By Herman Bundesen, M.D.

TEN out of ten people who experience breathlessness and rapid, noticeable beating of the heart should consult a doctor. Nine, to be relieved of their fears that they are suffering from a heart disturbance. The tenth to get needed care for an actual heart ailment.

For while such symptoms as shortness of breath, pain and rapid pulse may indicate heart disease, they may also be due to many other causes.

INDIVIDUALS VARY a great deal in how much exercise they can do. Some healthy people are robust and athletic, while others are fitted only for more quiet ways of living, and then there are many people in between the trained athlete and the person whose muscles are weak and flabby.

Furthermore, a person's age has some effect on the amount of exercise he can do without getting short of breath.

The healthy persons often imagine they are suffering from heart disease because they find they are breathless when they attempt to do things which, previously, they could do with ease. They fail to realize that the symptoms may not be due to disease, but merely to lessening of their physical energy which comes with advancing age. Thus, the mere presence of the symptoms mentioned is no sign of heart disease.

HOWEVER, SINCE they are an indication that possibly something is wrong with the heart, whenever they occur, a thorough study of the heart is advisable. This should include an X-ray of the heart and the making of an electrocardiogram or electrical tracing of the heart beat. Furthermore, the doctor will listen to the beating of the heart to determine if there are any abnormal sounds called heart murmurs.

Many times, damage to the heart may be present without producing any noticeable symptoms. It depends upon the extent of the damage to the heart and the type of work a person does. In other words, if he does not do a great deal of physical work, he may never notice any shortness of breath or pain around the heart.

HEART DAMAGE which is not causing symptoms often is discovered during the course of a life-insurance examination. The wise person will have a physical examination at least once a year, so that when disorders of this type are present they may be discovered and proper treatment carried out. It is possible, by regulating a person's activities, to reduce the strain on the heart and thus to maintain its reserve power for many years.

If symptoms due to heart disease are present the physician can advise such drugs as digitalis which slows and strengthens the heart beat and thus aids in eliminating the symptoms. In any event, the physician is the only one who can determine the condition of the heart, and lay down rules for protecting it from further injury.

Four ripe bananas, two tablespoons lemon juice, few grains salt, two-thirds cup powdered sugar, four egg yolks, one tablespoon gelatin, one-tenth cup cold water, one-half pint whipping cream.

Peel and force bananas through fine sieve. Add lemon juice and salt. Add sugar to unbeaten egg yolks and beat until light, thick and lemon-colored. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes; then dissolve by setting cup in pan of hot water. Fold into banana mixture with stiffly beaten cream and eggs. Beat gently for about four minutes. Turn into trays and place in refrigerator to freeze, two and one-half to three hours, stirring three times.

Boo Loo Gai

Two young broilers, flour, fat, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup grated pineapple, two teaspoons soy sauce, one cup or more bean sprouts, green pepper, tomato, almonds.

Cut up chickens, rub with salt and flour. Fry until nicely browned and tender. Remove to warm place while preparing sauce. Remove unnecessary fat from skillet and add remaining ingredients and heat thoroughly. If thickened sauce is preferred, thicken with cornstarch and boil five minutes. Season to taste. To serve pour sauce over chicken. Garnish with slices of green pepper, tomato wedges and almonds.

He Takes His Singing Seriously

But Joe Sullivan, Young Muny Opera Tenor, Looks Upon It as a Labor of Love

By Clarissa Start

WHEN Joe Sullivan returned to his hotel after the usual Sunday afternoon rehearsal with the weekly Municipal Opera schedule, he yawned and remarked to the elevator operator that he'd had a hard night. The dusky operator gave him a dark look.

"Ah, wish," she said, "all ah had to do was sing every night and get paid for it."

Sullivan, who had rehearsed all Saturday night, returned after a few hours sleep for the Sunday afternoon rehearsal, and would rehearse all day Monday, sing in the opening performance of "The Merry Widow" Monday night, and return, presumably refreshed the next day to start rehearsals for next week's show, "The Lost Waltz," merely sighed and momentarily wished he was an elevator operator. Not that he minds what he considers a labor of love. A hard working singer ever since he decided on singing as a career after a high school triumph in "Pirates of Penzance," the young tenor once drove a truck for a year in order to finance his studies, learned an entire opera in 15 days for his first big chance, and still considers work and success synonymous.

"In this business you never get to the point where you're not still a student," he says, "and there's plenty of hard work attached to it. Not that I've had too bad a time. I've kicked around a little but didn't suffer too much. A few times it got a little tough but mainly because I wanted to keep on preparing myself rather than accept what I could get at the time."

AT present under contract to M.G.M., resuming a movie career that was interrupted by Army service, Sullivan, who is of the brawny and boyish Irish, in his own words, "I don't know if I'm a singer or a football player, but I do know I'm a singer."

He first became interested in singing at the Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles, Lawrence Tibbett's alma mater incidentally. A French-horn player in the high school orchestra, he was more than slightly annoyed at the male lead in one of the school performances and decided he could do as well. He did as well and better, beating out the other boy for the lead in the next show, "Pirates of Penzance," and from then on, singing was his big ambition. "I didn't do much serious work at it until I graduated from high school," he said. "Then I began studying at the University of Southern California, but I had to drop out because I didn't have enough money. So I got a job working for a chemical company, driving a truck at first, and a year to the day after I got the job I had saved enough so I could quit and go back to school."

JOE SULLIVAN . . . APPEARING IN "THE MERRY WIDOW" AND, NEXT WEEK, IN "THE LOST WALTZ".

He made his operatic debut in 1941 in a performance of "The Barber of Seville" which John Charles Thomas sang at Long Beach, California, and it was this performance that proved to be his first real break.

"I had the good fortune to sing for Jacques Sammonsau, Thomas' music conductor," he explained, "and he got me the chance to sing in the opera. I had just 13 days notice and while I knew the opera in English I'd never sung it in Italian, so I rehearsed about six hours a day until I'd learned it. Thomas was wonderful and helped me a lot, something I'll never forget as long as I live. I guess maybe he thought it wishes to preserve. "The green-eyed monster," Shakespeare called it, "which doth mock the food it feeds on." The whole tragedy of Othello is based upon jealousy and its dire results, distrust, crime and loss of all that is dear. Place trust and sincerity in your mind when you feel the pangs of jealousy; you cannot overcome it with a vacuum but need to give yourself a new attitude in order to overcome it.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

AFTER passing originally, a player must not rely too much on a "one-over-one" response. Observe this typical case:

Both sides vulnerable.

South Pass West Pass North Pass East Pass

1 spade 1 heart 1 spade 1 heart

he had to help me so I could get through the darn thing without disgracing him."

Following his operatic debut came the opportunity to sing with the Chicago Opera Company, the Pasadena Music Festival, and then a singing part in the Ice Follies which played here in 1942. From there he joined the San Francisco Comic Opera Company and appeared on the West Coast. When the cast reached Los Angeles, Billy Brady, M-G-M talent scout saw Sullivan and signed him up.

To date he has not sung in either of the movies he's made but his between-movies work, here at the Municipal Opera where reviewers have compared him to that other Muny and movie star, Allan Jones, and in similar opera and operetta companies, keeps him in practice. After his performance here he will sing at a new theater, the Starlight Theater in Hollywood where Richard Berger, formerly of the Muny opera is artistic director.

MARRIED to his high school sweetheart, Marie Pauline Horn, the singer lives in Hollywood, and has a three-year-old daughter, Patricia Marie. His wife, he adds, is his severest but fairest critic.

His first movie was "This Man's Navy," in which he played a flyer. He was scheduled to appear in "They Were Expendable" following this but before it got under way, the Army decided that as a movie actor, he, too, was expendable, and drafted him. He spent the next year and a half at Camp Roberts, Calif., doing entertaining and returned last winter to make another movie, "Blue Sierra," as yet unreleased.

"Frank Morgan, Elizabeth Taylor and Leslie are in the picture," he said, and added with a grin, "I think my billing comes right under Lassie's."

For rugged realism, he recommends that you see "Blue Sierra" for at least two incidents which he testifies are the real thing. One is a scene in which he takes a fall, which he really took, severely wrenching his neck in the process. The other is the scene in which a charge of dynamite goes off in a mountainside where he is standing and his expression registers surprise and a certain amount of shock. The surprise was genuine; no one told him the dynamite was there.

It is obvious, to anyone glancing at the North hand, that North would have been outrageously optimistic to make an original bid in view of South's original pass and his minimum response to the club bid. After all, North could not have been faintly criticized if he had failed to open the bidding in the first place—it was only his third-hand position that justified such a weak vulnerable opening. It may be argued that he would not have risked very much by raising spades to the two-level, since he had an excellent fit, but this view would be far from the mark. It was not the danger of reaching two spades that worried North—it was (very logically) the fact that he would be giving false information to South and in that sense inviting further bidding from South with a hand much weaker than South held.

The crux of the matter was that South, after the club opening, should have been almost sure that game was in the hand and should have announced that opinion in no uncertain terms.

FROM DECCA: Fred Waring presents an album "Cole Porter Songs" in typical manner. Instrumentals are "Night and Day" and "What Is This Thing Called Love?" in nice bounce tempo. Vocals are "A Little Rumba Numba," "Every Time We Say Goodbye," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Everything I Love," "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To" and "I Love You."

The Andrews Sisters have excellent Vic Schoen backing as they nasal their way through "I Don't Know Why" and "Azuza."

Eddie Heywood's band abandons its clipped style for more legato on "I Don't Know Why," paired with a novelty arrangement of "Loch Lomond." Both are mostly Heywood's keyboarding. Lombardophiles will go for Guy's "On the Alamo" and "I'd Be Lost Without You."

CAPITOL: Skitch Henderson's piano is nice on "Dreamland Rendezvous," paired with "Why Does It Get So Late So Early?"

An average singing group detracts from Andy Russell's singing on "Pretending" and "Who Do You Love, I Hope." Andy's first rhythm side for Capitol. There's nice Jerry Gray backing on Margaret Whiting's "Along With Me" and "When You Make Love to Me." Columbia's pressing Claude Thornhill's "Night and Day" and "Smiles."
